2nd Quarter 2020 Wrap Up:
The Injection Fraud: A Sane
Person's Guidebook to the Global Pandemic, Part I
with Jon Rappoport

Summary: The theme for the 2nd Quarter 2020 Wrap Up is The Injection Fraud: A Sane Person's Guidebook to the Global Pandemic.

We have published the very best intelligence on the pandemic sourced by our networks and subscribers throughout 2020. However, I realized there was a need to gather the best materials into one collection. An aggregation of excellent sources communicates the power and the wealth of materials available.

Moreover, it demonstrates the brilliance and courage of so many people who have risked their incomes and their lives in the service of excellence in science, medicine, and government. These are "the names of those who in their lives fought for life," besting many of the lies of the global pandemic in 2020.

Among this group of courageous individuals is our own Jon Rappoport, who I have asked to join me for a two-part discussion for the 2nd Quarter 2020 Wrap Up of the best sources and intelligence on the pandemic. After decades of investigative reporting and analysis of multiple health care frauds and numerous epidemics and pandemics, Jon was one of the first to sound the alarm that the official story on Covid-19 did not match the facts. Jon shared many of his insights in our Solari interview on "Coronavirus, Epidemics, and Vaccine Terrorism" in March and in the six-part series "Creation of a False Epidemic" in April and May.

This is Part I of the 2nd Quarter 2020 Wrap Up. Jon and I discuss many of the best sources and materials on the global pandemic.

Bio: Jon Rappoport has worked as a free-lance investigative reporter for over 30 years.

He is the author of three explosive collections, THE MATRIX REVEALED, EXIT FROM THE MATRIX, and POWER OUTSIDE THE MATRIX.

He has written articles on politics, health, media, culture and art for LA Weekly, Spin Magazine, Stern, Village Voice, Nexus, CBS Healthwatch, and other newspapers and magazines in the US and Europe.

In 1982, the LA Weekly submitted his name for a Pulitzer prize, for his interview with the president of El Salvador University, where the military had taken over the campus.

Jon has hosted, produced, and written radio programs and segments in Los Angeles and Las Vegas (KPFK, KLAV). He has appeared as a guest on over 200 radio and television programs, including ABC's Nightline, Tony Brown's Journal (PBS), and Hard Copy.

In 1994, Jon ran for a seat in the US Congress from the 29th district in Los Angeles. After six months of campaigning, on a very small budget, he garnered 20 percent of the vote running against an incumbent who had occupied his seat for 20 years.

In 1996, Jon started The Great Boycott, against eight corporate chemical giants: Monsanto, Dow, Du Pont, Bayer, Hoechst, Rhone-Poulenc, Imperial Chemical Industries, and Ciba-Geigy. The Boycott continues to operate today.

Jon has lectured extensively all over the US on the question: Who runs the world and what can we do about it?

Since 2000, Jon has operated largely away from the mainstream because, as he puts it, "My research was not friendly to the conventional media."

Over the last 30 years, Jon's independent research has encompassed such areas as: deep politics, conspiracies, alternative health, the potential of the human imagination, mind control, the medical cartel, symbology, and solutions to the takeover of the planet by hidden elites.

He maintains a consulting practice for private clients, the purpose of which is the expansion of personal creative power.

A painter, Jon's work has been shown in galleries in Los Angeles and New York. His poetry has been published by The Massachusetts Review.

He is a graduate of Amherst College (BA, Philosophy), and lives in San Diego.

C. Austin Fitts: Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to The Solari Report. This is the 2nd Quarter 2020 Wrap Up: The Best of the Pandemic, a Sane Person's Guidebook. Our big title, of course, is 'The Injection Fraud' because we look at this both from an economic point of view, and part of that is where they are trying to take the currency system, which leads us into the injection fraud.

As you know, our favorite person to talk to about all healthcare frauds, fake science, and related shenanigans is none other than the infamous Jon Rappoport, who after decades and decades of reporting and trying to warn everybody about this, has literally in the last six months, 'saved our bacon'.

