The Solari Report
C. Austin Fitts: Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to the 1st Quarter Wrap Up: News Trends & Stories Part II. Dr. Joseph Farrell and I had a fantastic discussion in Part I on Economy & Financial Markets and Geopolitics. If you haven’t heard or read it, then you have yet to understand what the ‘propatainment ministry’ is. Did I say that properly?

Dr. Joseph Farrell: Yes, you did.

Fitts: Here we go, now we have our ‘word’.

Farrell: We have our new phrase for the media.

Fitts: The former ‘media’.

Today we are going to cover Culture, Science & Technology, Space, and Food & Health. Clearly, we have a great deal to talk about. Then we will dive into Unanswered Questions and some comments on Inspiration and Take Action.

Before we begin, do you have any thoughts about our discussion last week as we get into Culture?

Farrell: No, I think that we are ‘good to go’.

Fitts: Okay, let’s start with Culture.

Story #11: Plandemic Economics: Art, Culture, Music, and Tourism

I credit you because you told me that we can’t save the government and we can’t save many things, but we can save the culture. That inspired in me several years ago a tremendous blossoming of interest in art and culture and music. In fact, we started a column called ‘Food for the Soul’ and we now have a new website for Food for the Soul.
I got incredibly invested in running around the country with our culture scout, Nina Heyn, going to museums. We booked trips throughout the year for various museums. We were headed to London and then we were going to go to Rome for the Raphael exhibit. I was in Belgium for the Ghent exhibit. All of these exhibits have been shut down worldwide, and it is so frightening to me.

Broadway shut down all of its productions. Every one of those productions is a small business that will not come back. So, this is frightening.

Farrell: It’s an indicator that part of the op is precisely to seize or shut down access to culture. Maybe ‘Mr. Globaloney’ is finally getting it. He has been waging full-scale war against the foundations of Western culture, so this is yet another step to cut people off from it. It’s not going to work, and I will tell you why. One of the things that I am noticing to a certain extent on Facebook, more and more people are posting little cultural things that they are doing – music videos or short films and so on. So, there is a response to all of this.

The other thing that I am noticing because people are staying home, are they are getting more into cultural things – reading books, turning off the iPhones, having family dinners, etc. So, it is having a positive effect in that sense.

Fitts: I’m getting many reports of that, too. One of our team members said, “For the first week, people were scared. Now they are out hiking.” It’s like the whole thing has caused them to turn off the system. It’s as if, “I’m turning off the TV and I’m turning off the internet. You guys are full of ‘ya-ya’, and I don’t want to hear from the ‘propatainment ministry’. I’ve had it with you.”

It’s rejection.

Farrell: I’ve noticed the same thing. People are turning off the news, not wanting to hear any more about coronavirus etc. In a certain sense, once again they have overplayed their hand. They don’t know how to do anything else other than overplay their hand, but this one could hurt because it’s forcing people back on their own resources and to make their own entertainment and so on. Much of culture comes out of that; it comes out of the entertainment.
I go back to the fact that Bob Dylan did not release this song about the Kennedy assassination, which he had in his library. All of a sudden, he decides to release it now. That’s not accidental; the man is not stupid.

Fitts: He’s tired of being afraid. This is your advice from long ago, and I think that it stands the test of time: Whatever we need to do, each one of us has to do what we can to nurture the culture. So, that is whatever you do in your home or your community.

This is a time where beauty is essential for survival. So there are many things that we can all do, but it’s time to access and nurture it.

Look at the difference that you have made, not only to me, but to the whole Solari Report and the changes that we have made as a result of all this. I want to tell you that you have made an enormous impact, and it has grown and blossomed in ways I couldn’t have seen.

I’m an investment banker, and I didn’t get it.

Farrell: You mentioned the Broadway plays being shut down. They have shut down theatres and whole swaths of the economy that are connected to culture. Churches are shut down etc.. They tried this in Greece, and there are clergy – bishops and priests in Greece – who absolutely flatly refused the government order to shut down. They are being arrested.

That is what I mean by, “Just say no. Just tell them to go to hell”!

Fitts: Story #12: Plandemic Psyops.

I believe that we have a lot of demonic things going on. I mentioned the CDC coming out and saying that moms should be separated from newborns during the coronavirus outbreak. It’s unbelievable. And, of course, I mentioned that the Justice Department wants powers to suspend habeas corpus.

It’s almost as if they are gaslighting. Part of the goal is to see how far they can get with the gaslighting.
Farrell: That is exactly what I think is going on, and aspects of it are so crazy. If you look at the numbers of this ‘plandemic’ and compare it with the hype, there is really no reason for the Justice Department to be asking for a suspension of habeas corpus. There is really no reason we should have courts shut down. All this is just so totally overblown. That may be what they were planning – to do something like this precisely so that they can suspend habeas corpus.

Fitts: In the 1st Quarter, I did a book review on a book called The American Trap by a French executive who was ensnared by the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. It was essentially the story of the Department of Justice trying to destroy somebody. It was almost a variation of what they did to me or what they did to a man named Howard Root, who I had on The Solari Report several years ago. You read this story, and it’s incredible.

He stepped off the plane in New York, and they arrested him and put him in chains. Basically, he spent the next five years of his life dealing with all this, and several years in prison in the United States. It’s a hideous, hideous story, and he tells it very well.

In the process of dealing with his legal situation, he became an expert in how to protect yourself from the American traps. What came out was the resolution of this attack on the French company was to get control of their most valuable division and transfer it to General Electric.

So, you have the Department of Justice playing economic warfare and shaking companies down to make money for American corporations. It is a very dirty, vicious game. When you read this story, it reminds you of hearing Putin say, “The dollar is going to collapse,” or you watch Macron saying, “The unipolar model blew it.”

What you are watching is this demonic energy that is lawless. It uses the law to implement shakedowns and racketeering. It’s like global racketeering, and it is so demonic when you deal with it. You read it, and you realize that the world has had it. This is ‘Netanyahu law’.

This happened during the Obama Administration. I’m not saying that it has continued, but this is the Hillary Clinton lawlessness. This is Libya, and the world is sick of it.
What I can’t figure out is if this is the demonic simply doubling down. That is why the psyops here feel so incredibly weird.

Farrell: I think you are right there and it is a doubling down. There is no other way if we look at all of this strangeness, and you mentioned this business about the CDC saying that moms should be separated from newborns during the coronavirus outbreak. This is such total insanity that it is a doubling down. That kind of insanity is demonic because it’s a twisting of laws.

Fitts: There was a video that was so funny. I don’t know if I sent it to you, but somebody had put a video on Facebook. He and his friend were driving around, and one of the lovely things that I’ve seen – and I get these lovely reports from Europe – is that the young people just know that this is BS. They don’t buy it; they totally don’t buy it, and they see through it.

So, you get these lovely young people with a beautiful spirit, and they are just not buying the Kool-Aid. He is driving through the neighborhood, and he is attacked by an older generation woman whose name is Karen. She is screaming at him that she is going to report him to the police, and screaming that he is putting her at risk.

In the meantime, she is walking right up to the window and screaming at him about six inches from his face. If you think that distancing is necessary, why are you walking up and screaming at him? When you look at her, she is right out of the Kingsman movie; she is mind-controlled, and is crazy.

He and his friend are looking at her, and he turns away and says, “Oh, yeah! I’m really afraid!”

You laugh, but you realize that you have people who don’t drink the Kool-Aid, and they have now made apps where you can snitch on your neighbors.

Farrell: This is why I need to emphasize that people need to stand up and say, “No.” Post things and create such a groundswell on whatever social media you have or your Twitter accounts. Just make it clear where you stand.
Fitts: The other thing is we have a great Solari Report in the library called Who’s Your Sheriff? You need to get to know your sheriff, and you need to get a great sheriff who you can support. You and your sheriff need to decide whether you are going to let any of this ‘crap’ go on in your jurisdiction.

