C. Austin Fitts: Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to The Solari Report. This is the 1st Quarter Wrap Up for 2020. As you can imagine, we have a great deal to talk about. One of the best things about doing a Wrap Up is I get to go to Joseph’s house, watch him roll cigarettes, and get the pleasure of the secondary smoke – even though I’m pretending that I’m not really smoking!

So, we had delayed this because I was going to fly home and go to Joseph’s. But because of the travel restrictions, it is not happening. So, we decided to plow ahead and record right away because we have so much to talk about.

Joseph, thank you so much for joining me on The Solari Report.

Dr. Joseph Farrell: My pleasure, and thank you for having me back on.

Fitts: We talked about the coronavirus several weeks ago, and we just did a Solari Report. I’ve been watching and following your website very closely because I know that you are on it, and we have a great deal to talk about.

Let’s just dive in. In Part I, we do Economy & Financial Markets, Geopolitics, and the Trump Report Card. Then in Part II, we will do Culture, Space, Science & Technology, and Food & Health. Clearly, the ‘Plandemic’ weaves through everything that we are going to be talking about. We watched the shock doctrine after doing it to many places and many countries. Somebody has finally decided to push the red button and do it to the whole planet. So here we are.

In Economy & Financial Markets, we have five stories. I will start with Story #1.

Story #1: The Push to Replace Currency with One-World Technocracy

It’s here.

Farrell: Yes, it is.
Fitts: I’ve been working, and have taken forever to write The State of Our Currency. I kept struggling with it because the way to understand the state of our currency is to know where they like to go. But if you look at where they want to go, it is so bizarre and dark that I was struggling with how I could explain it to people.

Now that the plandemic is upon us, Bill Gates is out marketing. He is trying to make the ‘Mark of the Beast’ fashionable. I am considering a subtitle for The State of Our Currency as ‘The End of Currency’ because that is really what they are proposing to do.

Farrell: Yes, that is. Interestingly enough, the way that some of the central banks are behaving, it’s as though they are intentionally trying to hyperinflate existing currencies so that they can get rid of it and bring in this digital currency. We will talk more about that later.

I think that is a game, and I don’t think they are going to be successful. I think you are going to have some pushback, particularly in this country, from people who don’t like the idea that they are going to have to put everything digital and learn how to do all of that.

They may try, but I don’t think that it is going to fly.

Fitts: You almost feel like you are watching two things: One is that they have had difficulty keeping the current dollar system going. The other is that if you look at all the different pieces they have been pushing to get the new system up and running, they just keep running into incredible road blocks. You get this sense from the top down that somebody is very frustrated.

Farrell: I’m glad you mentioned that because I’m getting that sense, too. They keep pushing and pushing, and it’s almost as if they are in a panic of some sort. They are in a major hurry. Every time they turn around, it seems like something is popping loose.

We talked the last time about that Utah Goldback story that I think is very interesting. That is a bit of pushback, and I think that you are going to find things like that popping up all over the place as they try to drive everybody into digital. I honestly don’t see that happening.
Fitts: I sent you an article from The Financial Times. Somebody at The Financial Times finally had the sense to write and say, “Can you come look at all of this ridiculous stuff that is being proposed in terms of digital currency?”

It’s almost like, “Who let the kindergarten out to play around with our currency systems?”

Farrell: Exactly. This idea of coupling it to vaccines for coronavirus the second problem here, is that they simply don’t have the capacity to vaccinate everybody. That is problem number one.

Fitts: I don’t know if you saw it. The Federal agencies have now ‘shoveled’ out over $3 billion to BARDA, the biotech agency. It is ‘shoveling’ out billions of dollars to Johnson & Johnson to make a vaccine.

We now have 41 companies working on vaccines funded with your tax dollars.

Farrell: There are two pushes that they are going to try. They are going to try to vaccinate everybody, and I have bad news for them; I’m not taking it. It’s the same thing with digital currencies; I will make due with cash, thank you very much.

I think that you are going to have pushback on the vaccine, but it has been very interesting. Robert Kennedy Jr. has been pushing the vaccine problem with his lawsuits. I don’t think they are going to shut him up or be able to make him go away. Although, it’s very interesting that messages may have been sent with the recent drownings of some of the Kennedy grandchildren.

It looks as though we are in a full-scale war the way I’m see it – some sort of mafia war. They are pulling out all the stops to try to stampede people. I just don’t think that it is going to work.

Fitts: I think that it is very hard for many people to get the connection between digital currency and vaccines. I want to take some time to step through it. We have seen Bill Gates working for many years to promote vaccinations, and many of us are struggling to understand what the goal is here. Why are they doing this?

Part of it is finding all sorts of strange ingredients in the vaccines. The Italian researchers a while back took 41 vaccines and tried to figure out what was in them, and they found all sorts of strange nanoparticles that they couldn’t explain.
So, question number one is: What in the world are they putting in this? One of the things they are definitely putting in are heavy metals. We now see more and more research promoting the ability to inject into a body nanotechnology – including nanotechnology that will serve as a brain-machine interface.

Just as Wuhan happened, I spent a great deal of time talking about Dr. Charles Lieber and his research. Charles Lieber was arrested by the Department of Justice, and he is head of the chemistry department of Harvard, so he was a very prestigious professor. He had been paid a fortune. I don’t know how much Wuhan was paying him.

The question, of course, is: What in the world was he doing in the Wuhan bio-warfare laboratory?

Farrell: Exactly.

Fitts: I have many questions about whether what happened in Wuhan was an experiment gone wrong.

Farrell: It was an experiment gone wrong, or it was a deliberate leak. There are only two ways to play this. His specialty was in nanotechnology, if I recall. I have had this idea, and you have had this idea that they have tried to create a virus that can be more or less activated or turned on or enhanced with electromagnetic ‘soup’, so to speak.

I tend to think that this whole thing was a deliberate ‘plandemic’ rather than a crisis of opportunity for Mr. Global. I believe that Lieber’s arrest is a huge clue.

I just blogged about another thing that I was recently made aware of. Apparently, the Soros Foundations had filed an SEC filing in 2011, and it is definitely connecting him and his foundations to Wuhan.

Fitts: Really?

Farrell: Oh, yes. The blog recently came out, and is called The Plot Thickens. There is an SEC filing that I have linked on that blog. So something is up here; there are ‘just no two ways about it’.

Fitts: I very recently got a report from France. The French have been outing groups of Western billionaires who have been having secret meetings in China.
One of my questions is about Gates. Gates had very significant investments and very important, advanced research in China. He put one of his big research labs – which was going to be the next AT&T/Bell Labs type of thing – in China in 1997. So, I’ve wondered what he was doing.

If there is one piece of evidence that I would love to have, it is what actually happened in Wuhan, and who was involved and connected with it. I don’t feel like I know, but I sense that would be the piece of evidence that we need to ‘pin down’ to know how this got started.

Farrell: We don’t know who ‘patient zero’ is; we don’t know the vector of this thing. The whole origin of this thing is badly obfuscated and, quite frankly, hidden. That says quite a lot right there to me. They don’t want people to know how this got started and where and so on.

If you are doing that, there are only two reasons for doing so: You are either terribly careless and incompetent, or it was planned. I am definitely leaning towards the latter. There is just too much weirdness about this thing.

Fitts: I’m not convinced that it is only one thing.

Farrell: I agree with you. I think that what they are doing is perhaps several things going on here, and they are using the coronavirus story as the cover for a lot of different stuff that they may be doing.

It is just very strange because you look at the CDC experts who President Trump has with his press conferences, and they seem to be either angry or terribly frightened. If they are frightened, that means they don’t have a real clue as to what is actually happening. So, yes, I think that the coronavirus may be the cover story for many different things.

Fitts: Clearly, we are in the middle of a major covert economic war, which we will get to.

Farrell: Absolutely.
Fitts: I want to bring up one of the most important things. When we look at the high technology related to ending the currency system and replacing it with what I call a ‘credit at the company store’, you are looking at Gates pushing ID2020, which is a biometric ID. Everybody has a fingerprint, it’s on a blockchain on the system, and so you have 7-8 billion people all identified through a biometric print.

Now what we also know is that there are all sorts of work occurring with implantable chips or injectable chips. The question is: When did they try to push it into that?

One of the things that came out was Bill Gates going on Reddit and started promoting all of this as being very fashionable. I announced, “Bill Gates is trying to make the Mark of the Beast fashionable.”

One of the articles that covered it mentioned the fact that the US Navy had hired a tech firm in Denmark to build an implantable chip that could integrate with Ripple. Ripple is something that is being pushed by a variety of different establishment players. But you thought, “Holy cow! Why is taxpayer money paying a Danish tech company to create an implantable chip for the new currency system?”

Farrell: The obvious goal is to enslave everybody. This is a Mark of the Beast thing that they are talking about. It is precisely because of that I think you are going to have some major pushback. People aren’t stupid; they can see what is going on.

I go back to something that I mentioned in our previous interview that we did on the coronavirus story. When I went to the grocery store, I was listening to people in line as to why they were there. The overwhelming majority of people were not there because they were panicked about the virus; they were there because they were cynical and skeptical about the whole thing.

Fitts: Right, and it’s very interesting. If you watch Twitter, the anger that is pouring out at Bill Gates is unbelievable.

Somebody took a picture of a research journal lab saying, “Oh my God! I found the virus that is destroying the world.” There is a picture of what you are seeing through the microscope, and it’s a little picture of Bill Gates surrounded by the coronavirus antennae. It was very funny.
Farrell: With respect to Gates, here is a person who is weighing in on all of this with his vaccines and his biometric identifications and so on. This man designed an operating system that is literally prone to computer viruses. So, he is going to be the expert to tell us how to live our lives and how to guard our health and viruses? No, I don’t think so.

Fitts: I have always believed that his ‘claim to fame’ was that he was willing to give the NSA and the Israelis a back door, so he was promoted by the government. All the software developers couldn’t fathom how he was getting all the government contracts. They kept saying, “This is the worst software in the world! Why is anybody buying this guy’s stuff?”

I’m saying, “Okay, so this guy’s claim to fame was that he gave a back door to everybody’s computer and bank accounts. Now he is going to give a back door to everybody’s brain.”

Farrell: Exactly, and the thing that people need to take away here is they have to be prepared to say no.

Fitts: Right, this is ‘nut-cutting’ time.

Farrell: It’s not time to sit back and go along with the narrative; it is time to say no.

Fitts: We will talk about this more when we get to health, but I want to bring up that in December there was a summit meeting in Switzerland. You had all the vaccine programs from around the world come together with the people from WHO and these different groups who were running the global vaccine programs. There was a major effort globally – country by country, and then rolled up into the globe – to get all these mandates implemented and pushed.

There was a report from an anthropologist who was funded by the Gates Foundation to run the Vaccine Confidence Program. Basically, she said in a very careful way that the pushback from both the parents and the healthcare practitioners and the doctors was significant because they don’t trust the safety, and “We can’t change that because we don’t have any science to prove safety.”
You could see everybody was stalling. Then finally some doctor from Nigeria said, “Not only do we not have safety for the individual vaccines, but we have no safety studies to prove that once you put all of this ‘goop’ together from all these different companies and all of these various cocktails into one little body that it would be safe.”

Then the entire crowd reacted. So, even if you look at the people who are running the programs, they were stalling out. Now we suddenly see with a major stall this happens, and suddenly, we have the Federal taxpayer paying billions of dollars to fund 41 new vaccines for something that somebody hasn’t been able to prove exists, but to the extent that they have, a vaccine won’t work for it.

Farrell: We have had the chloroquine story out there now, and that is not a vaccine; that is a drug. This doesn’t help anybody who is pushing the vaccine agenda. So, the fact that they are stampeding everybody with these tax dollars going for vaccine research, if this is not a plandemic, they are certainly using it as a crisis of opportunity.

Fitts: I think that whatever is going on has to do with a new transaction system, which is a control system; it’s not a currency. If you look at what a currency is and how it works, we are talking about the end of currencies. We are talking about essentially a credit at the company store, which is collateralized by humans.

So, it’s not a petro standard or a gold standard; it’s a slave standard.

Farrell: Exactly, and people need to stand up and say, “No.” There needs to be an absolute shouting down of this whole agenda at the local, state, and Federal level. What they are trying to do is to stampede people into fascism and into slavery. It’s time to just say, “No.”