I've seen the many decades of work it took to be in a position to do that, so Jon has agreed to join me to discuss 'The Best of the Pandemic'.

Jon Rappoport, thank you for joining me on The Solari Report. Most of all, thank you for 'saving our bacon' on the pandemic.

Jon Rappoport: Hi, Catherine. As always, it's great to be here. I'm looking forward to this. It will be very interesting.

Fitts: Before we dive in, let's talk a little about what we think of as 'The Best of the Pandemic'. Many great people and great sources have done a marvelous job of bringing forward the facts on many different aspects of what has happened. We are talking about a global phenomenon which entails a radical reengineering of both political and economic systems.

It's a very complicated topic, and it involves everything, but I have been struck at how many heroic, courageous people there are. My focus is both on people who have done a marvelous job of bringing the facts forward and helping us understand what is going on, particularly unpacking the lies. I am also focused on the people who basically took the official story and 'turned it on its head'. The words that keep coming to mind are, "Like a hot knife through butter."

There have been some amazing contributions. That is my notion of the 'Best of the Pandemic'. It's the best information sources, but the information sources that really help us cut through the fog.

What about you?

Rappoport: I would say that is very good. I made a list of people, and I could have made it much longer. Once you start, it keeps expanding. Different people play different roles, so to speak; they attack it from different angles. Of course, my focus has always been on the fake science, so I tend to go in that direction.

Upside down is a very vital phrase here because it's one of these 'everything you know is wrong' situations. So, going to the root is very important. How far down the tree do you go to get at the lies and the delusions that are spreading everywhere?

Fitts: I want to start early on. The lockdown in China started in November 2019, but not many people knew about it. Things really got going at the beginning of 2020. When the United States announced the lockdown and the announcement that it had been officially made a pandemic, was in March. That's when you and I did the series on the pandemic, and you did a couple of recordings that we published.

I think your writings and those recordings – as well as a whole series of interviews you did – came out very aggressive and very hard right at the beginning. Of course, everybody was scared because they didn't know. "Maybe this time it's real. Who knows? I don't know what is going on."

There was a bit of a shellshock by people not knowing what to think and not having many facts, but you had been through this so many times before, and you had seen the lies so many times before. You came out very aggressive and really hard, and it turned out in retrospect that you were 100% right.

It was ironic because I remember people telling me, "I don't know. Jon's a little aggressive about this. You might want to be careful."

That always happens; they get the shock benefit early on. But you were fearless, and you were sure that this was very much like some of the other ones you covered; they just managed to take this one big and global.

I have to start by saying that your performance was incredible. I want to ask you how you were so sure that this was a complete psyop. How did you know?

Rappoport: There were a couple of things that were immediate red flags. The first, and I've encountered this several times, is how did they discover the new virus that they were suddenly promoting? And as usual, nobody knows' it's just accepted.

The process in the lab, what are they really doing? Nobody ever videotapes it; nobody films it; nobody lays it out step by step and proves what they are doing is correct. So, that leaves everything up in the air.

The suddenness by which they do this is another factor. They learned from their experience with AIDS and HIV, which was my first introduction to this insanity back in 1986 when there were many arguments in journals about what the cause of AIDS was. All manner of people weighed in, and it was getting to be like the Wild West, which was not good for the establishment.

They wanted to 'nail' something, and they eventually did in May of 1984 in a press conference on television. Margaret Heckler, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, which then was Health and Welfare, said, "Okay, we found the virus. That's it." Robert Gallo said, "That's right," and that was the end of the research.

Suddenly, all the research money went there with HIV. Anyone working on anything else as a cause was cut out of the equation very brusquely unless they changed their tune. In my first book, AIDS, Inc., I interviewed a doctor in New York who had been the editor of a journal – I think it was called AIDS Research – and he was publishing articles by several people who were presenting different viewpoints about what AIDS was and what the cause was. Suddenly, he found himself without a job, and the journal was taken over, and the whole thing became HIV dogma.

So, I would say that I was prepared. When the announcement came out of China, it was like, "Whoa. Who is doing this? Who are the scientists, and what are they doing?"