Next is Science & Technology.

Story #13: 5G: Crowd Control, EMF Radiation, and Weaponry.

We had the former President of Microsoft Canada, Frank Clegg, come out and make a fabulous 15-minute video. He published it basically saying, “This is really dangerous, and it’s not typical telecommunications technology; it’s crowd control made by the Israelis and the Americans.”

In a very graceful, distinguished way he is saying, “This stuff is dangerous.”

Farrell: Here is the problem, and I discussed this with Whitley Strieber. If you look at where we have had concentrations of this coronavirus outbreak, in many cases there are correlations to 5G rollouts.

Fitts: Absolutely.

Farrell: In Northern Italy and the Wuhan province, that is definitely there. That makes me wonder if we are really looking at a manifestation of the side effects of 5G that they are simply calling ‘coronavirus’ to paper over the actual health consequences.

I’ve been pointing this story out repeatedly, and I think I mentioned it to you when we did that special interview on the coronavirus, and I mentioned it with Whitley. It’s all these strange bird deaths that we have seen in the news where birds are flying, and then they drop to the ground ‘stone-cold’ dead.

The most famous example that comes to my mind is when a few years ago in Idaho, a flock of geese dropped ‘stone-cold’ dead from the sky. We were told that it was a sudden onset of bird flu.

Bird flu doesn’t happen like that; it takes a while to gestate. It doesn’t usually happen to a flock of geese while they are in mid-flight.
At the time, I was very forthright with my speculations. I said, “This looks more like some sort of electromagnetic test.” The interesting thing is as all of this coronavirus started up last year and began to expand in December and January, there was a story in England of starlings that looked like they had just dropped from the sky ‘stone-cold’ dead. I have this coming out as a blog this week. The lady who reported this to the BBC had noticed all these starlings flying around her house. She came back an hour later, and they were all dead on the ground – some of their little bodies covered in blood.

That is another sign that we are dealing with some sort of electromagnetic technology. With this 5G, everywhere that they have had tests, things like this has happened.

They did a test of 5G in Holland, and there were bird deaths. So, you can’t tell me that if birds are dying that it is not going to have an effect on other life forms, including humans. So, there is something else going on here.

Fitts: One of the books I very much wanted to read, which I started recently, and I strongly recommend it. It’s called The Invisible Rainbow: A History of Electricity and Life by Arthur Firstenberg. One of the things that he describes is the correlation between both man-made and natural electricity and the history of influenza. There is absolutely a correlation; it’s documented, it’s for sure, and it’s frightening.

You read it, and can’t believe that you don’t already know this. It’s as though, “How did I not know this?”

So, I am absolutely convinced that the rollout of 5G is critical. And here is the problem: If you look at everything that they want to do with the crypto system and with mind control and breakthrough energy, they need a whole new level of electrification that can handle tremendous volume. So, their whole control depends on 5G. That means they need to have a global ‘plandemic’ to cover up.

We’ve seen some doctors – and I don’t know if they are right or not – saying, “This is going to kill 20% of the population.”

Farrell: I don’t doubt it. What bothers me is that the French government is raising concerns about it, the Belgium government did, and here, Trump signs this Secure 5G and Beyond Act of 2020 into law.

Fitts: Trump used the ‘plandemic’ to rush this through.
Farrell: I know.

Fitts: I think that much of the stimulus will be used to pay for rolling it out. It’s another industry receiving grants.

I also want to mention that Robert Kennedy and the Health Defense Group, in addition to the work they are doing on vaccination, submitted a new lawsuit against the government for children injured by wireless technology radiation. I continue to believe that if you look at the injury and death caused by vaccines, there is some kind of reverberation between the heavy metals of the vaccines and what the wireless technology is doing.

Farrell: Absolutely.

Fitts: One of the things that I want to mention is that we have had targeted individuals, and we have discussed targeted individuals on The Solari Report. I have published book reviews as well. These are people who have dealt with electronic harassment during the litigation, and I dealt with electronic harassment.

I have always said that there are 325 million targeted individuals in America, and they are divided between the people who know that they are targeted individuals and the people who don’t know.

If you look at the technologies that they have used to control, manipulate, and harm people or the so-called targeted individuals, I think that was all prototyping for the rollout of 5G.

Farrell: That could very well be. We need to make a little simple point of physics in this regard. If you are loading people up with heavy metals in vaccines or heavy metals in the spraying and so on, and you subject those people to a very strong electromagnetic field, all those little particles of heavy metals are going to act like little antennae; they are going to resonate.

That means that you could also be looking at some sort of broadcast power where you are getting people loaded up with all of this so that you can literally broadcast signals into them.
This is very, very bad. There is an agenda in connection with vaccines, too. Look at Gates (Bill). He is talking about putting these biometric tattoos and stencils inside of people to call up their records. How are you going to do that? You are going to need a broadcast power.

So this is all very, very interconnected.

Fitts: The next two stories we have covered a good deal of already, so I’m not going to spend much time on them.

Story #14: Transhumanism: the Global Non-Consensual Experiment with Biotech.

All these different things that we are talking about are basically transhumanism – the integration of machines into human bodies. One of the things that I said recently – I think I said it in Money & Markets – is that if you don’t know what transhumanism is, you need to look it up and get educated. These people are serious about this, and they are interested in figuring out how to put machines in us or us in machines. Between robotics and cyborgs and humans, what is most efficient for what? They are looking at this the way that a farmer looks at a different species and feels free to experiment with anything.

Not only did they cross the line on the Nuremberg Code, but they are ‘blowing’ by it in a spaceship.

Farrell: It’s like what Dr. de Hart and I wrote about in our book on transhumanism. Fundamentally, this is a very old, old alchemical agenda. What they are really talking about by merging man and machine is trying to recreate ‘mineral man’, which in the alchemical scheme of things is ranked higher than us little biological humans.

So, there is actually an esoteric or ‘occult’ agenda behind all of this. There definitely is.

Fitts: When did you write your book?

Farrell: I think I wrote that book around 2014 or 2015.
Fitts: I suggest that everybody get it, and there are some good documentaries, too. You really need to educate yourself on how ‘nuts’ these people are.

Farrell: They really are just plain stark raving mad.

Fitts: If you don’t understand the divine intelligence and you don’t understand life as a biophysical phenomenon, and if you don’t understand morphogenic fields, and if you are a ‘hypermaterialist’ and think it’s all some kind of hardware, you will see all these presentations by people in the transhumanism documentaries who say, “Your brain is basically a computer.”

No, it’s not, they have no concept of what life is.

Farrell: No, they don’t, you’re right. They are ‘hypermaterialists’, and they have really given up on any notion of God or the transcendent or logos or anything like that.

Fitts: They are lost.

Farrell: Yes, they are.

Fitts: Story #15: AI Warfare: the Revolution in Intimate Control.

As I’ve said many times during this discussion, I think that Mr. Global has had it with the middle management and wants to run everything by AI. I also think that he wants humans plugged into the AI so that the humans can teach the AI and the robots how to do everything.

I said to you before that it’s a little like the companies that outsource things to India. They get Americans to go to India and teach the Indians how to take away their jobs. It’s the same here.

Farrell: It’s the same playbook all over again on a global scale.

Fitts: One of the stories is the US Navy launched an autonomous killer submarine. You look at it, and think, “What could possibly go wrong?”

Farrell: I’m waiting for them to launch an autonomous ballistic missile submarine. What could possibly go wrong with that?
We are in Dr. Strangelove territory here. That is the bottom line.

Fitts: We really are. It was amusing because on The Knight Show, the whole time that I was talking to David (Knight), he had behind him this large screen, which was showing the scene from Dr. Strangelove where they were in the war room. I thought, “What a brilliant screen, and how appropriate!”