Fitts: My concern, of course, is this technology can be used to interface with mind control.

Farrell: I think that is a huge danger. Let’s not forget that with Lieber at Harvard, Epstein had given a large amount of money to Harvard and to MIT to research these types of technologies. So, there is an aspect of this that is bothering me.
I saw another story recently in my inbox of this coronavirus, in some cases, inducing people to have some abnormal behavior. I’m wondering – given our scenario – if we are thinking in terms of some sort of combinational technology between a bio-warfare technology and an electromagnetic technology that enhances or drives the virus in a much more lethal way.

I have to wonder if part of this isn’t behavioral. You look at this media hysteria and hype, and the numbers simply aren’t there for a pandemic. Let’s be truthful. But if you look at the media hype and hysteria, I have to wonder just how much of this is mind manipulation, particularly with people who have contracted the virus.

There is plenty going on with all of this, and we are ‘reading the tea leaves’ like we usually are.

Fitts: My real concern is that the electromagnetic weaponry is really in the mix. 5G is not a regular telecommunications technology; it’s crowd control. It was developed by the Israelis and the Americans for crowd control. So we have crowd control, and we probably have mind control in the mix.

I do think in going back to currency that we were watching at the end of 2019 an acceleration of the move out of the dollar. So, we are seeing the dollar syndicate fight back. What has happened is quite good for the dollar in the short run, and it looks like it could be very rocky for the euro, which right now is the only serious liquidity option outside of the dollar.

We are seeing a huge push by the dollar people try to get their way to a digital currency, although we see the other individuals – the ‘dedollarization’ crowd – pushing that, too. One of the things that has come up in the middle of this is that every time I talk about this, I get many people who are trading bitcoin or Ripple or other cryptos coming back and saying, “She does not understand crypto.”

I had somebody say it again. He said, “I’m a military man, and you just don’t understand crypto.”

I said, “Tell me the army throughout history who won when they used their enemy’s train tracks for their supply lines and they stored their provisions on their enemy’s infrastructure.”
I thought, “Why is this so hard? What is it about crypto?”

Farrell: I think there is a segment of the population that is enamored of any technological solution to things. My problem with all of this digital stuff – high frequency, trading, cryptocurrency, and so on – is that I want to have a medium of exchange in my hand. With cryptocurrency, it’s the same argument that I have been making against e-books. Anybody with access or who has the knowledge can go in and change what you’ve said on e-books. You can go in and access accounts and change things.

I have heard all these cryptocurrency people say, “That is impossible in this system.” Well, science used to tell us that humanity would be unable to travel faster than 30 miles an hour. I am very serious about that, and that is true.

When railroads were first invented, there were scientists saying, “We will never be able to withstand the stress of travelling faster than 30 miles an hour.”

So, ‘where there is a will, there is a way’. These systems, I’m sorry, are not safe; there is no infallible system.

My other big problem is that cryptocurrency is, in a certain sense, a black box. This is what fascinates its advocates. But the problem is that you are not going to turn this black box over to incompetent governments and central bankers who have literally robbed this planet blind in the last 30 years. Why would anyone want to do that who has half a rational mind? This makes no sense to me. And why would you want to do that if it’s coupled to the idea of you having a biometric identifier that is going to hook you up to some computer in Bill Gates’ centers or laboratories or whatever?

Do you want slavery, or do you want your freedom? The choice is that.

Fitts: It’s interesting. When I did the due diligence on bitcoin in 2017 for cryptocurrency and block chain, I spent a lot of time researching some of the smartest people I know. Then for the final thing, I flew to Baltimore to spend an afternoon with Bill Binney to grill him on all the security issues.

Do you know something? I-it ‘ain’t’ secure.
Farrell: Of course not!

Fitts: Anyone who thinks that it is secure doesn’t understand Mr. Global.

I went to this conference with all these bitcoin developers, and what I realized is their naïveté, and it was really scary. They were wonderful, wonderful people with great hearts and great intentions, but no education in how the control systems on planet Earth works.

One of my goals for 2020 is: How can I get them that education?

Farrell: The only thing that I can think of is that we have to start asking these people, “Do you want your digital currency being overseen and run by the Mossad (Israeli intelligence agency) and the clowns in America and the Bundesnachrichtendienst (German intelligence agency) and all of that? Or do you really want to have a currency?” Like it or not, that is the choice.

A medium of exchange protects your privacy and it protects your freedom and it protects your sovereignty.

Fitts: It’s really ironic. During the litigation, we had a very high-tech infrastructure. We had all of these great freedom fighters. They were the bitcoin developers of their day.

The Department of Justice showed up with subpoenas, and within moments, they were urinating on the floor and giving them everything. I’ve been to that movie.

Story #2: The Red Button Is Pushed with the Medical Cartel; the Central Banks & Treasury Stimulus Flows.

I should mention that if you haven’t heard my red button story, you can look it up on the internet. There are a couple of videos. Just enter ‘red button’ and ‘Fitts’ and you will get it.

Basically, we have been watching the developed world middle class subsidized – both with the China trade and a variety of bubbles. The China trade is ‘long in the tooth’, and at the same time, the bubble is ‘long in the tooth’. Now we see the thing unwinding at high speed. At the same time that Mr. Global is pushing the button to accelerate it, we are watching a stimulus which is moving bigger and faster than the bailouts.
Farrell: It is unbelievable to me. The financial news during all of this is amazing. If you factor out ‘hair-brained’ explanations or high-octane speculation, if you are a traditional or a monitorist or a fiscalist, regardless of what economic school you are from, this makes no sense.

Fitts: It does as a cut-and-run.

Farrell: It’s a cut-and-run, but even then they are cutting their own throats. We have seen stories of the Fed taking reserve requirements to zero.

Fitts: I saw that the lobbyists were trying to get that done. As soon as the shriek-o-meter heard the plandemic screams, suddenly the bank lobbyists were pushing for zero percent. I thought, “Oh my God! Talk about overreach!”

And then the Fed agreed almost instantly.

Farrell: Shortly after that happened, you had the Kreditanstalt für Wiederaufbau (KfW) bank in Germany.

Fitts: Which is unbelievable!

Farrell: They said, “We can basically extend unlimited credit to your businesses.”

I’m thinking, “Okay. That’s a large amount of liquidity! Are you taking your reserve requirements to zero, too?”

Fitts: They would have to.

Farrell: It’s just ‘nuts’!

Fitts: Frankfurt is the financial center of Germany, and Frankfurt is in the Hesse state. We saw the chief financial officer of Hesse dead on the train tracks right after it went down.

Farrell: I think that he had to have been familiar with Creditanstalt and had some misgivings. But again, there is a ‘hair-brained’ explanation for what is going on. I don’t even want to mention it because it is so ‘hair-brained’.
I’ll be blogging about it this later, but let’s just put it this way: If you are doing these things; if you are hitting the red button and you are taking reserve requirements to zero and all the other things that they are talking about; if you are going to reset a financial system – and I’ve said this many times before – every financial system is based on a physics; it is based on a system of energy.

So, what are we watching? We are watching Russia and Saudi Arabia in a race to the bottom for oil prices and production. We are seeing Europe and America turn away Saudi oil because there is an oil glut, and Russia continues to produce to drive the Saudis out of the business because the Saudis can’t produce it as cheaply.

It appears that one of the things they might be preparing for is to shift the energy system.

Fitts: Absolutely. I think that the reason you see the push for control – including with the vaccines – is that you cannot bring breakthrough energy out until you have complete control, including reproduction rights. So they now have biotechnology, and the billionaires are saying, “I’m going to live now until I’m 145.” Ray Kurzweil says that he is going to live forever. So they have life extension technology, and they have breakthrough energy. They don’t want to bring it out until they have complete lockdown control.

If you bring the energy price way down and create that much wealth, then the push for meritocracy is going to be unbelievable and they are going to lose control.

Farrell: This can’t be something that allows people to be dissuaded from saying, “No.” The more that I think about it, the more I think that you can bring out some breakthrough energy without having everything in complete lockdown.

Fitts: Absolutely. The other thing is if you go back and watch the documentary of Royal Rife, we know that you can bring the cost of fantastic healthcare down dramatically. So, we technologically have the ability to bring healthcare costs down dramatically and to bring energy costs down dramatically. This planet has the potential to be highly economic, for all I know. Maybe there is a physical risk that I don’t know about, but there is no economic problem; we have a governance problem. I know that we say this on every Wrap Up.
What you can’t do is bring out all of that technology. If everybody lives to be 145, that is going to be very interesting on how we are going to manage all sorts of things on this planet. That is number one. Number two, the people who are now in control can’t stay in control.

Farrell: No, they can’t, and this is an important point. If they are going to bring out a breakthrough energy system in conjunction with the financial system, just ask yourself the question: Do you want Bill Gates and George Soros and Christine Lagarde and all of these people in charge of it? My answer is, “No.” All of these people have failed in their moral outlook and so on.

I am urging people to just say, “No”. They are going to have to do this one way or the other, but the choice that we are being faced with is: Are they going to roll it out and make us slaves, or is it going to get rolled out and we are going to be free? That is the choice. We cannot allow these people to be in control of it. They have demonstrated that they are incapable.

Fitts: Here is the thing: What is being channeled is the demonic force. We saw the CDC come out and say, “To protect against coronavirus, babies have to be separated and isolated from their mother at birth.”

You have to be absolutely insane to say something like that.

Farrell: They are, and that is my point; these people are insane. They have no moral compass. They live only for expansion of their power. So, if we are in the midst of a sweeping financial and energy paradigm shift, then the last thing that we want is to leave these people in control of it. In other words, if they want to try to vaccinate everybody, we say no. If they want to try to move everybody to digital currency, we say no. This is entirely unnecessary.

Fitts: It’s the end of individual sovereignty. All the different applications of digital technology are basically building a one-way mirror and destroying human sovereignty. That is where they want to go.

What is frightening is that I have always said that people who win in a rigged game, get stupid. Of course, the question that I always have is: Why are they behaving like this?
One of the things that you saw when Michael Bloomberg ran for President and spent $1 billion is, “Is it really possible that he is that stupid?”

Farrell: And the answer is, “Yes, it is.”

Fitts: $1 billion for one delegate is quite stupid, and then you quit right away. That is very stupid. That tells me is that these people have been breathing their air too long.

I don’t know if you remember this, but I said in the Annual Wrap Up that the Movie of the Year was Yellowstone. In the second season of Yellowstone, you have a person who owns a ranch, and it’s the biggest ranch in the state. Everybody wants to make money messing with his land or seizing his land or grabbing his property. Two of his competitors are brothers called the Beck brothers. The Beck brothers have been using assassination and dirty tricks. They have mercenaries working for them, and they poison his cattle and they kidnap his grandchild.

Finally, he says, “That’s okay. There is only one way to deal with the Beck brothers, and that is to kill them.”

So the question is: How can you kill them and get away with it? So at one point, his son is sitting in the bathroom, about to kill one of the Beck brothers. Just because he is curious he says, “Why did you do it? Why did you kidnap my son?” He was really asking, “Why did you put me in a box where the only way out is to kill you?”

The man looked at him and said, “Nobody ever fights back.”

I thought, “2020 is the year when we are going to have to ask the question: How are we going to deal with the Beck brothers?” Because these people have gone crazy because we haven’t fought back.

Farrell: I totally agree.

Fitts: We put up on our website something called ‘The Stimulus Tracker’ where we keep all the headlines of stimulus, and it is ‘growing leaps and bounds’ every day because they are pushing out. The US stimulus is $6 trillion, but now they are talking about even more.
I think that if you look at what is coming out of the Fed, it’s even more. But you have also shut down the entire small business/small proprietor economy. If you are handing out trillions of dollars this way and that way, but you are shutting down Main Street, Main Street has only one choice, and that is to start doing it for themselves: Start growing food locally, start issuing community currencies locally, rebuild bottom-up locally and stop buying their stocks and buying their products.

I think the question is: When is Main Street going to get the joke that it’s time to take back the economic channel and the economic currency?

Farrell: In one sense, there might be a hopeful sign in that the Trump Administration has let the Governors decide how they want to do things. That might be fueling a bit of this localism. I certainly hope so.