The burden of proof is on them; it's not on me. So, let's see the proof. And there wasn't any that was convincing to me. So then I said, "Okay, the whole thing is now going to be based on a story – not the virus, but a story about a virus."

I could give you a few other key moments, but that was the trigger. I said, "Okay, this is a rerun of everything that I've seen with West Nile, swine flu 2009, SARS 2003, Zika, and the complete parade of frauds that came down the 'pipeline'. That is why I was so sure.

Fitts: After I started recording this series with you, I dove in and read Virus Mania, and then did an interview with Tom Cowan, who was also brave. He came out quite early, and it was the same thing; he asked, "Where is the virus?"

So, we did an interview on germ theory. Then I read all the books of Forest Mearns about how this virus game had worked. He has quantities of information on the business game of the fraud. For example, DDT poisons people, you call it a disease, you say that it's caused by a virus, you create a vaccine, you stop using DDT, and then you say that it's because the vaccine worked that the symptoms go away, and you save the insurance company a fortune. It's basically an insurance fraud.

I think the combination of all that showed you that there have been many people who have been documenting along this 'game', and there are many variations on it. I don't mean to oversimplify it.

Fake science and science fraud have been a game for a long, long, time, and it is intimately involved with protecting corporations and the insurance industry.

Rappoport: Absolutely. It's the greatest cover story in the world – the story about a virus.

Fitts: It's hard to believe how bad it's gotten. Look at what is going on globally; they really think they can fake a pandemic.

Rappoport: I'll mention one of my heroes who passed away about a month ago, David Crowe. His website is www.TheInfectiousMyth.com.

David researched many things, and he was very meticulous on the science. He was very specific in looking at other studies and taking them apart and criticizing them and so forth. He was a prominent person waging a battle about the question of: Did they ever discover HIV? Is the virus real?

When this whole thing erupted, he started an article about the COVID-19 virus. Until very shortly before he passed away, he kept updating it and updating it. You can find his critique at www.TheInfectiousMyth.com where he looks at the questions of what would constitute proof of having found a new virus, how does this effort fall short, what are the missteps and the delusions and the con games that are played, etc.

I was very glad to see that he ‘took up the sword’ this time, and wrote a number of articles referring to his piece on the situation. That was a key for me.

Fitts: One of the things that had most impacted me was the video of the meeting in Switzerland of the vaccine program heads from all over the world. I will define the Vaxxed I and Vaxxed II group as the people at Children’s Health Defense and then Andrew Wakefield and Polly Tommey and Del Bigtree. We had Vaxxed II published last year, which I think is an amazing documentary. Then the video happened. Did you watch that video?

Rappoport: I don’t think I’ve seen it. I may have seen clips from it, but not the whole thing.

Fitts: Del Bigtree gathered the clips, and it’s the clips he gathered that you need to see. Essentially, what came out was that there was significant global pushback against what they wanted to achieve with the global vaccination program. Primarily, they wanted a global mandate, and the pushback was significant. The analysis said that the practitioners and the parents want proof that individual vaccines are safe and effective, and that the combination is safe and effective. We don’t have any science to prove that individually, they are safe and effective, let alone put them all in a body together.

Rappoport: Now I know what you are talking about; yes, I’ve seen this.

Fitts: It was a magical moment because it took the death and disability of many, many people to get to the point where the parents, the doctors, and the program heads were willing to face how frightening it was.

When I watched those clips and had it underscored and explained by various people, you realized that as of January 1st, the push for vaccines globally was ‘dead in the water’.

Rappoport: Right.

Fitts: It’s much easier to understand COVID-19 if you understand that the push for a global mandate for vaccines was ‘dead in the water’, and they needed some kind of radical action.

Rappoport: That is another fantastic key. They’ve done this before. Peter Doshi, a very good researcher, published excerpts from his medical journal articles and exposed this about the flu vaccines some years ago at a meeting held at the CDC. It was really a PR meeting about, ‘how do we get people to line up for the flu shot?’

They knew then that they were losing the war, and they started talking about, “In our promotional literature and with the press and everything, we have to emphasize how severe the flu can be. It could be life and death.”