When I left Washington, you were watching all the competent people be forced or squeezed out. The people who were being promoted were the people who would go along; they were the ‘yes-men’. So, you went through a 20-year period of only promoting the ‘poodles’ who would ‘suck up’, “No problem, yeah, yeah.”

Now you have a very powerful, dangerous national security state that is run by ‘poodles’ and ‘yes-men’.

Farrell: You have a national security state that is being run by people who are not only corrupt, but incompetent. That is a very, very dangerous combination. We are starting to see the results with all this insanity.

Fitts: The scary story is Boeing, and I go back to Bloomberg. For a company like Boeing to blow up the way it did over quality control, why would you destroy your franchise to pump the stock another 1.5%? It’s scary.

Farrell: It’s coming out of that whole Chicago Friedman school that took control of things in the 1980’s where the bottom line was that a company exists to make money for the shareholders, not to turn out a competent product, which will make money for the shareholders in a very different way. The emphasis was twisted back then, and now we are seeing the results. We have a group of incompetent people running the corporations.

Fitts: The Chicago group was harvesting many generations of people and cultures building things that had real value and meaning. So, they had an abundance of ‘fat to harvest, but now that you have harvested it, you have corporations full of everybody who is out for themselves.
Farrell: Not only that, but you have an educational system that is turning out ‘twits’. In other words, they are graduating people who are going to work on repairing elevators and jet engines who don’t know what they’re doing, or they are designing aircraft with faulty computer software, etc. It’s all hitting at the worst time.

Fitts: No wonder they don’t want to put planes up in the air!

Farrell: Now you know one of the reasons I don’t fly!

Fitts: I was wondering if they shut down the flights, to what extent are they worried that the covert war is going to attack plans with EMP or use a back door into the software on these plans?

Farrell: You are raising a very good point there. This is something that I’ve been wondering, too. We have been talking about financial resets, and part of me is thinking: What if they needed an intelligence reset? What if they needed to come up with something that would allow them to clean house and get competent people back in there? This business of habeas corpus is very disturbing, but it is the sort of thing that you would do if you wanted to quietly remove a large amount of people and put them out of sight for a period of time.

I have to wonder if you are onto something there, and I think you are.

Fitts: If I want to take down a faction who has cyber hacked into the back door of planes, particularly Boeing planes, this is my question. Is one of Boeing’s concerns that this is all going to come out that their planes have back doors into the software?

If you saw what happened, which I think was a Boeing plane in Iran. If some of these groups are using these back doors to play the political games, and an effort is being made to corral them or corner them, then people may feel that it’s really not safe to have planes flying around in the sky.

Farrell: I totally think that this could be part of the agenda. Let’s put it this way: If you are a competent and patriotic person in the American intelligence community and you look back on the history of all the hacks that have taken place in the last 20 years with Los Alamos etc., and with Chase Manhattan and Sony, then you realize that you have a problem.
Fitts: You have a big problem.

Farrell: You have a big problem, and you are going to have to go in and clean it out, and do it in a major way. So how do you do that? Well, you have everybody stay at home and out of the way, and you go in and clean it out.

I don’t put that idea at all on the back burner, and I think there is something to it.

Fitts: I think that there is something to it as well. It could just be factions fighting, but the level of fighting has gotten to the point where it is dysfunctional to the whole global economy.

Farrell: Right.

Fitts: Let’s turn to Space.

Story #16: Space as War-Fighting Domain.

We watched Trump come out and take over what we know has been covert for a while now, and that is: Is the US considering space a war-fighting domain?

You told us – and I was amazed because I hadn’t seen it – that Japan has come out and admitted the same thing. It turns out that we are all extending upwards to what our airspace is.

Farrell: Putin himself, about a year or so ago, did the same thing and created a Russian Space Command. So, you are going to see the same thing happen now in Europe and India. The curious thing, too, about this whole coronavirus story, is how space has been put on hold in certain places.

Europe had a probe ready to go to Mars, which they cancelled. The excuse was, “Well, we don’t want difficulties with coronavirus.”

I was thinking, “Who are you spreading coronavirus to on Mars?”

So, there has been this curious stoppage in certain points of the globe because of this story.
Fitts: Although Elon Musk got approval for 20,000 satellites.

Farrell: Yes, I saw that. The US Air Force launched a satellite recently on an Atlas rocket. I thought, “We are still using the Atlas rocket? This is 1962 technology!”

There is this curious thing going on with space as all these other things are happening, and I’m at a loss as to how to read it. Is this more overreach, or are they using the story as cover for other activity – or non-activity, as the case may be?

Fitts: I think that part of it is the rush to get the 5G and the whole control grid. The smart grid is basically a control grid. So, I think that this is the push to get the control grid, and they don’t care how many people they have to kill to get it out there. They need it out there if they are going to maintain control.

Farrell: That could be. It could be any number of things. There were strange videos of strange things around the sun on the NASA website.

Fitts: That was amazing!

Farrell: They pulled the usual NASA thing, “It was all just a trick of light and shadows.”

Fitts: Did you see what the CIA did on April 1st? They put out a Tweet with pictures of UFOs.

Farrell: We have to play our April Fool’s games. If they are intending to put out a real video of real things, what a better day to do it on?

There are these strange ‘goings on’ in space while all of this is happening, and the sudden tamping of space activity during all of this is mystifying. I wonder what is going on. Are they worried about breaking the quarantine zone – not the quarantine zone on the planet, but the quarantine zones around it? Who knows?

Fitts: This quarter Richard Dolan republished his interview with David Jacobs, who is the professor from Temple. He really believes that this is an alien invasion that we are dealing with.
Farrell: This is another thing that mystifies me. I did a blog recently about a company, which I believe was an Israeli company. They were one of those companies that do DNA heritage research like Ancestry.com. This company was involved in China trying to help create a vaccine for coronavirus.

I was thinking, “In a certain perception, that makes sense that you would want somebody with competence and genetic sequencing and so on if you wanted to create a vaccine for this thing.” But on the other hand, I’m thinking, “Gee, isn’t that strange that you have a DNA company involved in all of this?”

This would be the perfect way to mandate vaccines and then quietly collect DNA data. So, the next question becomes: If you are collecting DNA data, what are you looking for? Or rather, who are you looking for?

I have to wonder about all of this. That sounds like a ‘crazy, wild, out there, kooky idea’, and it is, but everything else about this story is so kooky, so why not entertain the idea?

Fitts: Let me suggest to you the strangest thing that we have ever discussed in News Trends & Stories. I keep going back to this. We live on a planet where the governance system is secret, and we are so used to it that we don’t say to ourselves, “How strange is that?”

Farrell: It’s like Charles Fort said in one of his early works on this subject, “I think we are property, and that we belong to some mysterious someone.”

We may be dealing with that scenario. Who knows? It’s so out there that we don’t want to think about it, but everything else is so strange about the way that they are overreacting to this that you have to wonder.

Fitts: I keep going back to the economics of the financial system and looking at the whole thing. We are a REIT (real estate investment trust), the dividend is going someplace, and somebody thinks that we are property. That is how it behaves; that doesn’t make it true, but that is how it behaves.

Farrell: This is the problem that you and I have always had, particularly with all of this quantitative easing that has been happening during the past few years. Where the ‘heck’ is all this money going? You are putting all this energy into the financial circuit, and it’s not popping out as hyperinflation. So where is it going?
Fitts: It is going into all the underground bases; there is a whole underground civilization.

Farrell: It has to be going to some aspect of the circuit that is not part of the map of the circuit.

Fitts: Right, it is going into space.

I have been trying to do more research on what has been going on underground. If you look at the amount of money in the infrastructure, don’t ever say that we haven’t spent a fortune on infrastructure in the United States. It’s just not true, but you can’t see it.

Farrell: Precisely.

Fitts: Let’s turn to Food & Health.

Story #17: The COVID-19 ‘Plandemic’.