Let’s look at it another way: Let’s assume that Mr. Gates and his ilk succeed in forcing the Federal government to come out with a mandatory vaccine/digital currency program. I think any time that sort of thing happens, given the cynicism already in this country about this whole narrative, if they were to do that, the pushback would be even greater. So, they can’t afford to do that.

People have to realize that it’s time to stand up and say, “No,” and it’s time to inundate Governors and mayors and so on and ask them, “By what authority do you declare that we have to sit in our homes?”

In other words, take them to court and make them prove they are a jurisdiction. Secondly, make it very clear that you are not going to go along with digital currency or with Federally-mandated vaccines and all this nonsense. Just make it very clear.

Fitts: Here is the thing: If this goes on for another month, the economic breaking up of supply chains is going to kill more people than the virus.

Farrell: Exactly. The whole response here has been so out of proportion to what is really going on in terms of the virus itself. You are absolutely right. The cure here is worse than the disease. That is another clue that people have to latch onto.

The real goal here is economic and financial, and that is why this is an op.
Fitts: Here is the question: Was the inflation going out of control, so this is a forced deflation? Or is this just that you have no more subsidy to keep the red button levitated, so you decided to take the entire developed world middle class and move it to poverty status?

Farrell: I don’t know. The problem with that is I don’t think that Mr. Global is decoupled sufficiently from his reliance on the middle class. So, the problem there is if that is their goal, they have to prop up the middle class long enough until they can decouple. But I don’t see any aspect of that happening in this whole thing yet, but we’ll see.

I am in agreement with you. The longer that this goes on, the economic problems are worse than the coronavirus, and you are messing up a supply chain phenomenally. That has to be a problem for ‘Mr. Globaloney’. They know that their base of power is still in North America. So you mess up that supply chain, and they lose their power.

They have to have the guns to back up their will, and that is their problem. If you can’t manufacture the guns, and you can’t manufacture the pharma that your soldiers are going to need if they get wounded in battle and so on, then you have nothing.

Fitts: I dealt with some of the Ziocons when I was in the Bush Administration. You see this when you watch Charlie Ferguson’s documentary on Iraq. I think it’s called No End in Sight. They love destroying things. They have this theory of ‘you break it, and then you can remake it in your own image’, and they think it’s funny. They get pleasure out of it, but it is very satanic. You wonder what they are channeling.

This is shock doctrine. So if you watched what they did, our movie this week is going to be The Shock Doctrine that Naomi Klein made. It shows you what the Chicago people didn’t show you in all of these other places in Latin America where they went in and destroyed the place, wreck it completely, and then remake it.

They have gotten away with it, so they have done this country after country or town after town – whether it’s disaster capitalism or shock doctrine. They have done this in many different places.

They have also played the ‘plandemic’ game. It has never gone global or this big, but now you are seeing that they are doing shock doctrine and the ‘plandemic’ and getting it to go global together.
What is interesting is if you hear the people who can’t fathom that this is a ‘plandemic’ as opposed to a pandemic – and a much more complicated phenomenon – they haven’t been watching.

You’ve been tracking whether it’s the games they play with epidemics in every election year since the financial crisis or the deep state tactics that they played on shock doctrine or disaster capitalism. You’ve been watching and tracking decades of warfare where all these techniques are being worked out and developed, and their systems are being worked out and developed.

Now that you’ve been watching thousands of those things going on for decades, they are bringing it together in a big, global reset. You can fathom that they are doing a ‘plandemic’, but most people can’t.

Farrell: I frankly think that it is a global beta test because one of the things that they are looking for is precisely those points or regions or inflection points of resistance. This is why it is very important that the shouting down of, “No!” needs to happen on an equally global basis.

We are seeing certain signs of it. I don’t know if it is true or not, but I just read an article about India taking China to court over this whole thing. That is a bit of pushback.

Fitts: Larry Klayman has sued China for $20 trillion.

Farrell: Yes, but the pushback needs to happen locally as well – in your state or in your community and so on. Mr. ‘Globaloney’ has to be signaled that, “No, we are not going to put up with this. This is the shock doctrine.”

But I go back to the other point that I just made. If this is a beta test, if this is a precursor to something much bigger and far worse, then it is all the more important for people to stand up and say, “No.”

Fitts: Absolutely. So, I want to mention Congressman Thomas Massie, who is our Hero of the Quarter for the 1st Quarter 2020. Congressman Massie is from Kentucky, and he demanded that Pelosi, as required by the Constitution, have a quorum and take a recorded vote. Pelosi was forced to do a quorum. She did not do a recorded vote, and that is so that every incumbent can claim that they weren’t for it. It’s quite extraordinary.
The President let them get away with that, and it was very interesting to watch Congressman Massie because the President and Kerry – Democrats and Republicans – attacked him wholeheartedly. He kept saying, “Look, this is the law.”

The economic model has diverged so far from the Constitution and the law. All of Congress was furious at him for bringing up that uncomfortable point. Imagine what would happen if he asked for the $21 trillion back!

Farrell: Exactly, and this is the other thing that I think we are watching in the beta test. How much can they get away with in terms of shutting down fundamental rights in the name of a ‘plandemic’? We have church closures, we are being told that we can’t go to parks, we are being told how far we have to be away from each other if we are out in public, etc.

What is appalling to me is that people are willing to allow local governments, or even state governments, to trample on their rights in the name of a ‘plandemic’, which is beyond their jurisdiction to begin with.

If the Constitution says that the Federal government can’t do this, well then how are mayors and state governors getting away with it?

Fitts: Here is the challenge: How do you fight against something invisible that you can’t prove doesn’t exist? That is the challenge.

In every one of these situations they keep using the magic exponential curve. “It is going to go up the magical exponential curve.” I am really trying to listen to all the nurses and doctors I know who are dealing with this in this situation. We will talk about this more when we get to Food & Health, but there is definitely something going on. Something happened in Wuhan, and something happened in Italy. We will talk about what that might be, but the doctors are not quite clear what in the world is happening, and there is nothing that would indicate that it is a natural virus that fits all the scientific tests of what a virus is and how it behaves.

So you have many very intelligent, capable people dealing with something that they don’t know what it is, and there are people dying. It could just be a really bad flu, but something is happening. The question is: What?
Right now, the mortality curve from everything that I can tell planetary is not out of normal. But it’s hard to disprove something that is invisible that hasn’t yet been defined.

Farrell: That, and the other problem is that the concentrations of where you are seeing severe outbreaks and deaths; they are in some rather bizarre places. You have concentrations in New York and the DC corridor, in the West Coast, Northern Italy, etc. If you look at those concentrations, how in the world did this spread?

Fitts: I will tell you how. You have China, and like the Bubonic Plague, it spreads across the Silk Road and into Italy. Italy was the one country that did a deal with China on the BRIC road.

So far this year, the investment in the Silk Road is down 50%, so it’s working. Iran, of course, is right in the middle of that. So it’s China, their one G7 partner, and Iran right in the middle. So, if you were going to destroy China and the dedollarizers (the anti-dollar syndicate), that was the first run.

Now who is in charge of the dollar syndicate? It’s London and New York, right?

Now here is what is interesting: The beltway is Virginia, Maryland, and DC. DC right now has 928 cases according to the Reuters map. If you add all of Virginia and all of Maryland, you have 6,000 cases. In the meantime, New York has 122,000 cases.

The capital of military intelligence has 6,000, and the capital of financial has 122,000. What does that tell you?

Farrell: It tells me that there is something going on. When you and I did the previous interview on this story, we discussed that China was going to pay a heavy geopolitical price for this. That is why I think this thing was orchestrated. But the concentrations now that we are seeing emerge has me wondering if this virus story is being used by another faction to fight back.

In other words, we started with the hypothesis that ‘Mr. Globaloney’ had come up with this as a means to cripple China and to put the globe on some sort of planetary lockdown while they do the financial reset. However, with the concentrations that are emerging now, I wonder if their weapon is being turned back against them.
It’s only due to these odd concentrations we have seen emerge that I am proposing that hypothesis.

Fitts: A question surfaced in New York. There was that wonderful video that went around about all the hospitals that are empty. You have press reports saying, “The hospitals are overflowing,” and then people determined that that CBS footage came from a hospital in Italy, not here. You clearly have some very staged-looking coverage.

We had a subscriber who rode her bicycle to Bellevue and Beth Israel hospitals – all empty; everything is totally empty.

Farrell: In New York City?

Fitts: Yes, totally empty. I have the video up on our video server, and have permission to publish them, and will put them up with this. They are totally empty.

I’ve checked with people in the boroughs, and they say that the hospitals are busy. But I will tell you that the reports of hospitals where the only dying is occurring, their cash flow is coming in from all over the country.

Farrell: I’ve seen some of those videos of people going out and videoing hospitals and showing empty parking lots or nearly empty parking lots. In other words, that tells me that, in a certain sense, the pushback has begun. People are starting to question the ‘propatainment media’ on their narrative.

The thing is we need much more of that. We need it in every community and every state. That is an indicator of, “We are saying no.”

Fitts: One of my concerns is if you look at the S-curve, where cases are going up the S-curve, you are watching dramatic drops of reports of pneumonia and other things. You really begin to think that everything is being reclassified; if someone has strep, “It’s COVID-19.”

Farrell: I’m glad that you mentioned that because this is the other part of the story that has bothered me. How are they categorizing the numbers? There is a case in Germany – and I’ve blogged about this – where an elderly man had died of coronavirus, but it turns out that this patient had all sorts of heart complications etc. His doctor said, “He probably would have died anyway.”
But because he had tested positive for the coronavirus, he was put into the statistics as a victim. So, are we even sure of the numbers of this?

Fitts: Not at all. I think that the numbers are absolutely manipulated.

Farrell: I do, too, and that is my point. We have the financial manipulators falsifying the numbers on this. They are borrowing the accounting trick playbook from what they’ve been doing for the last 30 years, and they have plugged it into this whole operation. So, this is the other thing that disturbs me.

This whole media narrative is ‘shot through’ with problems top to bottom, and the testing is a part of it and how they are keeping the statistics is a part of it.

Fitts: The danger is that if you look at the amount of money that they are pushing out on the stimulus, this is the ultimate cut-and-run. If you look at the ability to still sell treasuries into the pension funds and steal the rest, it’s very real. There is still plenty to be stolen, and there is no doubt that you can buy real estate cheap if you shut down all of Main Street.

Let’s turn to Story #3.

Story #3: Plandemic Winners and Losers – Disaster Capitalism Rock & Roll

Needless to say, I am sure that you are grateful that you run Giza Death Star and not Carnival Cruise Lines.

Farrell: Yes!

Fitts: I would not want to be running the cruise lines right now.

Farrell: I would not want to be running cruise lines or casinos or theatres or amusement or theme parks or anything like that.

Fitts: Travel tourism and the airlines are clearly devastated. It shows you how leveraged companies have been running without reserves. This idea of going back and spending all your free cash to buy shares in the open market has certainly run the stock market up, but it has left all of these companies ‘over a barrel’.
Farrell: From what I’ve been tracking, – and I’m sure that you have been tracking – they are apparently making runs on the revolving lines of credit.

Fitts: Boeing took down its line of credit. Boeing has offered early retirement to every one of its employees – all 161,000 employees.

Boeing was in real trouble over the 737 and some other issues coming into this. Boeing has had a really rough ride, but is Boeing looking around the world saying that air traffic is going to be cut dramatically from here on out?

Farrell: That could be. That is an aspect of this whole op or ‘plandemic’. I think that was part of the plan. I don’t know if you are aware of it, but the state department announced that they are not issuing new passports. In other words, they have effectively turned the country into a prison. That happened recently.

Fitts: I had no idea!

Farrell: It’s unbelievable, but the bailouts of these companies and the Fed printing of money is bothering me because none of this is going to Main Street; it is all going to these corporations. And then you have the Trump Administration saying, “Well, we want an equity stake if we are bailing you out.” So how is that going to work?

It bothers me because this is an unprecedented step for this country, and it is a major financial reset if that plan goes through.

Fitts: Here is the thing: It’s more than just a reset because if it goes on for another month, you are going to break up massive numbers of supply chains.

In Russia, we have estimates of the population dropping within two to three years by 25 million or more. So, you are talking about a very significant die-off that can come as a result of breaking up those supply chains and the economic problems.