What you are talking about is the super-climax of that fear on their part when they gathered together and said, “We’re losing, and we’ve got to do something very serious here to get the audience back.”

It would be similar to opening a play in Hartford in the old days before you would take it to Broadway, and then the writer, producer, and director would sit there and watch the audience reaction. After opening night in Hartford, they would say, “Wow! We have a flop that is just going to destroy everybody, so will have to shore this thing up. I can see six scenes that we have to rewrite, and we have to get this actor on board better,” and they keep on fiddling with it and hopefully make it good before they take it to Broadway.

It's the same idea here. That meeting that you were talking about was: How do we sell this thing? People are defecting.

Fitts: They had to face a magic moment when Larson, the anthropologist who did the study, said, "You have to be able to prove with science that it is safe and effective."

Everybody was looking as if, "Well, that's a problem."

So quite early on, once the pandemic was announced, Bill Gates was anointed head salesman for the vaccine mandate.

I've been working for many, many months on a piece called The State of Our Currencies, and the hard part is explaining to people that the evolution of the dollar system is not a new currency, or it isn't even a currency at all; it is essentially, "You are going to get gypped, and then you get a credit at the company store." But to get that operating system in you, just like Bill Gates has an operating system in your computer, they need the vaccination.

So Gates got on Reddit, and suddenly it was almost as though they were trying to bring the chipping system out of the closet and sell it and make it friendly.

Gates is very careful; he doesn't say, "We want to chip you," but if you look at all the different projects that his foundation is financing, I think it's getting quite clear where this is going. At least that is my opinion.

Rappoport: I would agree.

Fitts: The media is promoting Gates as though he is the coming of the Messiah. So suddenly, there was a group of people who jumped on Gates' tail, one of whom was Bobby Kennedy at Children's Health Defense. The other was James Corbett. It was like watching two fighter pilots with machine guns come in and shred the man to pieces. It was rather amazing. Corbett did a series of four videos on Gates, and when it was over, between Kennedy and Children's Health Defense and Corbett, Gates was in real trouble. That is why they started getting new people for Operation Warp Speed and trying to find other leaders. Gates was quite beat up by then.

The amusing part was when Roger Stone came out and said, “Bill Gates just wants to chip us.”

It became something that you could talk about on the Main Street.

Rappoport: Let me approach this from another vector on what you are talking about. You mentioned her before because she would be on my list as one of the great ones, and that is Polly Tommey.

Fitts: She is unbelievable; she’s fabulous.

Rappoport: Here was one of the great reasons that meeting you’re describing had to be held in Switzerland: – The loss of faith in vaccinations.

I’m going to focus on Vaxxed II for a moment. This is a film which I have talked about endlessly before. If anybody hasn’t seen it yet, you just have to see it.

Fitts: It’s a must see; you have to see it.

Rappoport: I hardly ever say that, but you must see it.

Polly was the one who acquired the bus to travel the country, and I talked to her about it. I said, “I know you had no advanced team. It wasn’t like you were setting up stops along the way, and somebody was corralling people to suddenly come with their brain-damaged children on camera and talk about what vaccination did to them,” which is what the movie is; these people just showed up.

She said, “Yes, they just showed up. It was incredible.”

That is what she did. Talk about devastating! The stories, the parents, and the children: the live children who are brain-damaged, and the children who have died – on and on– leaving no doubt in anybody’s mind at the end of this as to what vaccination is really all about. That act in itself is just incredible.

Fitts: It is incredible. When she started, she and Wakefield were very knowledgeable about the MMR and certain vaccinations, and Kennedy was knowledgeable about a few. But they had no idea the scale and scope of the problem. So, you were on a learning journey with them. It was literally story after story, interview after interview, and they are learning with you.

You realize the magnitude and the scope of what is really genocide. You are talking about killing and disabling millions and millions of children intentionally. There is one point where Polly says, “This is barbaric. This is barbarism,” and it absolutely brings it home.