First it was coronavirus, then it was COVID-19, and now they have changed it to COVID. At some point, we are going to discover what the real meaning of COVID is.

We’ve been talking about this all along, and once again, we are presented with an official story, which can’t possibly be true. But then when you try to sort out what is true because it involves many different places and many different phenomena, we are watching a major economic war that is both covert and overt. It could turn into a physical war, and we just talked about Venezuela.

There are also some health issues happening. Whether there is one or more viruses or dirty warfare, whether it is 5G, we don’t know. The one thing that I will say is that it has helped me look and proclaim, “What we have going on on this planet is a great poisoning. Whether it’s the food or whether it’s the electrification or whether it is the vaccines, the human race is being poisoned.

Farrell: As far as I’m concerned that points to powers with very nihilistic agendas vis-à-vis humanity. It’s diabolical in the truest sense of the word. You have a group of people on this planet who have bought into that whole philosophy, and that is the scary thing.

The solution is to stand up, be counted, and say, “No.”
Fitts: One of the things that I was so impressed with was the second Vaxxed movie. I don’t know if you have had a chance to see it yet, but it is a phenomenal documentary. The Vaxxed team did a documentary that was primarily about the MMR vaccination, and then they bought a bus and went on the road. They talked to and filmed thousands and thousands of parents and children and families who had been vaccine injured or after a vaccine injury, decided not to vaccinate anymore. So, they ended up with tremendous footage on the unvaccinated population.

One of the things that you see is the poisoning and the death. They were astonished because they had no idea. They knew about the MMR, but they had no idea about the full scope and spectrum of what they were dealing with.

When you watch it you realize that it is amazing that the shriek-o-meter kept this story from getting abrogated and seen as one clear picture. It’s amazing.

When you realize the control that has been successful in keeping this story from coming together and getting told, it’s just an amazing documentary. When you see how healthy the unvaccinated children are, and hearing the parents say, “My unvaccinated kids never get sick. They never have ear infections. There are no problems.”

Farrell: You are raising a point that is so important. I came from a family that was traditional in the sense that they trusted the medical establishment. My mother and my aunts and uncles would get their flu shots every year, and then they would get sick.

I vividly remember going home one year for Thanksgiving when my mother was still alive. She was feeling somewhat under the weather, and asked me, “Have you got your flu shot?”

I said, “I never get a flu shot.”

She said, “You don’t?”

I said, “No.”

She said, “Well, why not?”
I said, “I watch you. You get your flu shot every year, and then a couple of days later you get sick. That tells me that there is something wrong with these vaccines. They are putting a concoction of ‘crud’ in these things that make you sick. So, try it one year of doing without.”

She did, and she didn’t get sick. I’m not paying some pharmaceutical company $25 to fill me up with thimerosal and aluminum and all this other ‘junk’ that they put into their vaccines. No way!

That’s not to say that I don’t get colds or I don’t get sick, but I treat them when I do get sick.

I’ll tell you a story and I’m not telling this to give anybody any medical advice; this has only been my experience.

I’ve had a few times in recent years where I’ve actually come down with tonsillitis. I would look at my throat and see the tonsils swollen. I went to a small clinic, and they said, “You have to get to an emergency room and get those taken out right away.”

I said, “I just can’t afford that.”

I took some colloidal silver, and that tonsillitis was gone within a couple of days. Completely gone!

Fitts: The best thing that ever happened to my health was that I was broke throughout many, many years of the litigation, and I had to do everything myself. One of the things that I discovered was that I was infinitely healthier for not having access to the American medical system.

Farrell: Exactly! What do they do? They give you a collection of pills and drugs, and you listen to the commercials on the ‘propatainment’ ministry for some of these drugs, and they tell you, “It can cause all these side effects from stroke, heart disease, terminal flatulence,” you name it! It’s absurd, and why would anyone take drugs where you have that kind of risk factor involved?

They are literally poisoning us.
Fitts: I’m convinced that if I took all those tests every year, they would persuade me that I had 50 different diseases and they would have chopped me to bits.

I’m skipping ahead. Let’s turn to Story #18: Radical Reengineering of Global Agriculture and Food.

We talked plenty last quarter about all the frightening things that are happening in the food supply, whether it’s deterioration of the safety rules or lab-grown meat. I’m convinced from watching everything that is going on globally, there is a real push to control by controlling the food and seed supply.

I keep telling everybody, “Talk to local farmers, and plant your own food.”

In other words, you are will have to line up through intimate connections your own sources of food. You cannot wait. The food system as you know it is not coming back. So, you are will have to line up your fresh food, and you are going to have to do it personally or locally. Just figure it out.

I’m going to keep saying that because, even if this is a test run and we come out of the ‘plandemic’, what they plan to put in the food you don’t want to eat.

Farrell: No, you don’t want to eat it now. I have another story to tell in this respect. I eat as much organic food as I can. I eat organic vegetables and organic eggs and dairy products and so on. I’m not saying that I’m 100% successful in that, but I will not get ground beef that is not organic. In fact, usually I get ground bison, and I always get organic eggs and organic milk.

I went to my grocery store recently as usual. Instead of the Battle of the Somme, it was more like the Battle of Verdun. It looked as if it had been cratered, but I will tell you something. When I went down the dairy aisle to get milk and eggs, there was no organic milk. There was quantities of the other products, but no organic milk, and the organic egg supply was down.

In other words, people are doing that to the extent that they can. It’s only that we need to do more.
I’m at a loss as to where I can go locally to get decent produce that’s not a bunch of IG Farben/Monsanto/GMO ‘stuff’. So that is my wish. I’m hoping that the farmers who are listening or reading this will start reforming their old farmers’ markets and cooperatives and things. Some of what is sold in grocery stores, especially in certain big retail chains, I absolutely refuse to buy any of their meat. I just absolutely flatly refused.

Fitts: One of the things that you can do to buy local is acquire a magazine called Edible Communities. If your area has an Edible Communities magazine, it’s a great way for finding the local farmers and other things.

As we were talking about that, I went to their website and got a big warning that it was ‘unsafe and dangerous’ and, “Don’t go here.”

But if you check in with them, you can find out where your local franchises are. I hope they still have their local franchises.

The other thing is the Weston A. Price Foundation, which is another good resource.

Farrell: That would be a good thing to put in the transcript of this report. I talk to people where I live, and we have had this discussion before. “Where do we go to get that?” You’re not going to get it in the grocery stores.

Fitts: If you get the Edible Communities for your area – if they have one – that is one way. The other way is the Weston A. Price Foundation. They have circles and groups all over the United States. They have great intelligence about where to get what.

It was amazing because I had really made an effort to network my area and know all the local farms and everything. I got the Edible Memphis magazine, and I was stunned to find that there was an abundance of things around me that I didn’t even know about. But they are out there. Right now especially, many of the small, organic farms depend on restaurant sales, but now with the restaurants closed down, if we don’t recapitalize and help float them through, we are going to be in real trouble. It’s a great opportunity.

Believe it or not, the next story is vaccines.

Story #19: The Great Poisoning: the Vaccine Wars.
We’ve been talking about them all along. I do recommend to everyone who hasn’t seen Vaxxed II to watch it. I can’t recommend it enough. It’s a perfect example of how the reality can be right in our face and so completely different than the official reality, but we buy the official reality.

It’s stunning because the people making the Vaxxed series are total experts in vaccination. They thought they knew the story, and yet when they listened to thousands of people, they discovered that the story was much worse than they dreamed.

Farrell: I can absolutely believe it.

Fitts: I went back and studied the last 100 years of vaccine wars, and it started in the 1880’s. There are reports from doctors from the 1900’s that say they never saw cancer until vaccines had been introduced. Then, of course, one of the stories at the web presentation for Story #19 is about the two doctors in Italy doing detailed researching of what was in vaccines. What they found was frightening; they found the nanoparticles that couldn’t be explained, they found the metals, and they found fetal tissue.

