Future Science - Muons and Neutrinos - Excitement and Excitation by Ulrike Granögger - February 15th

To Solari Readers

“Every time four protons are turned into a helium nucleus, two neutrinos are produced. These neutrinos take only two seconds to reach the surface of the Sun and another eight minutes or so to reach the Earth. Thus, neutrinos tell us what happened in the center of the Sun eight minutes ago. ~ Raymond Davis, Jr

Imagine a technology that allows us to see into all places and all matter. Or imagine one that gives us the power to communicate across the vast expanse of the solar system in mere minutes.

The implications are profound.

This week on The Solari Report, Ulrike Granögger presents the first episode of our new series Future Science. She takes us into the subatomic world of physics – into elementary particles called muons and neutrinos – and the implications of our growing understanding and application of knowledge about them. This includes a discussion of the Ice Cube Neutrino Observatory in Antarctica.

Extraordinary scientific and technological advances are driving the shifts in governance and resources underway. One of my goals for the Future Science series is to give you access to knowledge about advances that Ulrike considers important.

Better it is to appreciate what inspires change than simply to respond to the changes as they impact our lives.

Why should billionaires and the “breakaway civilization” have all the fun? Let’s all be part of inventing our future – this is part of coming into our personal power. Yet, with the rare exception of Dr. Farrell’s books and website Giza Death Star – I have found very few sources that attempt to cover developments in science and technology and connect the dots to the spiritual, cultural, political and

The Black Budget: The Crossroads of (Un)Constitutional Appropriations and Reporting

“The $52.6 billion “black budget” for fiscal 2013, obtained by The Washington Post from former intelligence contractor Edward Snowden, maps a bureaucratic and operational landscape that has never been subject to public scrutiny. Although the government has annually released its overall level of intelligence spending since 2007, it has not divulged how it uses the money or how it performs against the goals set by the president and Congress.” ~Barton Gellman and Greg Miller

V. About Us

Excerpt:

Even in just the last few days, there have been concerns that the bill that ended the recent government shutdown included provisions allowing the Executive branch to fund covert action without Congressional oversight or going through the usual Congressional oversight committees. The provision is currently a subject of debate, with a potential amendment to remove the exception opposed by some in Congress. (see Kelly, Erin, Spending Bill Limited Congress' Oversight of Secret Intelligence Activities, Senators Say, available at <https://www.usatoday.com/story/news/politics/2018/01/23/senate-intel-leaders-say-bill-reopen-government-strips-them-power-gives-white-hgives-white-house-mor/1057919001/>. As it stands, this bill waives the later discussed (already very limited) reporting and appropriation requirements of the National Security Act. It's not hard to see why it has raised more than a few eyebrows. Steps to change the language of the waiver were reportedly blocked in Congress. (see Nelson, Steven, Provision in Shutdown-Ending Bill Stokes Fear of Oversight-Free Intelligence Spending, available at <http://www.washingtonexaminer.com/provision-in-shutdown-ending-bill-stokes-fear-of-oversight-free-intelligence-spending/article/2646894>).

With such a recent move towards limiting Congress, and the people's, oversight in a situation already sparse on oversight, appropriations compliance, and reporting compliance. The time has never been better to ask, what is the Black Budget? How did it come to be? How does it work and, perhaps most importantly, how and why is it considered legal and constitutional?

Highlights from Last Week - The Emerging Multipolar World with The Saker - Neocons & the War Lobby

This week on The Solari Report, The Saker joins me on our quarterly Emerging Multipolar World to discuss his new book The Essential Saker II: Civilizational Choices and Geopolitics: The Russian challenge to the Hegemony of the AngloZionist Empire.

We have a long list of topics to discuss:

Domestic:

- I. Growing power of the Neocons and their relationship to the Israeli and war lobbies.
- II. FISA Memo distraction and the inability of the Washington establishment to find any evidence that the Russians interfered with the US elections.
- III. Purges in Hollywood and the media: are the US elites fighting each other and, if yes, why?

Global:

- I. New national defense strategies published by President Trump and Secretary Mattis – and what they mean to the balance of power between the US, Russia, China and, in President Trump’s words in the State of the Union, ” anyone else.” The impact of proposed increases in the defense budget – in the State of the Union President Trump embraced a $1.5 trillion upgrade of the nuclear arsenal and Secretary Mattis proposed a $50 billion increase in his subsequent speech at the Greenbriar retreat on top of the $59 billion increase in the current defense authorization.
- II. The war lobby makes money persuading nations to prepare for war. Can anyone really benefit from a war?
- III. What’s ahead for US relations with Iran, North Korea and Russia.

Middle East:

- I. Collapse of the US ‘plan D’ in the Syrian Kurdistan as a sign of a weakened Empire
- II. Attacks on Russians in Syria and the downed SU-25: is Russia in trouble in Syria?

Russia:

- I. Political impact on the proposed latest US sanctions against Russian corporations and individuals
- II. Presidential election in Russia – does it matter and why?
- III. Risks of a fullscale Ukrainian attack on the Donbass this Spring/Summer