Goldman Sachs had a meeting with some of its private clients and announced their estimate was that the GDP would contract in the second quarter by 24%, and in the 3rd quarter it would all come roaring back out. They made it sound as though this was, what you and I would call, a test. So this was not the permanent reset; this was a test.

I have absolutely no way of telling whether this is a test or a permanent reset.
Farrell: I don’t either, but I get the feeling that it is a test, and that the people – at least the medical people who are a part of this – are experiencing a certain amount of panic. In other words, I think that they are losing control of the narrative. We are seeing this with the hospital stories and with the people going out and videoing these hospitals with their empty parking lots. We are seeing the chatter going up on the internet, and people are ‘digging’ like I’ve never seen before.

The Soros story which I posted on the website shows that people are digging into this narrative like nothing I’ve ever seen before.

Fitts: It’s wonderful.

Farrell: It is wonderful. The narrative is beginning to collapse, and this is the other part of the problem. As it is beginning to collapse, more and more people are asking the question, “If this is all true, then why are we holed up in our homes?”

So I think it is a test for that reason. The Goldman Sachs story is hugely significant. What do they know?

Fitts: I bring Goldman Sachs up because they have a history of remarkably accurate predictions, which would lead you to believe that the ‘rigger’ really does know what they are rigging.

The primary tactic that the West used to bring down the Soviet Union in 1989 was the oil card. Jim Norman wrote a fabulous book called The Oil Card, and in the Solari library, there are several great interviews with Jim Norman about his book, which I think is a must-read if you want to understand that decade.

No doubt that if you stop the global economy, the oil price comes down. We are watching an unprecedented oil glut, and people are talking about a price of oil at zero. If you look at China plus the dedollarizers, many of the dedollarizers were oil producers. So, anybody who is dependent on oil revenues is choking right now.

Farrell: Let’s remember another story in this respect, and in respect to the idea that we may be watching a ‘plandemic’ that was designed for some sort of financial reset and energy system reset. That was the story a few years ago of the Rockefeller interests divesting themselves of all petroleum stock.
We put all these things together and take a long view, and it looks like, number one, this was planned. Number two, they are beginning to take aim at, not only the petro dollar system, but the petro part of the equation.

Fitts: It does look like, to a certain extent, Greta has been put in charge of the global economy.

Farrell: It does.

Fitts: One other thing that I wanted to mention is that we have seen a many different Congressional and Administration attacks to try to destroy the post office because we know that we have numerous private companies who are ‘licking their chops’ to acquire that whole franchise. But now we see the post office announcing that if this continues, they can’t function and will go under sometime this year. It depends on who you listen to. We saw the US announce that it is coming out of the UN agreement on international postage.

Do you have any thoughts on what is happening to the mail?

Farrell: I really haven’t given it that much thought, but my worst-case scenario right ‘off the top of my head’ would be that if you are going to bring in a digital system of currency, the last thing you want is for people to have the ability to communicate the ‘good old-fashioned way’ by snail mail.

Fitts: Although they are scanning and reading everything, and that is what I think is happening with the snail mail.

Farrell: I wouldn’t be a bit surprised, still, even with snail mail, you have to have human resources in those post offices running those things. In other words, if you are going to do this, you are going to try to take away any analog means of communication that you can. People just have to say, “No.”

As far as the Constitution is concerned, the mail is in there. It is part of the whole establishment that was set up. So, there are Constitutional issues involved here, and I don’t think that it behooves us to turn all this over to private corporations.

Do we want the same people delivering our mail and reading it that have created this mess? My answer is, “No”.
Fitts: In the 1990’s, I would fly around the United States, and they were refurbishing and spending a fortune rebuilding or reconstructing the airports and turning them into shopping malls. I kept thinking, “How are they going to get people to shop at the airports?”

Then 9/11 happened ten years after this started, and I thought, “Oh, they knew.” They knew that they were going to be able to force people to spend two hours at the airports. But if you look at the planning and the design, they were building out the capacity knowing that in ten years somebody would hit the switch and we would all be at the airport for two hours before the flight.

I’ve been driving all over the United States and looking at all the Amazon-type warehouses that are going up. They are building massive warehouses so they can deliver and reengineer most retail into online plus delivery. I’ve been thinking, “How are they going to use all that capacity this quickly?”

Then this happens. Of course, Walmart and Amazon are going ‘gangbusters’, and I said, “Oh, there you go.”

We are all having to buy online now. I’m buying online, and I am sure that you are buying online because that is what we have to do.

Story #4: The AI Superpowers Rebalance the China Trade

You and I have been talking since 2014 about how we are going to rebalance the China trade, and I guess we are going to do it with a ‘bang or a whimper’.

Farrell: This whole thing has been tailor-made to strike China and the Silk Road project. It is extremely interesting to note how Xi has responded to this. He is openly balking that this was a bio-warfare strike, that the US military is behind it, and that China is going to have to respond in kind somehow.

Fitts: Did Xi say this?

Farrell: Oh, yes, he came right out and said this.

Fitts: I didn’t realize that. I know that one of his ministers had said something to that effect, but I didn’t realize he had said something.
Farrell: Interestingly enough, when Xi made these statements, he spoke in Confucianist language. He made no reference whatsoever to communist ideology or to the communist party or things like that; he used terms, judging from the articles that I’ve seen, that are rooted in Confucianism.

That is a very telltale sign that his regime has been severely weakened by this.

Fitts: I don’t know if you remember the 2016 Annual Wrap Up. It was about the global harvest and who was an importer and who was an exporter. One of the things I said was that all your life, you’ve lived in a period of plentiful food, and you want to make sure you live in a jurisdiction that has a net food surplus. You do not want to live in a country that has a net food deficit.

As expected, in China they are at a net food deficit. Of course, given what has happened with the African Swine Flu, they are in an even greater net food deficit than they were two years ago. So, China is deeply dependent on the US and the Anglo-American Alliance for food.

Farrell: The other thing that has recently happened is there was an article in TASS (Russian news agency) that confirms our view that this was, at least in part, designed to strike a blow geopolitically and economically against China. This article in TASS is reporting that Russia has suspended all of its aid to Iran in terms of its buildout of the Iranian rail network.

So that tells me that Russia is not only distancing from Iran, but to a certain extent, from China as well.

Fitts: I think that Russia took one look at what was about to begin and realized that they didn’t have the capacity to fight this, so they are going to have to duck on this one.

If you look at what Putin did with reengineering the cabinet and the government; I told you that this was a war cabinet. He is getting ready for war. That is why I think that Herman Gref’s, (the CEO of Sberbank) interview is so prescient. It was telling us what was going to happen in 2020.
Farrell: Putin was basically offered a choice: China or Europe. I think that for the short-term and mid-term he has decided to go with Europe, but over the long-term, he is going to do some deals with Japan; he is going to cut some deals with Japan. We will talk more about Japan when we get to Geopolitics because there is other Japanese news.

Fitts: Japan is really in the squeeze; they have a tricky ‘row to hoe’.

Story #5: No Place to Go: Equity, Fixed Income, Real Estate, Precious Metals Markets

One thing that we saw in the first quarter was investors complaining that they had no place to go. Where do you go? The stock market was going down, and fixed income has been wildly volatile, and, of course, the credit quality is dramatically lowering.

If you are going to shut down all the small businesses in the world and all the household income, how exactly is real estate supposed to work?

The precious metals market is interesting. Gold is up for the year. So, that is the best performing class other than Amazon and Zoom stocks. With precious metals, gold is up and silver has gotten ‘clobbered’. The last time that I looked, silver was down 20%. Gold has been up 4-5%, but we see dealers around the world suddenly announcing that you can’t get your gold out of your pooled accounts; they will cash you out and give you dollars.

So as one headline says, the gold market is really breaking down. But I think that a lot of effort is made to make sure that the price doesn’t skyrocket.

Farrell: The gold market is breaking down, but the other thing that is happening in the gold market, as far as I can tell, is that you are now seeing a huge divergence between real gold and paper gold. That old game is coming to an end, too. So, there is some sort of reset going on there. That is what it appears to me.

Fitts: My concern is that governments are going to do everything that they can to either seize or stop it. We see Germany tamping down on gold sales because they want the gold for the central banks.
What has happened in the short run, which is good for the dollar, is we have seen much more of our money move into the dollar at the Treasury. Earlier, the Treasury long ETF was up 23% if you can imagine that.

You and I know based on FASAB 56, and the danger that this is a cut-and-run, the credit quality of what a Treasury is has plummeted.

Farrell: You have pointed out another story here that needs to be mentioned. The Pentagon is now insisting that all of its budget be completely black.

Fitts: Which argues tremendously for a cut-and-run. I’m not saying that it’s a cut-and-run because it is still too early to tell, but if you keep your budgets and appropriations secret, then your ability to steal through FASAB 56 just skyrockets.

As one person said to me, “It’s like a missile flying into the Office of Naval Intelligence and accounting office at the Pentagon on 9/11.” Here we go again; this is the false flag 9/11 part two.

I should point out that one of the narratives that was breaking down in addition to the missing money, was the University of Alaska finally published its 9/11 study formally right in the middle of this. My vote on the people who did this are the same people who did 9/11.

Geopolitics. Since there are no markets anymore, you can’t talk about the markets without talking about geopolitics. It’s geopolitical finance that we are in.

Story #6: Mr. Global Pushes the Red Button – Test Run or Cut and Run?

Farrell: I think it’s a bit of both, but I am leaning a little more towards the latter. One of the hints for me is what just came out of Japan; the Abe government in Japan has decided to pursue its own space force.

Fitts: What? This is huge!
Farrell: Yes, this is huge, but here is the thing: The story that I will be blogging about later is written by a Japanese man who points out that the budget for this force is approximately 400 million yen, which is ‘chicken feed’. But what is very interesting are the goals that he announced for this. The goals state that Japan has to be prepared to have a space force that is capable of taking out enemy communications with electromagnetic means; destroy satellites that interfere with their cyber operations.

In other words, the long-term goal here is that Japan is talking about the complete militarization of space. The word that they are using is that Japan must pursue space and ‘superiority’. That is huge.

Fitts: Japan is deeply dependent on supply lines for oil. If they are working on putting solar planets in the sky, those solar plants cannot work for them unless they have sufficient military superiority to protect them.

Farrell: Exactly. The way this article is phrased is that even though it mentions those technologies, it does so in a phrase that says, “Pursuing technologies including these things.”

In other words, what they are not saying is, “We are going to pursue other technologies, too – Rods of God and so on.”

Fitts: We are now talking about weaponry that is much more powerful than nuclear weapons. We are just going to leapfrog the nuclear question.

Farrell: Right, that is exactly my reading. They are doing this because they are dependent right now on very long supply lines. But, again, I am looking at Russia and Japan. I think that you are going to see those two countries draw very, very close together. Russia has oil.

Fitts: Here is why this is important: If you look over the last 20 years, the US is much more afraid of Japan than they are of China because Japan is an engineering juggernaut that is unbelievable.
Farrell: Exactly, and let’s not forget the other interesting story that I mentioned in the last quarter. The Japanese had been invited by the Russians to run refrigerator cars over the Trans-Siberian. The way that I am reading this is that what the Russians are really asking the Japanese to do is to come in and inspect the track beds and look at how to build these out for high-speed rail.

Japan is the other big high-speed rail technology power in Asia besides China.

Fitts: Right, and their quality is much more trusted.

Farrell: I think you are going to see something happen between Russia and Japan because Russia is being squeezed by this whole coronavirus issue to make choices between China and Europe. But I think in the long-term, Russia realizes, “Okay, if we are going to be forced to break with China, we still have aspirations to build out the infrastructure in Siberia and so on. Who do we turn to? Well, we turn to Japan.”

Fitts: I would say there are a hundred really fascinating theories of what happened in Wuhan. You could spend a lifetime reading them. One of the more interesting theories was that it was the Japanese bio-warfare division that did it.

I can’t imagine that would happen without Anglo-American Alliance agreeing to it at some intelligence level, but I don’t think that many people realize how deep the competition goes between Japan and China, and how there is danger of China taking over hegemony of the South China Sea. If it is terrifying to the dollar syndicate, it is deeply terrifying to the Japanese.