I have one subscriber who is adamant that she thinks the whole transgender movement of boys wanting to be girls and girls wanting to be boys is that they are putting gender-related material into the vaccines that is confusing them.

Farrell: I can believe that.

Fitts: So, the doctors published what they found, and the next thing that happened was their lab was raided by the police.

Farrell: Of course! We can’t have anybody getting off the big pharma reservation.

Speaking of big pharma, I noticed that you have an article about Bayer trying to resolve its Roundup litigation. There is another interesting Bayer story out there, but I don’t know if you are aware of it. The drug that is being touted as being effective for treating this coronavirus –chloroquine – guess who patented it? Bayer.

Fitts: I was told, and I don’t know if this is true, that it was over the counter in France before this all started, and then they moved it back to requiring a prescription.
Farrell: I can believe that. Bayer took out the patent on that drug in 1934. I’m thinking, “That’s a nice windfall profit for them to have this plandemic come along.” Unbelievable! You ‘just can’t make this stuff up’; it’s like a bad Hollywood B movie.

Fitts: After I watched Vaxxed II, I worked with a reporter and did an estimation of how much Novartis’ stock went up, for example, getting children on Ritalin. For each child on Ritalin, how much would Novartis’ stock go up?

After I watched Vaxxed II, I calculated what it was worth. If you take a child who remains unvaccinated and lives their entire life in the pattern that is described by these parents of children who are unvaccinated versus the children who are vaccinated and all the drugs they need, you are seeing, in terms of the stock market value of the big pharmaceutical companies, the difference is phenomenal. They are going to make a fortune on a vaccinated child.

Farrell: They make people sick, and then keep them sick with the cure.

We are talking about touting the American medical system as the best in the world. Well, we still haven’t cured cancer. In fact, the cures for it are as bad – if not worse – and they are expensive.

Fitts: If the doctors of the 1900’s are right, cancer didn’t show up until the vaccines started.

Farrell: I think there is a big correlation there. The world was beginning to electrify in a major way. The industrial revolution had plenty of environmental pollution at the time. So I think that there are many factors, but I wouldn’t rule that one out.

Fitts: The great poisoning had begun.

One thing that I do have to say is that I am amazed at all of the great people doing important and valuable work, but one person who amazes me every week is Robert F. Kennedy, Jr.

During the first quarter, I watched a new documentary on Robert Kennedy, and I had not known much about Robert Kennedy, so I found it very interesting. I can’t tell you how impressed I am by what Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. has managed to achieve.
We interviewed his vice-chairman, Mary Holland, on The Solari Report this quarter, and she is remarkable. They are two remarkable people, and I can’t believe what they get done in a week. Their courage is amazing, and they are very clear: We are poisoning the next generation, and we cannot let that happen or there is no future. There is certainly no human future.

Farrell: I agree. He is courageous, especially given what has happened to his family historically, and now very recently. There is no doubt that this was a message. I hope to goodness that he ‘sticks to his guns’ and persists in this.

Fitts: I hope so, too. If he doesn’t, and if we don’t win this, we are all dead. Death is not to be feared here.

The last story:

Story #20: Geophysical Risks.

I keep bringing this up because I keep saying, “Maybe Mr. Global knows something that I don’t know.”

We know that the oxygen content is going down. We know that the electromagnetic field seems to be diminishing in vitality. So, I can’t tell you what the condition of the earth is, but I continue to wonder if that explains some of the crazy behavior of our leadership.

Farrell: Oh, absolutely it does. There is a correlation between planetary position and human craziness. It’s as old as astrology. Every casino manager will tell you that during full moons you need to prepare.

Fitts: Oh, yes. I once ran a bar, and people lost their minds during a full moon. It’s unbelievable!

Farrell: Even if you suddenly weaken the earth’s magnetic field, and you have a large amount of solar radiation pouring in that didn’t used to be there, it is going to have a behavioral effect. We are electro-biological organisms. So, there is no doubt that part of this craziness is natural. I suspect the way that it works is it strengthens your innate habits or character.
In other words, if you are a person inclined to be evil and kooky, under those conditions you are even more inclined to be so. Conversely, if you are someone who is inclined to be decent and so on, then it increases those proclivities. So, I do think there is a geophysical aspect to what we are seeing that we know little about. It’s ‘high time’ to start studying it.

In my book, Babylon’s Banksters, I mentioned a very interesting and relatively famous study – if you are into this sort of thing – that was done by RCA in the 1950’s. They wanted an explanation as to why it was that there seemed to be a periodicity to their ability to send and receive short-wave signals without a lot of interference. They hired a man by the name of Nelson to do a study of the phenomena. He discovered that the signals will vary when planets are in certain positions. Interestingly enough, they vary the most when they are in positions that astrologers – believe it or not – would call a ‘grand cross’.

It was the first real scientific study that hinted or suggested that there may be some sort of scientific basis to what we now know as astrology. Also, there was some sort of geophysical correlation between signal strength and position of planets.

I don’t doubt that there is some sort of connection to human behavior and geophysics. Let me tell you another little anecdote that might drive this point home a bit for some of the listeners and readers. I did a book called Babylon’s Banksters a few years ago, and I ran across something very interesting. During the Depression, President Hoover was absolutely flummoxed about why the Depression had occurred. So, he appointed a fellow in the U.S. Department of Commerce to figure out why we always have these booms and bust cycles – these business cycles.

This man, of course, had access to all the database, which was rather extensive in the Department of Commerce. He started to notice that virtually everything that we could think of went through very long periodic cycles of activity. He went on to found a society called the Foundation for the Study of Cycles, and it still is in existence.

One of the interesting things that he discovered when he was doing this research was that you could correlate all these cycles into very long wave forms – cycles of building activity, cycles of agricultural production, and so on. So, I started doing research of this Foundation for the Study of Cycles, and ‘lo and behold’, there were members on the board of major banks like Mitsubishi Bank and so on.
So, there is no doubt that part of this ‘plandemic’ may have been carefully timed to things in those cycles, particularly where those cycles indicate aggregate human behavior.

So there is much more to this, and we are just at the beginning of trying to understand all of this.

Fitts: I was sure that they were going to do something like this after the election. I didn’t expect them to do it this year. It does feel suddenly accelerated by both the frustrations with Trump, but also the thought that England is out of Brexit and free to ‘rock-n-roll’.

So, let’s turn to Unanswered Questions. Many of these are questions that we ask every quarter, but I did add a few new ones now totaling twelve.

Question #1: How important are invisible and secret weaponry and technology to the replacement of global currency systems with crypto-control systems?

Farrell: I think they are absolutely vital. For one thing, if you are going to place all those assets in space, you have to be able to protect them. To protect them, you have to have some rather sophisticated technology.

The other thing that we have discussed frequently is that we have a lot of bad paper on the books; there are ‘no two ways’ about it.

I’ve mentioned the quadrillions of dollars’ worth of derivatives until I’m ‘blue in the face’, but this is the problem on the books that is not going to go away. So, the only thing that you can do is, either inflate out of it – which would be hyperinflation like we have never seen – or go out and collateralize all of that somehow. That means that you have to go out and find assets in space. Chemical rockets are not going to do it.

In other words, that alone says that there has to be something on the technology books that we don’t know about.

Fitts: A few of my questions when the Wuhan ‘plandemic’ happened were: Have they lost control of inflation, meaning the cost of food? And was shutting down the economy the only way that they could keep it under control? If this was the only way that they could keep it under control, then that is what they would do.
Question #2: Where did Mr. Global invest the $21 trillion, the $24 trillion, and where is the 2020 central bank and fiscal stimulus going qui bono pandemic?

Farrell: Good question! The way that it appears to me is, if we are looking at Mr. Global pushing the red button, then if indeed – and it’s a mighty big ‘if’ – part of this is a rollout of some new energy system, the central banking system is gone.

