Good Manners with Daniel Post Senning - July 14th

To Solari Readers

“Nothing is less important than which fork you use. Etiquette is the science of living. It embraces everything. It is ethics. It is honor.” ~ Emily Post

Etiquette by Emily Post, originally published in 1922 and now in its 19th edition, is one of the most popular reference books ever published in America. I was raised on my mother’s copy of the 3rd Edition. It sits in my office today – one of three editions I own.

Etiquette and the teaching of good manners have flourished under the stewardship of five generations of the Post family, now organized through the Emily Post Institute in Vermont. Indeed, the Post family enterprise is an excellent example of building family wealth by making a quiet but enormous contribution to the civic life, health, and prosperity of America.

Emily Post’s great-great-grandson, Daniel Post Senning, joins me this week on the Solari Report to discuss good manners – how we learn them, pass them on to our children, and evolve them in both a changing world and a digital age. Daniel is a co-author of Emily Post’s Etiquette, 19th edition and The Etiquette Advantage in Business, 3rd edition. He is also the author of Manners in a Digital World: Living Well Online, and co-host, with his cousin Lizzie Post, of a weekly podcast, Awesome Etiquette.

When I am appalled by some bad behavior online, I sometimes head over to the Institute’s website for some inspiration and age-old wisdom on how to integrate divine intelligence into our daily lives. From big issues of ethics and honesty to the protocols of table manners and social rituals, the Emily Post Institute is a treasure of “how to” resources for nurturing a more human civilization.

In Money & Markets this week I will discuss the latest in financial and geopolitical news from Friesland in the Netherlands. I am collecting stories at the Money & Markets commentary. It’s a great place to post questions and suggested stories and links – or e-mail them for Ask Catherine.

In Let’s Go to the Movies, I will review The Power of Your Intentions by Truthstream Media. Aaron and Melissa Dykes describe the famous “rice experiment,” which underscores the value and importance of thoughtfulness and good manners.

At last! The Minds of Men is available from Truthstream Media.

The greatest risk we face as a society is manipulation of our minds. Such manipulation is a major contributor to many of the significant problems we face today, including centralization of economic and political power and growing inequality. In their new documentary, Melissa and Aaron Dykes help you understand the history of the plague of mind control.

This is an astonishing, powerful work by two of America’s most important up-and-coming documentary producers. Please watch it and encourage everyone you know to do the same.

Food for the Soul: Museum BRANLY

“If Jacques Chirac is so interested in non-European art it’s largely because the 20th century discovered the quality, scope and significance of these cultures after having dominated and scorned them for such a long time.”

Former French Culture minister Jean-Jacques Aillagon in an interview for Financial Times

By Your Culture Scout
It is one of the most beloved museums in Paris but no, it's not the Louvre. It is one of the newest museums built for a maximum interactive experience and a modern audiovisual way of acquiring information. There is a tradition in France that its presidents sponsor either a new museum construction or an extensive renovation to serve as a monument to their time in office. President Georges Pompidou is the founding father of Centre Beaubourg Georges Pompidou. Jacques Chirac offered Paris a museum to fit the new century: the “Musée Quai Branly – Jacques Chirac” opened in 2006 and, unlike the “tourist traps” of the Louvre and Versailles, it attracts a lot of Parisians who would often have first come to this museum with their families and then became regular visitors. The museum is devoted to anthropological heritage and art of all continents outside Europe. It has had its share of controversies about its collections and the political role it plays in the French reconciliation of its colonial past or current ethnic conflicts but for a regular Parisian visitor it is mainly a source of a great cultural and educational experience.

A visit starts with a walk on a “river of words” – a floor projection of over 16,000 names of peoples or places in many languages, with rivulets of letters trickling underfoot. While you are going upwards in the “words river” you wind around a central, tubular glass tower (24 m/ 78 ft) that stores 9000 musical instruments – there you can see not one but hundreds of tribal drums stacked together, or countless rattles from four continents – a most unusual sight. The journey into faraway lands and lost civilizations has begun. At the top of the “river” ramp you then enter sort of a winding lane in between “earthen walls” – a passage reminiscent of village walls in North Africa or Southwestern adobe structures. Small screens or peepholes in those walls allow viewing short ethnographic movies or photos.