Farrell: Yes, and the other thing is we have to remember that Abe has already been playing this very careful, diplomatic game for quite some time. We have a new Emperor now in Japan as well, Naruhito. So, there are big changes going on over there, but there is another story about Japan that is also interesting with respect to this geopolitical bio-warfare plandemic scenario, and that is the way that Japan decided to respond to it.

They took the idea that they were not going to lock the country down; what they were going to do is treat the cases. They were simply going to let it happen. That tells me that they were aware from the ‘get-go’ that this was a ‘plandemic’. Their response is almost unique in the world.
Fitts:  Taiwan did the same. The UK tried to do it, and then Mr. Global ‘came down on their head’.

So, we see the Pentagon send senior staff into the underground bunkers, and other patterns – including some of the things with hospitals and hospital ships – that would indicate this is preparation for a much hotter war.

Farrell:  Well, we have seen the Trump Administration call up a million reservists. The way that I am reading that is they are getting ready for something. The question is: What?

A million reservists are more than enough to put down rioting and looting. So what is really going on here? Are they preparing for an invasion? Are they planning to invade somebody? I don’t know.

Fitts:  Clearly, between Iran and Venezuela, there is a real push. I don’t know if you read Maduro’s letter about the US declaring him to be a narco terrorist. Maduro wrote a letter that fundamentally said, “Look who’s talking!” It was rather funny if you know the history.

So, we are running the poppy fields in Afghanistan, and we won’t let go because we have to control the poppy fields, but we are calling Maduro (president) out.

We are sending war ships to Venezuela, and Russia took out Rosneft (Russian energy company) on the oil, and they moved the oil to a state company to remove the private concerns. So, the chances of war in Venezuela or an invasion in Venezuela look real to me.

Farrell:  They do to me, too. They are using this coronavirus story as cover for plenty of other activities. This military call-up is part of it.

My question is: Why with Venezuela, would you need to activate continuity of government operations and put everybody in the bunker in Cheyenne Mountain (military installation in Colorado)? That indicates to me that there is something much bigger going on, but I have not a clue what it might be.
Fitts: Let me give you a theory of what is likely. This doesn’t mean that it’s true, but it is likely. I think that some of the bio-warfare here can be triggered with electromagnetic manipulation. So, the naval commander complains about not getting the support that he needs concerning the quarantine of the sailors on his aircraft carrier, and suddenly he tests positive for COVID-19. Boris Johnson suddenly tested positive, or Rand Paul votes against the stimulus bill, and suddenly he tests positive.

I think that you are looking at something using invisible technology; the cartels that you are competing with have the ability to literally give you COVID-19.

Farrell: That could very well be.

Fitts: Or you have whatever it is – whether it’s the nanoparticles or whatever is permeating in your system. We all have it in our system, and the only thing they have to do is excite it.

I dealt with both low-grade biological warfare and electromagnetic harassment combined when I lived in Washington. Each of them individually is not lethal. It was when the combination happened that you got into real trouble. And you could see that both players had deniability. “I’m doing this, and that’s not lethal,” and, “I’m doing this, and that’s not lethal.” But what you need to know is that if you mix it, you have something that is potentially lethal.

Farrell: The other thing I think adds weight to that scenario is that Russia responded so quickly to this whole thing.

Fitts: They shut down so fast that if you blinked, you missed it. It’s amazing.

Farrell: Yes, and I go back to what I have blogged about on my website before and what we have talked about; all that Cold War era and Soviet research into bioweapons. People have to understand that much of that research was in electromagnetic applications of bio-warfare. In other words, it was to induce diseases by creating an electromagnetic template of that disease. That is what I think the whole business of the Soviet irradiation of the American Embassy during the Cold War was all about.

I think that you have to look at the way Russia has responded to all of this. I think they had intelligence very early on, and probably a means of detection of some of this going on.
Fitts: I would really encourage subscribers to go back and watch The Wave Genome in our Future Science Series by Ulrike Granögger. It goes into many of these issues, and into some of the Russian research. It is a very useful background on this.

Farrell: Let me mention something else that your listeners and readers might be interested in. Procure a book by Lieutenant Colonel Tom Bearden, U.S. Army retired called Gravitobiology. It is a book that he published many years ago about this Soviet era research.

It is a very technical book, but it lays out what they were doing in extraordinary detail. It is definitely germane to what we have been talking about with the idea of a bio-electromagnetic type of technology.

Fitts: One of the narratives that was breaking down more and more implied that the kickback system in Congress and official Washington and global leadership was much worse than even I dreamed. We see Congress and the intelligence committees briefed on the ‘plandemic’ and suddenly, they were all buying or repositioning or selling their stocks. This is significant insider trading, and they are just doing it.

These are things that get reported. They clearly felt no compunction to not inside-trade the intelligence.

Farrell: And they are doing it brazenly and openly now. This is another area of the pushback; most of those stories have not been reported by the ‘propatainment media’.

Fitts: You have to say that phrase again!

Farrell: I call it the ‘propatainment media’.

Fitts: That’s fantastic!

Farrell: You said that we needed a new term for them.

Fitts: There you go! That is fantastic, and you just earned the Nobel Peace Prize for that!

Farrell: I don’t want one, thank you. I would have to rub shoulders with Greta.
This is another one of those stories where you see the pushback coming from the alternative media. If I’m not mistaken, those stories about the senators selling their stock before all this happened were exposed in the alternative media. Finally, the ‘propatainment’ people picked up on it and ran a couple of stories, and then they quit talking about it.

Fitts: It was rather funny. On Wall Street when the next generation came up, I was already a partner. The persons on the trading floor would ‘go crazy’ because they didn’t keep secrets from each other; they would share information. They weren’t Lone Rangers; they were Ninja Turtles. They would say, “How are we supposed to run a bonus system if these guys are sharing information?”

They depended on everybody keeping everything secret, and it was ‘driving them crazy’. The reality is that part of what the ‘propatainment’ group is up against is the independent media is trying to figure out what is going on, and they are sharing like ‘crazy’; they are flat-out sharing.

I think it is one of the things that whenever Mr. Global is pushing the red button, it is because the narrative control just keeps breaking down again and again. The learning speed is too fast.

That is why some people are afraid that they are going to shut down the internet. I tried to figure out how we could do The Solari Report through phone conference calls, and I discovered that all the phones are dependent on the internet. In fact, we had terrible denial of service attacks once we put Jon Rappoport’s new discussion on the ‘plandemic’ up. We were hit with 48 hours of massive denial of server. It was so bad, in fact, that AT&T was hit, too. Their phone system wasn’t working in parts of the country because they are so dependent on the internet.

Farrell: I can believe it. They are trying to shut down all means of communication within the inflection points of people who are in opposition to this whole thing. I don’t think they are going to be successful because doing that, in a certain sense, affects their ability to communicate as well.
Fitts: The very demonic parts of this have come ‘out of the closet’, and one of the challenges that I have had for the last 20 years is I would get people saying to me, “In 2000, I thought that you were certifiably crazy. In 2005, I thought that you had some points, but I wanted nothing to do with you. Then in 2008 to 2010, I realized that maybe you knew some things. Now I realize, ‘Oh’.”

Story #7: Cracks in the United States, European Union, and Global System

Whatever the fundamental relationships and organizations have been in the US or the EU or the global system, bye-bye Bretton Woods (international monetary system). That is gone.

Farrell: That is gone ‘bigtime’.

Fitts: There was the funniest video, and I put it up on my Twitter. It’s an Italian minister in front of his camera, and he is so angry. He got up and took down the European Union flag and put up the Italian flag because the Italians were negotiating with the Germans over emergency help with what was happening in Italy, and Germany basically ‘stiffed them’.

We saw the Italians announce that they were thinking of using Italian government buildings as collateral on loans. We know that one of the reasons they threw in with China was because China agreed to lend them money.

Farrell: The other thing that we have to look at with the EU is that this complete story is breaking that whole project down as far as I can tell. Not only do you have Italian ministers replacing the EU flag, but you have the French burning it.

Fitts: I love the French! The French have done some amazing things over the last year. God love them!

Farrell: Don’t get the French protesting because things can get out of hand very fast, as President de Gaulle learned.

This whole EU thing is very weird because I go back to a story that took my breath away. The German constitutional court struck down as ‘unconstitutional’ Germany’s adherence to the unified European Union Court of Patents.
Fitts: That’s huge!

Farrell: I thought, “That is gigantic!” The timing of it was important as well. Why now? It takes a certain amount of time for any court system to work up to a constitutional level. That is the German equivalent of the Supreme Court, in a certain sense. But the timing of it is very, very interesting.

I suspect that this coronavirus issue may crack apart the EU ultimately.

Fitts: If you are the dollar syndicate and want to protect against coming apart – if you want to keep the dollar going – your number one competitor is Europe.

Farrell: Exactly.

Fitts: One of my concerns is that the euro had run up on the reserve currency status. The euro went up to 26 or 27. All of the attacks on Europe, whether it was the immigrants or some of what we are seeing now, has run it back down to 20%. It appears like a dollar defense.

Farrell: That’s the way it looks to me, too, but let’s put it differently. I think that the days of Cold War American support for the European project are over. That is what is coming out of this. The way that you see the Italians, the Germans, and the French behaving, I really don’t see the euro project going on much longer. It makes no sense.

The contradictions are now there for all to see. On the one hand, you have national policies with respect to coronavirus. But then you have the European Union itself insisting that the borders stay open. So, you are on a collision course right there.

Fitts: I believe the logical thing to happen is the old Hanseatic League getting back together again. So, you have Germany, Netherlands, and the Northern European industrial juggernaut coming together, and Spain, Greece, Italy, and the South go their own way.

Farrell: I think that this is precisely what is going to happen. I think that you are going to see a return to the old exchange rate mechanism that lead to the euro in the first place. Let’s remember what that was. I talked about that in the Covert Wars books.
That mechanism was a process whereby the national currencies of the Netherlands and Austria and so on were pegged to the German D-mark. I think that you are going to have to see something like that happen. The test case there is going to be France. Where does France fall? Is it going to be a part of that mechanism, or is it not?

I think that Europe in the next ten years is going to crack apart into a very different entity than we see now, just based on the financial aspects of all this.

Fitts: The problem with the EU is that it was trying to centralize in a way that destroyed the overall economy and productivity of the productive people. When you confer with somebody who runs a factory, it is the same anger that you see in the United States and that you certainly saw before the Trump election.

The productive people are trying to be over-regulated; they are sick of technocracy. If you look at the cracks in the system, Mr. Global is pushing the red button and trying to centralize even further.

Farrell: And it’s not going to work. It won’t work simply for the reason that you have different national economies in Europe. You have economies in Southern Europe, and you have France off in its own little thing, and then you have those very, very productive economies in Northern Europe. So, something has to give sooner or later.

Fitts: I think you are describing the economies of fields. So, we are biophysical beings, and we have culture. Our culture somehow organizes in morphogenetic fields, and it creates highly different economies that are based in the culture.

I think that ‘nutty’ Mr. Global thinks that he can biochip and mind control us all and somehow he doesn’t have to worry about any of that irritating, complex ‘stuff’ anymore.

Farrell: The bad news is—which you hinted at it in one of your later points in your outline that we will get back to—that if you go ahead and create this human cyborg entity, who is to say that the pushback from the human side is not going to be entirely what ‘Mr. Globaloney’ expects that it will be?

Fitts: I’m sure that it is going to be something like that. The history of the success of freedom is that it looks hopeless, and then freedom wins. Clearly, that intelligence is out of control.
We saw Gordon Brown (British politician) come out and announce that we needed a one-world government. It's as if everybody is killing each other and war is breaking out everywhere, and the solutions is that we are all going to come together in a big ‘Kumbaya’ (efforts at unity) and have a one-world government. It’s like, “What? Gordon, what is happening that you don’t understand?”

Farrell: The ‘nuttiness’ of the idea of a global government has always disturbed me. If you think that the American Federal government is big and unresponsive, or that the ‘Brussel sprouts’ in Brussels are big and unresponsive to national and cultural and local needs, just imagine a global government. Do you want the UN running things?

I listened to the speech by Prime Minister Brown, and I thought, “You have said everything against your own case because the ‘Kumbaya’ experiment certainly didn’t work in Europe. Now we are going to make it global and amalgamate everything?”