This may be the reason they are trying to move to digital currencies. That is the new mechanism of control. But you pointed this out in Part I of the Wrap Up: You cannot have a currency that is adjustable per individual because that is not a currency. Ultimately, if they move to that system and then play those tricks, that system will break down because no one is going to trust it. So, they are in the same boat; they want to rule by secrecy, but that is the problem; you cannot have an order or rule by complete secrecy.

My guess is that for the moment, they are going to cut and run, but it’s not going to last.

Fitts: Right. I think that the Midianite event is going to happen here.

Farrell: I do, too.

Fitts: It is happening now.

Question #3: Why is there a great poisoning underway? Why is there an ongoing global program to increase the levels of aluminum, other heavy metals, and nanoparticles or nanotechnology in humans? Is the push for Neuralink because humans will be more intelligent accessing AI, easier to control, and integrate with robots, or because the elites want and need access to uniquely human intelligence and consciousness?

Farrell: I think it’s both.

Fitts: I do, too.

Farrell: But there is, what I call, the Asimov (Isaac) danger in that program. Let’s assume that the transhumanists are successful in creating the human brain-AI interface. I think there are many obstacles to overcome, but let’s assume that they do it and get all humanity to the point where they are incapable of functioning without the AI.
At some point every machine breaks down, including in AI. So, either you have to train the AI to repair itself, which is a big ‘if’, or you are facing what Asimov wrote about in his Foundation trilogy. You get to a state where everybody is so incompetent that the entire technological technocracy begins to break down because you have no more competent humans able to perform the task of repairs. This is the problem.

Everybody is touting AI and robots and so on, but I don’t see it as a solution; I see it as the beginning of an end to technological society. What is already happening is what we have seen with Boeing. We have seen incompetence in action with Boeing. They have all the best computers, all the best programmers, and yet they designed a fundamentally flawed airplane, which Boeing would never have done 20 years ago.

So, the whole thing looks to be an experiment doomed to failure for that reason.

Fitts: The next question has to do with high-tech risks.

Question #4: Should we beware of high-tech fires, ‘smart fires’, the push for immortality, DNA editing, 5G mind control and assassinations, and the interbreeding of humans with other species? What else?

Farrell: For my part, I’m of the ‘as in the days of Noah’ school. When you start seeing genetic chimeras and so on you are calling down ‘high heaven’ on your head. We weren’t meant to inner-breed with pigs or cats or what have you.

The other problem – and the bigger problem that I see – is this push for immortality, or at least longevity. It’s a spiritual problem. I mentioned this upfront in my very first book in this whole alternative research field, The Giza Death Star.

If you look at what they are really saying, they are saying that Mother Teresa has the ability to live 145 years or 200 or whatever, but so do Adolf Hitler and Joseph Stalin. So, do you want that kind of person having access to that kind of immortality?

The other problem is ennui. Imagine that you live 500 years. At a certain point, I think there is a spiritual consequence to that because you will get bored, and you will start doing evil things just for the sake of some excitement. We already see that in some of these people; we see it in George Soros. Here is a man who is so rich and so powerful and so bored that the only thing he can do to create some excitement for himself is to create chaos and mayhem and destruction.
We have to get it into our ‘thick heads’ that there are spiritual consequences to all this wonderful technological future that people are envisioning.

Fitts: The next question is about war.

Question #5: Will the US or Israel go to war in Iran? Will India start a war with Pakistan? When will China invade Taiwan? Has the US invaded Venezuela? Will the US and China go to war? What about Russia? How far might other countries’ conquests go once it becomes clear that the US will no longer play global cop?

Farrell: My thinking is that sooner or later, particularly now with the geopolitical blowback that is happening to China because of this coronavirus pandemic, China has to import food. If they are in a position where they cannot finance that or where the government is weakened, there is a chance that they might decide to solve the question with a war.

That is bad news for Russia because they are the ones in the closest proximity that have a big bread basket; it’s not India and it’s not Pakistan.

The Indians and the Pakistanis, I don’t know. Quite frankly, I’m worried about some of the signs that I see in the Modi government because there are many crazy ultra-right wingers in India who give me pause. So, I don’t rule that out of the question.

Israel and Iran—‘nutty’ Netanyahu has been saved once again by a crisis. I put nothing past that man; he is so out of touch with reality.

As far as the US going to war with Iran, I’m still rather skeptical. My chips are still on Venezuela if ‘push comes to shove’. If they want to war their way out of it, my bet is on Venezuela.

Fitts: I’m with you there.

Question #6: How will the US government central bank be reengineered after FASAB 56, the 2020 ‘plandemic’, elections, and after the JEDI contract is in place? Is the Plunge Protection Team being reengineered or privatized?
I think the owners of the New York Fed want to make sure that they are not liable for whatever happens next. I also think that once the JEDI contract is in place, the JEDI contract and the Amazon contract of the intelligence agencies – and I assume that Gates spun out of Microsoft and Berkshire Hathaway to help protect Microsoft’s position on the JEDI contract – are going to give them the ability to persuade the American people that a US government still exists when, in fact, it doesn’t.

They are going to try to move whatever liabilities the New York Fed member banks have into the Treasury, and they will do it under the guise of somehow making Trump a hero for, “Helping the Treasury assert control of the central bank,” or something. It is more Q ‘BS’.

Farrell: I’ve entertained that notion, too. If he is talking about getting equity stakes in corporations receiving bailed outs, I’ve had it in the back of my mind that one of his targets is the Fed. But if that happens, then basically you are letting all those people off the liability hook, and you are shifting liability to the Treasury.

The only gain that I can see for Trump and his fundamental philosophy is, “If we start getting equity stakes in companies, then we can make it so that companies execute the policy of reshoring industry to this country.”

That is a speculation and a scenario. But so far, I’m not seeing any signs or messages coming out of the Trump Administration that this is even in their minds.

Fitts: I think that the deep state has done a tremendous amount to privatize the operational capacity of the government. So, what they want is corporations and banks to run the operations, and they want to do it on a secret basis, but they want people to pay taxes.

Essentially, they want you to pay taxes to Walmart and Amazon to run the government on a secret basis. That is a problem because it’s what somebody said in the movie – and I’ll just use a bad word – “The screwing I’m getting is just not worth the screwing I’m getting.”

Farrell: The other problem with that scenario – and I’ve mentioned this before – is if the Bill of Rights was an addendum and an afterthought to the Founding Fathers in the Constitution, it’s even worse with corporations because the Bill of Rights is not part of their corporate charter. That is huge.
Fitts: Here is the beauty of this: You get a small percentage of the population understanding, “Wait a minute. We have the power to understand and reengineer all the money, and it’s really not all that complicated.”

The ironic thing is that the money starts with us, so we have that control. That is another reason not to get in the ‘crypt’ of the crypto or ‘crypt zero’ control plan.

Question #7: What will happen to US land and real estate as a result of the changes underway? What about the existing energy model?

Here is what I believe is plausible: If you said to me, “I want to make money on dropping the energy price. What do I do?” I would say, “You buy as much land and real estate as possible.”

So, I think that one of the reasons you see an effort with the housing bubble to push people off the land and real estate and get control of that in the big investors, is they know they are going to bring the energy price down, and they are going to make a fortune on the real estate. That is what I think.

Our theme for the 1st Quarter Wrap Up is ‘The Real Deal on Going Local’, and it’s the fight over getting ownership and control of the land and real estate.

Question #8: Who is Mr. Global? What is the governance structure on Planet Earth? And what are the risk issues that are driving Mr. Global’s actions?

Farrell: I am increasingly thinking that the real governance structure is not on the planet. It’s too crazy.

Fitts: The other thing is that there is the crypto-terrestrial theory which says there is a separate species here on Earth, and they make up all this alien matter so that we don’t figure out who they are.