The Missing Money - How Would You Write the

Movie? with Rob Kirby

“Once you eliminate the impossible, whatever remains, no matter how improbable, must be the truth.” ~ Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

By Catherine Austin Fitts

From fiscal 1998-2015, the Department of Housing and Urban Development had almost $1 trillion of undocumentable adjustments. The Department of Defense had approximately $20 trillion of undocumentable adjustments. (See Missing Money)

Indeed, during this period these agencies and the US government failed to comply with the Constitution, laws and regulations relating to financial management. (See our series on the legal provisions related to US government financial management)

If you think this is acceptable, try the same approach on your next IRS filing and see what that division of the US Treasury says and does in response.

I often hear that it is not possible for $21 trillion in real assets – whether cash, government securities or credit or armaments and hard assets to be stolen over a twenty year period. That is absolutely not correct. It is more than possible.

Another response is that if this much had indeed be printed, created or in circulation that we would have hyperinflation. Not so. (Although, real inflation is running at a much higher rate than the official statistics indicate. See:
http://www.chapwoodindex.com/)

To help you understand the mechanics of how so much money could go missing as well as how it could be reinvested or circulated without hyperinflation, I invited Rob Kirby of Kirby Analytics to join me for an exercise in imagination.

If Rob and I were screenwriters and we were going to write a movie about the missing money, what would the various financial fraud schemes we would consider for our plot be? Which would we choose? And how would we make sure inflation would not give us away? How would we make sure that the majority of Americans would not notice that the savings in their pension funds, IRAs and 401ks was being laundered through the US government and they would ultimately be liable for the related IOUS?

Join us in the imagination room for a wild ride through the financial ecosystem and our thoughts on what has been going on in the darkest corners of the financial and pension systems as they fund the national security state.

Highlights from Last Week - 2nd Quarter 2018 Wrap Up:
Equity Overview & Rambus Chartology

“The demand for environmental, social, and governance (ESG) or responsible investing (RI) is growing at a rapid pace with nearly USD 23 trillion of assets being professionally managed under RI as of 2016, an increase of 72% since 2012…responsible investing has gone mainstream, driven by two major global trends: the increasingly material financial impacts of mismanaging ESG risks and the rising decision-making power of millennials with their strong desire for sustainable investing.” ~ Binu George and Hardik Shah, GMO, March 2018
This week on The Solari Report, I will present the 2nd Quarter 2018 Wrap Up Equity Overview, including the new Rambus Blockbuster Chartology. Make sure to check out the financial charts on our 2nd Quarter 2018 Wrap Up web presentation and the Chartology when it is posted on Thursday.

My goal is to help you connect the dots between global equity performance this year and the build up to major privatization (which likely means “piratization”) in the United States. There is a fever growing – like the one we experienced in the early years of globalization and the housing bubble. Given accelerating automation and the integration of AI and robotics, this wave is likely to have a more significant impact on our lives and businesses.

I want you to see the relationships between the big shifts in capital and investment unfolding before us, including:

- Reinvestment of the financial coup d’état monies, including $21 trillion in missing DOD and HUD money & many more trillions more from the bailouts;
- Falling multinational margins and mega deals;
- Repatriation of cash to the United States and corporate tax changes;
- The White House proposal to privatize Freddie Mac, Fannie Mae, the Post Office, TVA and more;
- The push to gut the US Office of Personnel Management and to terrorize the senior civil service;
- The US political engineering of capital gains to raise political contributions and kick backs;
- Big defense budgets, the increased public focus on space investment, and continued growth in US debt;
- Trade wars and the emerging US$ bear trap;
- Net neutrality rule repeal and data wars;
- A new, unprecedented wave of disinformation – to quote one ally, the “merger of the missing money with the blue chickens”
- The sheriff of Nottingham going upscale and high tech. The USA is becoming a “White Collar Speed Trap” – because the best defense is a good offense;
- The rebranding of corporations as “good guys,” including Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) efforts and responsible investing; and
- The outlook for employment and the housing market.