It won’t work and it can’t work because you have too many different cultures and ‘Mr. Globaloney’ just doesn’t pay attention to culture. It’s out of that cultural matrix that economies form. So, how are they going to run a global economy with that kind of philosophy?

Fitts: I think his theory is that you take whatever is in the vaccine, you get everybody microchipped, and you get everybody full of whatever you are putting in the vaccines, and somehow you are going to mind control them into one culture.

Farrell: Good luck with that! If you are going to have everybody on the globe plugged into your system, what happens when they decide to push back?

Fitts: I have a theory, and I think that Mr. Global – to keep himself in control and to keep things running—wants to run things with AI. The narrative keeps getting ahead. He keeps losing control of the narrative, and he keeps saying, “Look, the human middle managers can’t do this. We will put this on AI,” but I think part of it is that they can’t figure out how to teach the robots and the software how to do what they need to do. If they can get all the humans connected to the machine, then the humans will teach the software and the AI.

The quality of any AI program is not the software or developers or the algorithms, but it is who has the most data. So if you hook all the humans up, that is how you get the most data; you digitize all living things.
That is the spraying, you get the data, and then the humans teach the AI how to do this. That is my theory.

Farrell: It is precisely that theory that I was referring to – your theory on AI and hooking people up. We have the idea in our heads that the push is going to be all from the side of the machine from the AI to the humans. But the very idea that you need a human interface to be able to think or process data, and you get everybody hooked up like that, at some point they may decide to go in a direction that the global dictators don’t want them to go in – and that is when they go after you.

Fitts: I have something really ‘delicious’ to tell you. We have a team member who is extraordinarily intelligent and perceptive. I said, “Do me a favor. I want you to go through Lieber Research’s website and identify all the things we need a record of so that if they take down the website we can finish doing our research on what these individuals were up to.”

They came back to me and said, “Do you realize that Lieber was in dialogue with Elon Musk in the Neuralink Group?”

I said, “What is this, a comic book? Is this a comic book?”

Farrell: No, it’s a bad Hollywood B movie starring Boris Karloff.

Honestly, you can’t make this up!

Fitts: It’s all being financed by Epstein, right? I didn’t get a chance to look at it because I was preparing for our talk, but somebody sent me an article saying that Bill Gates and Clinton were much more involved with Epstein than earlier indicated. You know that is all coming out now.

Farrell: This is another thing about this coronavirus event. If you are paying attention, there are many other stories coming out right now. I have to wonder if they are coming out for a reason, or are they being ignored because the coronavirus story has ‘sucked the air’ out of all the other stories?

Fitts: I think that part of it is that people are throwing info bombs back and forth.

Farrell: That could be, too.
Fitts: I think that the factions are at each other’s throats now.

Farrell: I do, too. Sidney Powell (producer, author) gave a talk recently at Hillsdale College where she was mentioning that she had seen some of the things on the Wiener (Anthony) laptop, and much of it is prosecutable, and, “You wouldn’t believe that a lot of it is prosecutable,” and, “It’s no wonder that New York cops threw up when they saw this…”

I was thinking, “What a time for this thing to come back into the news!”

Fitts: The time has come to put the entire contents of the Wiener laptop up on the internet.

Story #8: Unemployment and the Crisis on Main Street – Main Street Pushes Back

There are many different ways to start this, but tell me what you are seeing where you are. We’ve had 10 million unemployment claims so far, and Mnuchin (Treasury Secretary) told Congress that it could go to 33 million plus.

Farrell: I don’t go out that much but one thing that I have noticed where I live is that none of this seems to be affecting anybody’s normal daily activity.

Fitts: But you live in a state where people are a bit more sensible; you’re in the heartland.

Farrell: Yes, they are more sensible, but I can’t detect any massive slowdown. A couple of my neighbors have their own businesses, and they are continuing to do their business. I don’t see much of a change.

One of the things that I do detect here locally is that my local talk radio stations have been doing local shows about coronavirus and community response etc. So, they have decided to become part of the ‘propatainment’ media at a local level, but they are so thoroughly disconnected from the actual responses that I am seeing.

Most of the people who I am in contact with locally are not buying the narrative. They are just not buying the narrative. As I told you a couple of weeks ago when we did that other interview, I went grocery shopping, and I thought that most people where I live are not going to buy into the hysteria, so it will be safe for me to buy groceries.
I bought groceries, and it was like fighting the ‘Battle of the Somme’. It wasn’t’ because people were panicked or hysterical; it was because they were cynical and skeptical of the whole thing. They are mistrustful of the government, they are mistrustful of what they are hearing on the media, and that has been the attitude.

So once again, we have the media disconnect from what people are actually thinking or saying. We have the local overreaction of mayors shutting down restaurants and so on and all this overreach. I have to wonder what you people know. Are you preparing for some more drastic local response should the Federal government overreach its bounds? I don’t know, but the people themselves are not panicking.

I do know that there are some people locally affected by all of this who are either losing their jobs or they have been put on furlough indefinitely or what have you. There is no ‘rhyme or reason’ for it.

Fitts: We get reports from around the country that Walmart will not sell people seeds because they are nonessential. So, I keep telling everybody, “Plant food, plant food, find your local farm. Where is your food going to be coming from?”

Whether you are growing it or you are networking with other people in your community, you are will have to find a way to create your own food locally. So, we have been ‘beating that drum’ for a while now.

My question is: Does everybody realize that, and are they racing to learn how to do it themselves? Because that is what they will have to do.

Farrell: Where I am, I don’t see that kind of response. I’m not saying that there may not be one, but it’s just that I’m not aware of it.

What I am seeing and hearing is that many people are angered. I listened to one of these local talk shows about the coronavirus, and there were numerous people calling in who were mad that this was going on for so long.

In other words, they are questioning the narrative; they are questioning the reason for all of this so-called social distancing, and sooner or later, the patience is going to run out. That is when things get down to ‘brass tacks’.
Fitts: I’ve seen tremendous interest in people who had no interest a year or two ago in buying a gun and learning how to use it. They are starting to realize that they will have to be responsible for their own safety.

Farrell: Oh yes! I have heard many people from around the country – members of my list and so on – telling me the same thing.

One of my friends told me that where he is, he knows somebody who owns a local gun and ammunition shop. On a normal weekend, he would do approximately $3,000 worth of business. After this coronavirus and all the quarantines being put in place by local authorities where he lives, he said that his friend did $35,000 worth of business in one weekend.

This is another signal that people are not buying the narrative. They are getting ready to fight if need be.

Fitts: It is interesting. One of the reasons I decided to stay in Tennessee in 2006 was that I went to one of the best presentations I have ever seen by the person who was in charge of governmental relations for the Tennessee Firearms Association. He was explaining that the membership of the Tennessee Firearms Association county by county for every county in Tennessee was more than 50% of the regular turnout voters.

Farrell: Oh, I can believe that.

Fitts: I said, “That is the place to live!” I was on a conference call recently with a group of wonderful subscribers from California and that came up. I described that was why I had chosen Tennessee, and they looked at me, and one said, “Wow! I wish it was like that here.”

Farrell: It may be. The other fallout from this whole story that I think is very interesting is that you had all this talk in various parts of the country of succession movements. That has completely disappeared.

That is not to say that those movements have disappeared, but the talk has disappeared. I suspect that given these types of reactions, the talk may have disappeared because people are realizing that it is time for some action. What that action may be, I don’t know.
Fitts: One of the most insulting things I have ever seen was the portion of the stimulus bill that offered $350 billion of loans to small business. So, you steal $65,000 per person, and then you turn around and offer me a loan with my own money, which I am liable. Treasuries are going into my pension fund to finance these loans, and the banks are making money on loan fees. On a $250,000 loan, the bank gets a fee of 5%.

Farrell: The thing that made my blood boil was this ridiculous idea that, “Oh, we are going to send everybody a $1,200 check.”

Fitts: It’s an advance on your next tax refund; it’s not a grant; it’s not a gift.

Johnson & Johnson is getting a $1 billion grant for a vaccine, if I understand it correctly.

Farrell: They are getting the grants, and we are getting a refund on our next taxes. Like you, I am wondering what happened to that $65,000 per person of all that missing money. I would like that back.

Fitts: Somebody sent me an offer for one of the small business loans, and they were proposing a 5.75% interest rate. The banks ultimately behind this, are able to go to the Fed window and borrow for zero percent with zero percent reserve requirement. Unbelievable!

Farrell: That is why I say that it is looking more like cut-and-run.

Fitts: It definitely has the feeling of a cut-and-run. One of the things that I am very worried about is in Story #9.

Story #9: The Drumbeats of War

We have a G7 leadership, and they have kept the bubble going with the China trade and all these different ‘blowing bubbles’. Now that China trade is coming unwound, the bubbles are coming unwound. So, they have to unwind the China trade, and at the same time, they have to cut the economic footprint of their population radically. They are between a ‘rock and a hard place’, and one way to solve this is to go to war.

To what extent is this a cover story for war?
Farrell: I think that it is looking more and more likely that it is precisely that. I don’t think it started that way, but I think that as they have lost control of the scenario and the narrative, they need something else – another emergency – to keep the game going.

If I were to pick between Iran and Venezuela for ‘Mr. Globaloney’, I would definitely say Venezuela. It’s easier.

Iran is a big country, and it has difficult terrain, and all the other things that are associated with it in terms of military operations and logistics. Venezuela is a much easier target. Most of it is industry, and cities are concentrated in a small area.

From a purely military point of view, it is probably going to be Venezuela.

Fitts: That certainly is the signal with Trump getting up there with the generals and talking about drug trafficking.

On March 17th, we saw Netanyahu, who had finally failed to pull together a government, go to trial. His scheduled hearing was March 17th. So, Netanyahu’s career is finally over. We had a Financial Times article declaring that Netanyahu was finally dead, and that leaders around the world wouldn’t accept his phone call. Even Trump had something negative to say about him.

Suddenly, the ‘plandemic’ happens, and, “It’s a miracle, Netanyahu is back in the game”.

If you go back through his history, this is a man who has been saved by extreme events and terrorists and false flags every time. Every time his career is over, then 9/11 happens or assassination of the Prime Minister or many Israelis killed by a Hamas bomb. It’s such an extraordinary coincidence.

Farrell: It is a statistically improbably coincidence. There are no two ways about this; the man is a ‘piece of work’, and let’s not forget another story that came out shortly after all of this coronavirus hysteria began to make the ‘propatainment’ media every night. That was the story that appeared on the internet where the Israelis have announced they were working on a cure and would have a vaccine soon. How convenient!

Fitts: It was unbelievable, and it was right away.
Then, of course, my vote for the people who are the leaders with nonlethal weapons using electromagnetic weapons, including in combination with low-grade biological warfare, are the Israelis.

Farrell: Absolutely, I’m in the ‘same boat’ that you are. I have absolutely no love lost for the ‘Ziocons’; I really don’t.

Fitts: I confess I feel sorry for the Israeli people because they are the ‘Patsies’ running as a sovereign government front for a group of people in Martha’s Vineyard, Beverly Hills, and New York.

I don’t know if you know this, but Netanyahu graduated from Cheltenham High School the year when I associated with and knew many people who dated all the boys at Central, and I used to date some of them. Once you understand that Netanyahu is basically a ‘spoiled kid’ from Cheltenham High, suddenly everything makes sense!

Apropos of 9/11, do you know what his original major was at MIT? Architecture.

Farrell: Isn’t that another wonderful statistically improbably coincidence?

Fitts: It’s amazing! Unfortunately, every time we thought we got rid of Netanyahu, the ‘plandemic’ is back.

I just have to say this: I’m picking on Netanyahu, but I truly believe that Netanyahu would start a global epidemic just to preserve his power. I absolutely believe that.

Farrell: He is part of the ‘Mr. Globaloney’ crowd, so I have no problem believing that either. These people will do anything.

We need to mention something here that I think people need to bear in mind. If this is a ‘plandemic’, then whoever is behind this is guilty of mass murder. That is another reason people need to stand up and just say, “No more.”

Fitts: You can’t have a society that has no law. I go back to the Beck brothers. We have allowed the Beck brothers to get away with ‘anything goes’ for 70 years, and this is what you get; you get a big ‘GD’ mess. A society cannot function without laws. Financial assets are just a creation of law. So if there is no law, then every sovereign bond on the planet is worthless, which is exactly where this is headed.
Farrell: And you can’t have a society not only without law, but you have to have equal application of the law. We are definitely not seeing that – at least in this country. I can’t speak for Europe.