Rappoport: There are moments in the film where you can’t even imagine unless you’ve had that experience yourself, what the parents, and the children, of course, are going through or have gone through. Even you as a viewer, break down; you can’t handle it; it’s impossible.

I had to leave and come back. This one boy who was on this incredible pump – this machine that he is connected to for all of his life – nevertheless, has some type of air of cheerfulness that destroys you. Then they tell you that he left this world because he didn’t want to be a burden. That was after the interview.

So, this gets down to something that goes beyond any kind of attempt to be abstract about what is happening here. This is what the vaccine establishment and Bill Gates are dealing with, which they can’t deal with; they can’t deal with it; it’s impossible.

So, what do you do? You say, “We have to lock down everybody and force as many people as we can to get a vaccine. This is our only game plan that we can do because if we leave it up to people or if we don’t give them the kind of crisis that is going to impact their adrenaline very hard, we are going to lose the war to vaccinate the population of the planet.”

Fitts: Right, and that is why I think it’s so important to absolutely rip their credibility to shreds. You have to understand how psychopathic these people are and the damage that they’ve done.

I don’t know if you’ve seen Andrew Wakefield’s new film, 1986: The Act.

That is a great way to follow up on Vaxxed II. It makes clear the difference that protecting all the pharmaceutical companies from any liability has made, and all the damage that has done and could do in the future.

Rappoport: That was the key moment; indemnifying them against any liability whatsoever.

People can see how all of this coalesces. First of all, even if you look at some of these ‘lunatics’ who are pushing and pushing the global vaccine project, and they aren’t the top-most criminals, they can’t walk it back; they can’t go back.

It’s the same thing that I found when I was writing AIDS, Inc. I said, “This whole idea of HIV causing AIDS, the evidence isn’t there. It’s just ridiculous. You can take this thing apart in 17 different ways,” but that was my first time out as an ‘investigator’. So the thought was: Could the establishment walk it back? Could they say, “We made a mistake?”

Then I thought, “There is no way. Once you’re in, you’re in.” That’s part of the criminal enterprise MO. That’s the way it works.

Down below, the top psychopaths are the people who get involved, and then, before they know it, they are in too deep and can’t walk it back. They can’t admit that they’ve made a ‘mistake’. It’s not a mistake. We are talking about mass murder and destruction of brains on a planet-wide scale. There is no way they can go back.

That is part of the reason they keep on pushing this juggernaut forward, because they think that if they run fast enough they can escape the truth. That is their MO.

Fitts: One thing that busy people need is a way to summarize and get the necessary 411 on what is going on. One of the best aggregators I found to stay current on the pandemic’s basic statistics and facts is a website called Swiss Policy Research. It used to be called Swiss Propaganda Research. I don’t know if you’ve ever used it.

Rappoport: Indeed, I have.

Fitts: I've been in Switzerland for the last two weeks. Every person I ask about it said, "Oh, we love it, but everybody pooh-pooh's it because the authors of the COVID section are anonymous."

Rappoport: Very anonymous.

Fitts: I suspect it is because they are doctors and scientists, etc. I found it to be a very good kind of overview. That is useful because you get these waves of media – thousands of people are dying, dying, dying – and the biggest wave, of course, in the United States was New York, and people were dying. That was always the question.

In Italy, people were dying, but the question was: What is happening?

If you look at the statistics, it is only a bad flu. But you have these selected places where there were real hot spots; New York and Northern Italy. I'm really focused on New York because I've had so many dealings with Cuomo and I found it interesting what has been going on.

People were dying, and those deaths were leveraged into this massive terror. Of course, the questions were: What is happening to them? Why are they dying? What do we do about it?

What came out through a long, very gruesome period was that there are cures that can prevent much of the sickness or death, and every effort has been made to censor them.

Rappoport: No question about it.

One quick point that I want to make, which I think is important to clarify things, is that websites like Swiss Policy Research and a few others, and JB Handley who writes for the Children's Health Defense are very helpful.

Fitts: Lockdown Lunacy is fabulous.