Here is the thing: If you look at how much money is disappearing into a separate civilization – whether it’s breakaways or off-planet – you can’t come up with a theory of what is happening. This is like the father with two families. My question is this: Is the ‘plandemic’ and hitting the red button because you can’t keep both families going, and something has to give?
Farrell: I get that feeling as well. The other problem is the risk issues. In a certain sense, if we are talking about this ‘plandemic’ and Mr. Global doing this, I get the impression that this whole ‘plandemic’ thing was, to some extent, a panic reaction. They figured out that either something is coming, or they are way past a deadline, or they are coming up on a deadline, and they have to do all of this, and they have to do it quickly.

Fitts: They have to extend the dollar system, and they have to bring in the new system. The dollar has to hold on longer, and the new system has to come in faster, and it’s not working.

Farrell: The other thing is they needed to find out if they could be successful in locking down most of the planet. That tells me there is a defensive or military aspect to this that they are not talking about publicly. Why invoke continuity of government and have a group of people go into the bunker at Cheyenne Mountain?

Fitts: Because you are worried that a war is going to start.

If you look at what is happening with the economic war or the potential for physical war, it’s telling people the truth will cause more fear and panic than the ‘plandemic’.

Farrell: Let’s put it this way: It looks like this ‘plandemic’ was not only a panic reaction, but they had to reach for the best available plan. However, they didn’t really have another alternative; they didn’t have a plan. They were in a hurry and were in a panic, so whatever it is that has driven them to take this risk means that the risks were far higher. The problem is that we don’t know what those risks were; we don’t know what is in their calculus.

Fitts: Question #9: What is stranger: What is going on behind the veil of secrecy, or the overwhelming effort to pretend that it is not going on and create an official reality diverging steadily from reality?

Farrell: I don’t know about you, but my thinking is that it’s probably, ‘what is going on behind the veil of secrecy’ that is stranger.

Fitts: Really?
Farrell: Yes, otherwise there is something in their calculus that we don’t know about. So, they have created this crazy narrative that is the biological version of the magic bullet. That means they will take an enormous risk with the narrative. That tells me there is something going on behind the scenes that we don’t know about, and that is probably the strangest thing.

Fitts: Question #10: Given the tsunami of occult and demonic practices and symbols, should we be concerned about the interaction between AI and interdimensional intelligence?

Farrell: Oh yes, I absolutely think so.

Fitts: I can’t tell you how many people I know in the last year or two who laugh at me about my Christianity or reading the Bible, or have started studying Christianity and reading the bible!

Farrell: I’m noticing the same thing. I used to get laughed at for that, but much less so now.

I don’t know how to put it, but there has been some sort of shift in the field in the last couple of years, particularly since this coronavirus disease started happening.

Now all of a sudden, people are noticing that the churches are closing and they are not holding services. What is up with that? It’s a strange reaction because many of these people – at least to my knowledge – had no church affiliation or association to begin with. Now when they pass by the neighborhood church and see that it is all boarded up and there is nobody in the parking lot on Sunday, people begin to notice.

It’s the absence that is creating the presence in a peculiar way.

Fitts: The other thing is I think that for many people, the idea that there were satanic forces at work was old-fashioned. We are starting to see real evil show its face now, and it raises the question of where it is coming from and how to deal with it.

Question #11: Who is burning the churches of France and why?
Farrell: I’m going to ‘crawl way off the end of the twig’ here. The usual suspects would be Muslim terrorists or fundamentalist Muslims etc., and I don’t doubt that is a part of the activity. But behind that, I think you have ‘Mr. Globaloney’. I think behind that you have a whole Ziocon wacky war against Christianity taking place. They literally want to get rid of every physical reminder of that part of our history.

The patsies are like the 9/11 hijackers. They are the ones who you can easily fasten blame upon, but they have to have finances and organization and the protection of French intelligence to get away with any of that. France has some very good intelligence services, and there are no two ways about that.

So, you can’t tell me that this isn’t happening by some sort of ‘wink and nod’ and permission from ‘on high’ to do this sort of activity. There is no doubt in my mind.

Fitts: It’s frightening.

Question #12: What are the supporting facts and arguments for optimism?

Farrell: I don’t know about you, but I go back to my experience of going to the grocery store for the first time since this whole thing of self-quarantine and social distancing began. When I was standing in line, I was not hearing anybody who was buying the narrative; they were there because they were cynical and skeptical.

In other words, people are waking up. I hope people wake up to the point that they start saying ‘No’ and posting it on Twitter and posting it on Facebook and writing nasty letters to the mayors who wants to shut every business down.

Fitts: We published a great template. One of the subscribers wrote a letter to her county commissioners on, given the face of the facts, “How dare you shut down the small business community and shut down all of our businesses.” It’s very good. We published it so that other people could use it.

I would say, as I’ve said many times, there is no economic reason that I know of to not have plenty. We have run the economy on a non-sustainable basis, and it needs to convert to a sustainable one. We can do that, but you either have to move to central control of a slave planet with a small elite living for 140 years, or you have to grow up and organize the economy responsibly with respect to the land and to each other and ourselves.
We either have to grow up, or we have to go into a form of dark slavery. I am not going to go into dark slavery. My attitude is, “My soul is immortal, so I don’t have to worry about anything other than compromising my moral soul.” As long as I don’t do that, I will leave this planet whenever I leave this planet. I’m not worried about when I leave this planet because I will leave it when I am supposed to.

In the meantime, I want to build a human future. I know it’s economically possible. The question is: When is a sufficient number of people going to insist on a human future? We have to grow up.

I am looking forward to our growing up. I think the whole history of the human race is that it always looks dire and hopeless, and then we grow up!

I have one wonderful subscriber who I talk to about once a week. He always says, “I feel like I’m a Muggle being squeezed and the wizards are warring.” He is making me read Harry Potter, which I find to be a dreadful experience. It’s a little like watching Boris Johnson run the UK.

Farrell: He is apparently in intensive care right now.

Fitts: You’re kidding! I knew that he was in the hospital but I didn’t realize that he was in intensive care. Prayers for Boris. (He has since been released)

Take Action.

Let’s talk about some. I keep saying this every week, and I will say it again: Figure out where your food is going to come from because I don’t know that the global supply chains are going to deliver it next year.

Farrell: And stand up and say, ‘No’.

Fitts: Absolutely. Let’s get Bill Gates fired as the ‘Vaccine King’.

Support Great Leadership. I explained that Thomas Massie (Kentucky Congressman) was our ‘Hero of the Year. There is a great line in the movie JFK describing Garrison as he is trying to bring justice to the Kennedy assassination. He says, “Let justice be done though the heavens fall.” That is Massie sitting there. Where he got the courage to do that, I don’t know, but God bless him.
Any other heroes you want to mention for the quarter?

Farrell: I have to doff my hat to Robert Kennedy, Jr. “Keep plodding on, sir. You are doing yeoman’s work.”

Fitts: Finally, is Inspiration.

Where have you gotten your inspiration over the first quarter, and where are you looking for inspiration in the second quarter?

Farrell: Bruno for one thing.

Fitts: You have to tell everybody who Bruno is.

Farrell: Bruno is my nickname for the virtual pipe organ. I call it Bruno because it’s loud.

My inspiration is largely from music, and mostly listening to Bach’s. It constantly amazes me the amount of high-quality music that they both turned out, particularly Sebastian Bach. It’s just truly astonishing.

Fitts: I have been on a journey of learning about organ music and listening to organ music ever since I got to know you and your love for organs. I was touched by a video that Max Egan made about speculating that churches with organs were really places of healing, where you went on Sunday to actually have an electromagnetic healing. That has happened to me.

I have been at concerts – both organ and symphony – where it’s the equivalent of electromagnetic healing. It happened to me during a symphony once, and I was stunned and amazed at the experience. I asked you if you thought that was true, and you said, “Yes, it might be.”