Fitts: That is why they don’t want a currency system. If you put a dollar in your pocket and I put a dollar in my pocket, it is worth the same thing. They want to be able to change the value of yours according to your behavior without changing the value of mine.

Farrell: I am so glad that you said that because this is the danger behind all this cryptocurrency matter.

Fitts: Let’s analyze the word: The word ‘crypt’ is where you go to die, add a ‘zero’ to ‘crypt’, and that is what ‘crypto’ is.

Farrell: And crypto is also hidden, and it is in the hands of the technocrats. Do you want to turn over your financial security to people who can go in and change the value of your holdings – whatever they may be – with the push of a button?

Fitts: It’s not your holding; it’s their holding; this is not your asset. You have a credit at the company store, and the company can change it any time they want. And they can change mine without changing yours. So, we can be played against each other; it is not a currency.

Farrell: Exactly.

Fitts: I have to bring up that as the coronavirus stories were growing and Mr. Global had the ‘shriek-o-meter’ getting the ‘plandemic’ going, NATO delivered 27,000 American troops to Europe for a Defender 2020, a major NATO operation. For several days, they were joined by European troops. You had 40,000 European and US troops running around NATO, creeping up on Russia. For a couple of days, they said, “We are going to keep doing this,” so the travel restrictions and other social distancing don’t apply to the NATO exercise.

I can’t ascertain whether it was Germany or Italy or France that shut it down, but basically the Europeans said, “Get the hell out of here.”
Farrell: I think that it started in Germany, and it was quickly followed by France, and you can’t blame them.

Fitts: I couldn’t figure it out, but here is what was interesting: When was the last time that you saw that group stand up to the Americans?

Farrell: It’s been a long time. I’m thinking that perhaps it was 1933 or 1934.

Fitts: It was strong, it was unified, and the Americans just shut right down.

Farrell: You are going to see more of that, too. I am absolutely convinced you are going to see more of that because during this whole reset, the other thing that we need to be cognizant of is that you are watching the reset of the American empire. You are watching it begin to crack and crumble.

Fitts: Here is the interesting thing: If you look at when this began, China started to lock down in November. So, it has been going on for a while, but when you look at when the ‘plandemic’ started, it was immediately after Britain left the EU.

So, to what extent is this coming out of the city? If there is anyone who runs and protects the dollar city, it’s the city.

Farrell: My interpretation of this is it was a ‘Mr. Globaloney’ op, meaning the city.

Interestingly enough, since we are talking about that, there is another story that just happened. I don’t know if you caught it since you are in Europe. Apparently, Luxembourg has expelled an Edmond Rothschild banker from Luxembourg for ten years.

Fitts: I saw that.

Farrell: We seem to be watching some sort of factional warfare going on because Luxembourg is a big banking center, and for them to take that kind of action against a Rothschild interest is very telling to me.

Fitts: Win-lose is breaking out everywhere. You have a highly centralized system that now has to come unwound, and then you have tremendous win-lose.
The Drumbeats of War story scares me because war can get out of control. War can go in ways that nobody can control; it can really go out of control, especially if you look at the weaponry that you and I believe is ‘knocking’ around.

Get ready to duck! Plant a garden.

Story #10: Blindfold Officials and Citizens: Secrecy and Spin Grow

This planet now operates with so much secrecy, and since 9/11, we have grown from this huge national security state – which is out of control – and it is secret to itself.

I keep going back to Bloomberg. You realize that this man has ‘not a clue’, and part of it is that he is operating as a successful billionaire with everybody telling him that his clothes are beautiful, and he really doesn’t know.

Farrell: He doesn’t, and the secrecy does something else. We are watching the beginnings of something. The secrecy means that we really don’t have a government; what we have are contending factions that want control of the institutions of it. I think that you are going to see this begin to start unraveling unless there are some major, major changes. As long as they have things like FASAB 56, the Pentagon that we mentioned earlier wants to keep all future spending plans secret. There used to be a black budget part of the Pentagon budget, but now they want to make black the entire Pentagon budget.

Fitts: We have FASAB 56 and now the classification of the forward spending taking the Pentagon black. But with the classification laws and the national security waivers of the big corporations and the banks that work with them for the government, they can go secret, too. Then in addition to that, we saw this quote of the FCC announcing that the smaller companies could also be eased from their financial disclosures. Of course, Larry Fink and Senator Warren and Greta continue to insist that the companies disclose their climate change responsibilities.

The one thing that we haven’t touched on is the 2020 Presidential campaign in the United States. To a certain extent, it’s not happening. I would say that the ‘plandemic’ got rid of Bernie Sanders. Would you agree?

Farrell: I think that it did several things, and I think that most of them were part of the design. Yes, it did get rid of Bernie Sanders, but the other thing that it did was take the spotlight off of Joe Biden. It has basically sidelined President Trump’s reelection strategy, which was based around the rallies.

The Biden story is significant because Giuliani started doing those podcasts and releasing the information that he had uncovered during his investigations in Ukraine. As far as I know, and I haven’t checked Giuliani’s website lately to see if he has posted any new material there, but just the fact that I haven’t is an indicator that this story has ‘sucked the air’ out of every other story.

This has sidelined Trump’s election strategy, and Biden is so far gone with dementia or whatever it is that he is suffering that it has taken the heat off of him.
Fitts: I am assuming that they are going to have a brokered convention and replace Biden with someone else. Is that your impression?

Farrell: Biden came out not long ago and made, what I thought, was just an incredible and incredibly stupid statement. He stood up and did his green screen backdrop with the bookshelves behind him, trying to make himself look intelligent, and he said that he had called President Obama, and Obama had told him to pick a female who could be ready to take over on day one.

I’m thinking, “Okay, Joe. If you had a conversation with the former President, probably the former President was thinking that this was off the record and confidential.” In other words, you don’t just blurt that out on national TV.

Fitts: Is this female supposed to be Michelle or Hillary?

Farrell: That is the question. Everybody’s thinking here is they are betting on Hillary, but that’s a ‘dead horse’. I believe that if she runs again, she is going to get trounced more than she was the last time. But the speculation is, “Yes, he is running only so that he can retire quickly after the election and bring in whoever his VP is.”

So, yes, I think that we are headed for a brokered convention. But the question now is: Is there going to be an election at all?

I can’t see a delay, but we have heard from the Democrats that they want mail-in votes, which is a pure recipe for fraud on a massive scale. Trump, to his credit, responded, “No, we are not going to go that route. What we need is voter ID, etc.”

The campaign is non-existent. It has been the most unusual election year that I have ever seen; it is totally non-existent.

Fitts: You and I talked about this when we discussed the missing money. The fact is that the campaign is when people get together and talk about what is really going on and what we should do about it.
When I had said that the Presidential campaigns were the Bohemian Grove for the average man, that has very powerfully and intentionally been destroyed. They are making sure that all that happens on controlled systems where they can do complete surveillance and use AI to manage the narrative.

Farrell: The other odd thing that has happened lately is apparently, the algorithms at Google and other search engines were massively changed so the stories that had been taken down or were not showing up on searches, are back. So something is going on there, but who is to say what it is?

Fitts: We did an interview with Mary Holland, the vice chairman and general counsel of Bobby Kennedy’s Children Health Defense, and we did one with Rappoport. Those two were taken down by Vimeo, but YouTube left them up. It was remarkable.

We put up the new audios by Jon Rappoport about the ‘plandemic’, and suddenly, we were hit with 48 hours of unbelievable ‘denial of service’ attacks. Even Jon can’t get to his audios on our website. But then he had one of his supporters make a video, take the same audios, and put them up on YouTube, and there was no problem.

Farrell: So, something has changed with the algorithms. Whether that is pushback from whatever factions are behind Trump, – because he did mention in recent years about busting up these big media and search engine cartels – there does appear to be some sort of pushback going on. Exactly what it is, I don’t know.

Fitts: I think it’s that they want everything going into Google so that Google can analyze it.

Farrell: That may be, but the other story behind this election cycle is a very, very weird one. Bob Dylan released a song that he had ‘in the can’ for a few years, and then a few days later, the Kennedy grandchildren are on a very strange YouTube video trying to sing. It is very clear that they are singing from a script of some sort. Then shortly after that, you had the so-called canoeing accident with some of the Kennedy grandchildren.
I think that messages are flying and people are dying. This is turning into a real mafia war.

Fitts: We didn’t mention it earlier, but the Department of Justice has asked for permission to basically arrest people without warrants and hold them in secret. One of my concerns about the different governors allowing clemency or allowing people out of prison is that it looks to me like they need killers for the Phoenix Program.

Farrell: That and they need the prison space. The question is: Why? What is really going down here? There is clearly something playing out behind the scenes, but as to what it is, I don’t know. You add all this up – the strange videos, the search engines, the cartel arrests, etc., and the suspension of habeas corpus. There is clearly something else going on. I suspect that part of the reason they want to keep everything locked down is to pull off whatever it is that they are planning to pull off.

Fitts: Daniel Estulin was on the Power Hour and suggested that leaving Trump as the President and not having elections was a very good idea. I sent him an unbelievably nasty note. I said, “Oh, great! A member of Russian intelligence is suggesting that Trump ought to remain President without an election. Thank you, Daniel. Go jump in a lake!”

I was furious and really angry about it. I was on the Power Hour the next week and attacked him for it.

Farrell: There is this talk going on about delaying the election. I find it very, very disturbing. There is internet chat about giving Trump a third term, and I find that very, very disturbing in the midst of everything else happening.

Fitts: Let’s turn to Trump’s Report Card. We have done this every Wrap Up since the election, and we just graded him for the end of 2019. I will run down the categories, which I put in alphabetical order this time.
The Trump Report Card.

‘Accomplishments to Date’. My grades for 2019 were three B’s. In 2017, 2018, and 2019 you gave him B’s and C+’s, and then an A-. So for Accomplishments to Date, how would you say that he has done?

Farrell: I am going to lower him to a C because I can’t figure out what he is doing with this coronavirus response.

Fitts: I think I can tell you.

Farrell: On the one hand, he sounds like he wants to get the economy opened up as soon as possible, and then he turns around and caves to all of these so-called ‘medical experts’. So, he needs to make up his mind: Is he going to play along with this agenda, or is he going to counter-punch?

Fitts: I think he was trying to say that this is overblown, and this is not a big deal. He was trying to ‘pooh-pooh’ it, and in the process, was fighting the shriek-o-meter. The shriek-o-meter and the entrainment got to too many people. He was finding that the crowd was leaving him behind. So, I think that the brainwashing of the general population put him in a corner.

Farrell: That could be, too.

Fitts: One of my favorite documentaries about the shriek-o-meter is Sputnik Fever about how they tried to corner Eisenhower, and he wouldn’t let them. He could do it because he was the General during World War II, and they couldn’t back him into a corner. Essentially since Kennedy, the shriek-o-meter has been able to corner just about every President.

Farrell: That could be. His poll numbers continue to be strong, but I don’t know if that is a residual effect from his ‘pre-plandemic’ popularity or what; it is very, very hard to tell.

Fitts: ‘Building a Team’. For 2019 you gave him a C-. Your last three grades have been C, D-, C-, and mine have been D, F, and F. So, what say you now for Building a Team?
Farrell:  D- because the way that he has kowtowed to the so-called medical experts bothers me. He has flip-flopped a lot on this Dr. Fauci character and Dr. Birx. I don’t think that he has a coherent idea of where he wants to go with this story, but time will tell.

Fitts:  One of the most interesting moments was when he was at the press conference, and Pompeo referred to this as a live exercise. He tried to say while Pompeo was talking, “This is not a live exercise,” and Pompeo didn’t pick up on it.

Farrell:  There is some real fragmentation as far as I can tell.

Fitts:  I’m going to go with a D-.

‘Building Bottom-Up Support’. First I was a D, and then two C’s. You have been C, C, and last year, a B+.

Farrell:  I think that he has been relatively successful at building up the bottom-up support. The question that I have right now is: Is he sustaining that? The poll numbers are showing that he is, but I have my doubts. I’m going give him  a B. I am lowering him from a B+ to a B. I think that the make or break for that category is going to be in the next month.

