To Solari Readers

"In space, the United States is going to do Colonel Glen proud. We are finally going to lead again. You see what's happening? You see the rockets going up left and right. You haven't seen that for a long time.

Very soon we're going to Mars. You wouldn't have been going to Mars if my opponent won. You wouldn't even been thinking about it. A new national strategy for space recognizes that space is a war fighting domain just like the land, air and sea. We may even have a Space Force – develop another one. Space Force. We have the Air Force, we will have the Space Force.” ~ President Donald Trump, March 2018

This coming week we will continue our publication of the 1st Quarter 2018 Wrap Up. The Wrap Up audios – both the full interview and chapters – will be published on Thursday at 6pm ET.

Last week Dr. Joseph P. Farrell joined me to discuss News Trends & Stories, Part I. We covered the top ten stories in Economy & Financial Markets and Geopolitics. Please make sure you listen to Story #1 – Marketing the Rape of Russia to North America. It describes recent developments that pose significant risks to us all and underscores the importance of enforcing the US Constitution and the federal financial laws.

Here is some of the early feedback:

HOLY COW! And I'm not even into Chapter 2 yet!

It sure seems to me, that this is the best Wrap Up I've ever heard. Certainly, there is a HELLUVA lot going on right now. Lots of stuff in play....what a fantastic job unpacking it, providing current and legacy context about the game space, and as always, a delightful measure of levity to some very serious subject

Net Neutrality: Why Congressman Marsha Blackburn Will Lose the Tennessee Senate Race

Blackburn betrayed you. She took $497,499 from Telecoms, then she voted to let them sell your web history without your permission. Ask her why, call 615.591.5161 ~ Billboards in Blackburn’s District

Our collective disdain of regional monopolies like Comcast and AT&T is one of the very few things that tends to bridge the nation’s deep, partisan divides. Blackburn may just be about to figure that out the hard way. ~ Karl Bode

By Catherine Austin Fitts

Introduction

Someone sent me an article by Karl Bode published recently by Motherboard explaining the reasons why my Congressman Marsha Blackburn is likely to lose her bid to replace retiring Senator Bob Corker in the Senate race in Tennessee. It's well worth a read.

Congress's Biggest Opponent of Net Neutrality Is Getting Destroyed in Midterm Election Polls – Marsha Blackburn is trying to jump from the House to the Senate—and is losing by 10 points to a Democrat in Tennessee, a state Donald Trump won by 26 points.

I thought I would contribute to the understanding of “on the ground” economic details of why Blackburn is in political trouble. Given the facts, it's likely to get much worse after the August primary when Blackburn has to face off against former Tennessee Governor and Nashville Mayor Phil Bredesen.

Bode refers in his piece to pressure on the Republicans to persuade Corker not to retire. The Republican Senate majority is holding on right now by one seat – making a Blackburn loss particularly painful for the Republican Party and administration.

Unfortunately, this is a loss that will be well deserved. I say unfortunately as Blackburn first went to Washington as a friend to small business who voted against the bailouts twice. If you look at the quality of my telecommunication services and the costs, you will understand why I say that Blackburn is no longer a friend to small business.

The History and Organization of the Federal Reserve: The What and Why of the United States' Most Powerful Banking Organization

“Whoever controls the volume of money in any country is absolute master of all industry and commerce.” -James A. Garfield, 20th President of the United States

PREFACE by Catherine Austin Fitts

The Solari Report is pleased to present the next Special Solari Report in our federal financial series – a summary overview of the legal history and organization of the Federal Reserve by Michele Ferri and Jonathan Lurie.

The NY Fed and its member banks serve as the depository for the US government. If $21 Trillion is missing from US accounts, no doubt some of it went missing through those bank accounts. This makes the push for a Congressional audit of the Federal Reserve particularly timely.

If the US government has systematically refused to obey the laws related to financial management, the Federal Reserve and its banks and their members as depositories or as primary dealers in Treasury securities have continued to effect the transactions that made these illegalities possible. The question is why? Why is the Fed financing transactions that are either outside the law or financing an operation whose finances are outside of the law?

Given that the Federal Reserve banks are private and their specifics of their ownership is secret, the potential conflicts are profound. The proof is in the pudding – the centralization of wealth in America over the last three decades has been very significant. Unfortunately, it correlates with bailouts and trillions in missing money rather than markets and meritocracy. America was just dropped from the top 10 most innovative countries.

To understand, let alone answer, these questions it is essential to know the legal history and organization of the Federal Reserve. If the federal government is operating this far outside the law, it is hard to imagine how the Federal Reserve as its bank and securities dealer could be operating within the law. Enforcing the federal financial laws may require enforcement actions against the Federal Reserve or fundamental reform to the Federal Reserve authorities and structure.

We do not need to change the Constitution – we need to enforce it. However, to enforce the Constitution, we may need to change the fundamental structure of how we govern and manage our money to ensure that it complies with and supports our Constitution.

Ferri and Lurie have done a remarkable job of distilling the information to an accessible form. Here it is.