Maybe you could explain that.

Farrell: Every organist will tell you that sitting at the console of a large pipe organ, particularly in a wet space (and ‘wet’ is an organist term for an auditorium or a church building that has a lot of reverberation where organs really shine), when you play them, it is a physiological experience.
You feel in a way that no other instrument is capable of doing. You can feel those sound waves vibrate you. There are ‘just no two ways’ about it.

It can be an exhilarating experience, but you come out of a practice session feeling unusually tired but simultaneously renewed. I don’t know how else to put it.

We are made primarily of water, so you have all of those harmonic sounds vibrating your water molecules, and I think there is something about that which puts you back in alignment. I genuinely believe that there is a kind of hyper-dimensional physics also going on, particularly in those churches with big organs because a cruciform shape (a three-dimensional shape) is actually a three-dimensional analog of a hyper-dimensional object called a tesseract or a hypercube.

I think there is a hyper-dimensional aspect to the physics of it that we don’t really understand. But as far as the experience itself, there is really nothing like it. You don’t get that experience with any other musical instrument because with an organ, you are literally sitting inside the instrument.

Fitts: One of the things that I really enjoy about Europe is how many great organs there are.

Farrell: Oh my word, yes, that is true.

Fitts: I didn’t believe you when you told me that you could do a virtual pipe and that virtual pipes would sound truly like real pipes. So until I heard Bruno, I didn’t believe it.

When I saw the software –developed by the German– that let you do Chartres and Harlem and all these different organs, it was amazing.

Farrell: It truly is. The only thing about a virtual pipe organ that is different is that you don’t get that physical feel in quite the same way because you are not dealing with real pipes moving real air. But other than that, the sound of them is remarkably similar. You have to have a very good ear to distinguish between the two, which you can do once you know what to listen for.
Fitts: I want to remind you that our allies in the Netherlands have insisted that they are going to arrange for you to play the Harlem organ when you are ready. I have offered that if you said that you would, since you are not going to fly, that we would arrange to sail you to the Netherlands.

Farrell: Here is the problem, and I’ve mentioned this before. That organ is a tracker, which means that it is all mechanical actions – from the keyboard to the pipe. If you watch videos of organists and, - I just posted one on my Facebook page of a Dutch organist playing that instrument-if you watch the depression on the keys, the depression on the keys of that instrument is almost a full inch because there is so much pressure that he has to exercise in order to overcome that mechanical action.

So for me to play that instrument, I would have to practice on a tracker and build up the strength in my hands to be able to play that instrument effectively.

I’m 63, and my 63-year-old body isn’t quite as nimble as my 24-year-old body once was.

Fitts: Maybe we’ll sail you over to tour the great organs. At Chartres, they have organ competitions over the summer that are unbelievable; they are truly unbelievable.

Farrell: That whole French school of organ playing is rather remarkable. One of my organ heroes, Charles-Marie Widor, was the one who actually ‘kicked’ that off and influenced this.

Fitts: I didn’t know that.

Farrell: Yes, it was primarily Widor who started that whole thing. Before he came along French organ playing was really in the tank. There’s no other way to put it.

Fitts: Let me mention my inspiration: It has been ‘Food for the Soul’. Several years ago, you said that we had to save the culture, so I kept ‘bugging you’, “What is my action? What is my action?”

I was having lunch with Nina Heyn in Los Angeles. I’ve never known anybody who scours global museums the way that she does. She loves art, so whether it’s museums or exhibits, she is amazing.
I said, “Nina, would you write a column for The Solari Report”, not quite knowing what would happen? So she began, and it is so fabulous. She covers art, she covers museums, and she covers all sorts of unusual exhibits and movies as well.

So I loved it so much I said, “Write two a month.” Then I said, “Tell us what the great things are that are going on this year, and we will pay you to fly there and cover them.”

Last year was the year of da Vinci, so we went to Milan. It was also Rembrandt’s anniversary, so we went to the Rijksmuseum. Nina is the kind of person where, if you follow her around a museum, it’s like walking around with the Encyclopedia Britannica volume of art. The Rijksmuseum had an exhibit of all the Rembrandts, and it was packed, and everybody was following Nina because I was asking her questions. She would answer the questions, and everybody was listening, and then they would ask her questions. Before you knew it, hundreds of people were following her around and listening to her.

You know how a child looks when they see the tree full of presents on Christmas, and they are inhaling, like, “Ahhhh!” and it’s the most wonderful face in the world? That is Nina walking into a museum; she is just going, “Ahhhh!”

We went to the Louvre to see a da Vinci, and it was incredible. It was extraordinary because I have two sketches by da Vinci that are two of my favorite da Vinci’s, and it never occurred to me that I would ever see them in my lifetime. Standing before them was an incredible experience, and I thought, “Why didn’t I just say, ‘You can have this?’” Why didn’t I envision that I could see my favorite da Vinci’s?” It never occurred to me that I could do it.

The bottom line is that we decided to take all of the ‘Food for the Soul’ columns and her different work and publish it on one special web presentation, which we are now launching. It’s called ‘Food for the Soul’.

I should tell everybody that you are basically the Godfather of ‘Food for the Soul’ because it all came from your idea that we had to nurture the culture. So, I will send you the link when we launch it.
If you are at home quarantined, and you want an idea of fabulous things that you can do virtually, as well as things you can stream that really do provide food for the soul, I would encourage you to check it out at www.Food4thesoul.solari.com.

One of the things that I have encouraged Nina to do because she is very interested in women artists who have never gotten much coverage, and so she has researched all these great artists. They are mostly Europeans, and she is doing a whole series on women artists. She has really a passion for it, so I asked her to continue to do that.

So, our inspirations are: ‘Food for the Soul’ and organ music. Whatever your inspiration is, just remember that beauty and joy are absolutely essential for survival, especially when you deal with the demonic; you have to stay in a higher mind.

There is a separation occurring. You can go to the demonic culture, or you can go to the divine culture. That is only going to happen if we actively invest in and nurture it.

Your insight there really ‘saved my bacon’, and that is all I can say.

Farrell: I think that many people are going through some kind of cultural transformation or transition right now. I’m seeing it on my website and on Facebook and so on. I think that something is afoot. I don’t know exactly what it is, but something is definitely going on.

Fitts: Something is afoot, and for me, that is a reason for optimism.

That is our 1st Quarter 2020 Wrap Up: News Trends & Stories, Part II. Any other ‘pearls of wisdom’, Dr. Farrell?

Farrell: I can’t think of any. I will probably think of quite a few after we quit, but not off the ‘top of my head’ right now.

Fitts: Tell us what is up for the second quarter for Giza Death Star. When are you doing your vidchats? How do we join? I know that there is another book coming, too, right?
Farrell: I am trying to write a book and get it done. In fact, I am trying to write two books. One of them is on a subject that is so dark that it is very difficult for me to sit down and write more than a page at a time, but it is something that needs to be done.

Fitts: That exactly describes what is happening with me with The State of our Currencies.

Farrell: The other book I just started, and I am hoping to get that done shortly. I am planning to do some writing on it, and I am planning to get that done relatively soon.

The vidchats are usually on every other Friday. The schedule is posted on my website. They are for subscribing/paying members only, so people need to be aware of that. The next one is going to be after the Orthodox Easter, which is April 19th. I don’t remember the exact date that that vidchat is on. I have a vidchat to make up because I canceled one last Friday due to internet issues, but those are normally every two weeks on Fridays.

Fitts: As you pointed out, we are coming into Easter, and it is a time of renewal. It is a good time for Easter.

Dr. Joseph Farrell, thank you for joining us on The Solari Report for 1st Quarter 2020 Wrap Up: News Trends & Stories, Part II.

Farrell: Thanks for having me back on, Catherine.