Fitts:  I am going to keep my C because he is shutting down all small business in this country. What is being done to small business is frightening, and it’s not necessary. If you look at what is called for medically, it is absolutely not necessary.

Farrell:  I agree with you. I am going to change it to a C.

Fitts:  ‘Building Bridges Domestically’. I was F, D, C, and so I have gotten steadily better. You were D, C, B.

Farrell:  That is a hard one. He is trying to handle this in a very old-fashioned bipartisan manner. So, I think I am going to keep him at a B-.

Fitts:  I will go with you and a B- considering the pressure that he is under.
‘Building Bridges Internationally’. I’ve been a C-, C, and C-. You were no grade, then C and C-. So, we were both C- on Building Bridges Internationally.

Farrell: I’m going to keep him at a C, raised up from a C-. It’s hard to tell because on the one hand, he has made some good statements about ‘nutty’ Netanyahu, but on the other hand, we have all this war hysteria going on.

Fitts: ‘Communication’. I was C+, C-, and a B. You were C+, C-, and a B+. I am going to give him an A. The reason I am going to give him an A is that I think one of the things that Trump has done is he has tried to get people to talk about reality.

If you look at how far we are from reality, he has only taken it a little way, but he put a crack in the one-way mirror. I think that is one of his greatest achievements.

Farrell: I’ll go A-.

Fitts: ‘Effort’. I was B, B+, and A. You were no grade, B+, and A. So, we were both A in 2019. I’m not inclined to stay with an A because I can’t forgive him for shutting down small business. I’m going to go back to a B.

Farrell: I’ll go back to a B- for the same reasons.

Fitts: ‘Grand Strategy for America and Our Role in the World’. I was ‘too early to grade’ and then C and C+. You were A-, C, and C-. So last year I was C+ and you were a C-.

Farrell: I’m going to go D- because he is giving us a lot of encouraging words, but there is no detail behind them.

Fitts: Okay, I am going to stay with a C+.

‘Growing in the Job’. I was B-, A-, B-, and you were B, B-, B+, and B. So last year, I was a B- and you were a B.
Farrell: I’m going to bump him up to a B+. I think that given what he has been facing with all of this, he certainly seems to have toned down a lot of his rhetoric. He is sounding and acting more like a leader.

Fitts: I’m with you. I will give him a B+.

I have to tell you that if you look at what he has dealt with from the Russian canard to the impeachment and then into the ‘plandemic’, do you know how few people there are on the planet who could have even remained standing after that?

Farrell: I agree.

Fitts: I told you this before: I watched a few DVDs on the history of the Scottish clans, and if you study the clan warriors, they were the most amazing fighters. These were people who could handle any pressure. Every time I look at them, it strikes me that his mother was Scottish. His father was German and his mother was Scottish, so you are talking about the genes of two of the most powerful warriors on the planet! So, he seems to be able to take it.

‘Introducing Important Change’. I have been a B all the way across. You started out with a C, and you were a B previously. I will keep my B.

Farrell: I think I am going to lower him to a C because, given all the things that we have discussed about this ‘plandemic’, you would have to be blind not to see some of this. So far, I don’t see him counterpunching enough with all of this.

Fitts: To a certain extent, he may be out of his element. Medicine and the medical cartel he may know little about.

Farrell: That may be, but he is also a person who guys after his own private expertise. There is certainly plenty of that out there to be had. So, I think I am going to stick with a C. I think he could be doing a much better job with the press conferences by having some of the doctors and people who are disputing this whole thing on the podium with him.

I think that he has turned it over far too much to Fauci and company.

Fitts: I agree.
‘Managing the Executive Branch Bureaucracy’. I was C-, then D and D. You were C-, D, and C-. I’m going to stick with my D.

Farrell: I’m going to go lower to a D, too.

Fitts: ‘Managing the Federal Budget and Contracting Budget’. I was F, F, and F. I am going to stick with my F. You were F, F, and G. I didn’t even know that there was a G, but you invented it.

Farrell: I’m going H because there is no response to any of this financial ‘nuttery’.

Fitts: It’s so bad!

Farrell: This whole business with the Federal Reserve and FASAB 56, and now the Pentagon and the so-called stimulus package – it’s ‘nuts’!

Fitts: I forgot to mention the crazy idea that the Fed had merged with Treasury. We were supposed to talk about that, so I went through it. I was on The David Knight Show before, and I went through it in great detail. It reflects a complete lack of understanding of what exists, what it is, and how it operates. You can’t even believe it got started. What you realize is that it takes nothing to get these crazy rumors going.

Farrell: I’ll tell you where it is coming from: It is coming from the Q-Anon (conspiracy theory) people. I monitor that, and they are putting this idea out like ‘crazy’; It’s craziness.

Fitts: Obviously, what happened was Jim Bianca wrote an article for Bloomberg, and I believe that he said this facetiously because I think he was so frustrated with the money people coming out of Treasury and Fed and working together because it was so shocking. Then somebody picked up on it, and I’m assuming that you are right, it was the Q people and it went crazy.

But here is what I am concerned about: You know that the defense contractors around the IT systems are where the $21 trillion went missing.
So, the individuals who are running the transactional systems where the $21 trillion went missing are implementing illegal transactions, and, of course, they know it.

At the end of 2015 when $6.5 trillion went missing from DOD, they spun those divisions off into a new company. I told you then that the defense contractors are doing a cut-and-run.

Dr. Mark Skidmore came out with his report in 2017, and that weekend there was a fire on the roof of the New York Fed who is the depository for the US government. So, the liability is the New York Fed.

The first article that came out, which I believe was the New York Post, said the thing that had caused the fire on the roof was somebody on a Saturday night using an old fireplace in the basement.

Farrell: Right, they were burning papers.

Fitts: You ‘just can’t make this stuff up’! The Fed can’t spin itself out.

Now the Fed is owned by private owners, and those private owners as agents, did the banking transactions and the securities transactions for the New York Fed. So, they are legally liable. Well, how are they going to get rid of the liability?

If somehow they engineer the New York Fed now going over to Treasury, they can get their ‘fannies’ out of the liability. I think they are trying to build up to that on the theory that, “Oh, isn’t it wonderful? We need a state-owned central bank.”

No, we want the $21 trillion back before we do that. Let’s not fall into that trap.

Next is Recruiting a Team. I gave him a B-, D+, then D. You have been C, C-, and C-. I am going to stay with the D because I think that one of the problems that we are in now is that he has a team that he gets along with, but I think that he has lost many of the players who had the gravitas to handle this on the world stage.
Farrell: I am going to lower him to a D also. I have tremendous misgivings about Pompeo and Foggy Bottom (Washington DC neighborhood). I have tremendous misgivings, to a certain extent, about the way that he has handled some – not all, because some things he has done vis-à-vis the intelligence agencies that have been good – things ‘footloose and fancy-free.’

My biggest problem is this so-called medical team that he has around him right now.

Fitts: They are terrible. It’s truly amusing that the doctors are all passing around Fauci’s March study that says that the death rate is 0.1% or some tiny number which completely contradicts what he is saying in public.

Farrell: That disturbs me. He is letting them get away with this narrative, and I can’t figure out why.

Fitts: I am assuming that Mr. Global is saying, “Here is what I want,” so he comes up with some story that gets you there.

Farrell: That could be, but if that is the case, then that means he has ‘rolled’, and that is very disturbing.

Fitts: Oh, he has been ‘rolled’ all along. I think that he is a Mr. Global order-taker. He is a poodle on a leash who does what he’s told. That is his job; he has to use the medical cartel to create and do whatever Mr. Global wants.

Farrell: I’m talking about Trump, not Fauci.

Fitts: Oh, alright.

Farrell: He is a counter-puncher. He has counter-punched a few times on this whole narrative, but not nearly with the strength and vigor that he did during the impeachment circus. So, I am wondering why he is allowing Fauci and these people to put out this narrative and not challenge it to any extent. That is very, very disturbing to me.

Fitts: The reason he would do it would be for family safety.
Fitts: ‘Staying Physically and Emotionally Healthy’. I was B-, B+, and B. You were B+, B+, and A-. I am going to go to an A because I think it’s amazing that he is still standing.

Farrell: I do too, and I will give him an A on that.

Fitts: ‘Vision’. I was B-, C+, B-, and I am going to stay at B-. You were B-, B-, and B.

Farrell: I am going to go back to a C. I think that now more than ever, it is absolutely essential for him to articulate a detailed vision of what is on the other side of this. That is what people need to hear, and all he is coming up with is generalized platitudes and messages of hope.

If I wanted to hear that, I would have elected a Cardinal Archbishop. I want to hear some details from the man.

Fitts: ‘War Games and Mapping the Swamp’. When I cut and paste into this file, it dropped those grades. So, I can’t tell you what grades we have given him in the past, but I am going to give him a B-. I think that he has a better handle of the war games in Washington; he has had quite a training exercise.

Farrell: I will give him a B.

Fitts: That closes Geopolitics. Before we close Part I, do you have any other thoughts? Looking at all the economic and geopolitical issues, let me talk about this from your point of view as the publisher of Giza Death Star, and somebody who has written and talked and warned about this for many, many years. How are you feeling about your role and vision of the world in the scheme of things now that the New World Order people and Mr. Global have to all intents and purpose come out of the ‘closet’ here?

Farrell: I have to say that personally, I am very anxious and concerned about where all of this is going. I literally am worried about the future as I am sure that many of our listeners and readers are.
Part of me is hopeful that people will use this opportunity and wake up and create a firestorm of No’s on their Twitter accounts and Facebook accounts. “No, I’m not taking your vaccines. No, I’m not going along with this digital currency idea,” which you correctly and very aptly put, “It isn’t a currency at all because they can adjust the value depending on the individual and how they behave”.

I think if people take that out of this and start posting things and creating such a statistic of negativity about ‘Mr. Globaloney’s’ plans, then maybe things will turn around. The bottom line for me is that I am very anxious about what is going on.

Fitts: My feeling is that it’s like an infection rising to the surface, and I would rather that it rises to the surface.

During my entire life, Mr. Global just keeps getting more powerful because we keep pretending that it’s not happening. So, the sooner that we deal with it, the better off we will be. If the infection doesn’t rise to the surface and get cleared, it is going to kill us. So my feeling is, “Okay, you started this, but I am not having it. So, the fight is on.”

My attitude is that it is time to deal with the Beck brothers.

Farrell: I agree with you. ‘Mr. Globaloney’ has stepped out into the open and announced all of his agendas. The infection is rising to the surface, and it’s time to lance it.

Fitts: I’ve told you this story many times, but when the chairman of Sallie Mae tried to talk me into joining the Council on Foreign Relations, he pulled out a glossy brochure and said, “It’s time for you to join. I want you to ask Nick Brady to sponsor you.”

I wasn’t going to ask Nick Brady for anything. I said, “I really don’t want to do it.”

He got scared. He had this horrible look of horror, and said, “You don’t understand. If you don’t join, you are out forever.”
At that moment, I had an image of them taking my name off the locker in the underground bunker. At that moment, I realized that I would rather be up on the surface with the regular population than down in the bunker with them. That is when I realized, “That’s okay. Out is not a bad place to be.”

I had a subscriber call me when they saw the DOD story of them going down to the bunker. He was scared because he didn’t have a place in the bunker. I said, “No, you don’t want to be down in the bunker with them.”

Farrell: No, you don’t.

Fitts: I am perfectly happy to be up here on the surface with everybody else. If you have a choice, that is your choice. Don’t worry about it, you made the right choice.

Joseph, wherever I am on the surface, you are going to be there. Hopefully, you won’t be down in the bunker. Hopefully, they won’t kidnap you for your brain and take you down to the bunker.

I am delighted to be up here on the surface in ‘cahoots’ with you. Thank you so much for such a remarkable Wrap Up. I never fail to learn something, but now I have a new word. Could you just say it again?

Farrell: The ‘propatainment media’.

Fitts: I don’t think that we should call them ‘media’ because they’re not media.

Farrell: We can call it the ‘propatainment ministry’ then.

Fitts: That’s it, the ‘propatainment ministry’. Great discussion, and I look forward to talking with you in Part II.

Farrell: Thank you for having me back, Catherine.