Rappoport: What I've tried to make clear to my readers is there are two positions that you can take as an investigator: One is that you stand outside the whole paradigm from the beginning, and you say, "Look, you never proved that a new virus exists." The burden of proof is on them. Therefore, they can't say what they're saying because they can't present evidence for it.

If you stand outside that whole paradigm, there is an entire raft of implications and statements that the establishment will be making that are completely meaningless, "The test is meaningless, the case numbers are meaningless, the success numbers are meaningless," and the whole thing is because, "What virus? What are you talking about? Tests for what virus?"

The other position that you can take up is to go inside their world of assuming, "Yes, there is a virus, and it's been spreading around," and now you show all the internal inconsistencies and contradictions and lies and fake narratives that are happening within that world of theirs. I've done both because it's important to do both, but it is also important to let people know which one you are doing at any given moment so that they understand.

For example, at the Children's Health Defense, Bob Kennedy's website, you can see some important articles on the COVID-19 situation, particularly the upcoming vaccine. He's not saying that there is no virus, but what he is saying about the vaccine and so on is vital to understand. So that is an important point.

Fitts: I have subscribers who are in healthcare – doctors and nurses – and there is no doubt that they have been dealing with people dying of a lung problem and an oxygen problem and hypoxia. It's a set of symptoms that some people would describe as the symptoms of cyanide poisoning or of certain kinds of respiratory problems. So, there is some kind of phenomena.

Arthur Firstenberg and the 5G people believe that much of this could be caused by a new round of electrification, if you will. It could be in combination.

I guess that these people absolutely have the ability – and I keep getting reports from subscribers across the country – that they have heavy chemtrail spraying, and the next thing you know, they have a new wave of COVID-19 cases, but I continue to believe that you have pathogens that can be turned on by digital or electromagnetic means. So, you have the ability for the 'spooky people' to fundamentally create sickness, if you will.

I agree with you that the death numbers and the test numbers are meaningless, but they can make people sick, and people are getting sick. One of the things that are causing people to get sick is just terror.

Rappoport: Especially the older people.

Fitts: It's incredible.

Rappoport: Can you imagine it? To begin with, you are isolated more or less from friends and family, you are suffering from 13 serious health conditions for the last 20 years, you've been treated with toxic meds the whole way, and now all of a sudden, you hear all of this propaganda, and you are terrified of a diagnosis, and then you get a diagnosis of COVID-19. Now they cut you off from all connections with friends and family, whether you are in a nursing home or another long-term facility or in an apartment alone, and you fold up and die. That's it.

One of the things that I pointed out is, yes, if you want to call these the unexplainable or the superficially unexplainable cases of people dying with unusual symptoms, even there you are looking at multiple potential causes, depending upon who the people are, where they live, and what is happening there.

For example, regarding hypoxia, I did an article where I listed some causes of hypoxia. One of them is opioids.

In New York, they have an incredibly serious problem with opioids. I presented some statistics there. So, some of those people show up at hospitals during the COVID crisis, everyone is in hysteria about it, and they overlook the fact that this person has been taking fentanyl, and that is the hypoxia. They put him on a ventilator, blow him out, and he dies. How many of those people are listed as COVID deaths?

Fitts: We had a whistleblower in New York whose name was Erin with a long Polish name. She did an hour-long video describing why the protocols and therapies in New York were killing people who didn't need to die.

Rappoport: Yes, I spoke with her several times. I'm not sure I know what to make of her story exactly. I know people have tried to counter what she said, etc., but I did see a report of a study that was done. I think the hospital chain in New York State is called Northwell; it is the largest hospital chain. They did a study on the effect of ventilator treatment, which means intubation and heavy sedation because when there is a tube down you, you aren't going to be able to handle it unless you are heavily sedated.

The results of the report were that for people over the age of 64, 97% of those put on ventilators died.

Fitts: Unbelievable!

Rappoport: Ninety-seven percent! And yet there was nothing that suddenly said, "Of course we are going to stop this."

Fitts: If you looked at the financial incentives, you could quadruple the amount of money you paid if you said it was a COVID death and were put on a ventilator.

Rappoport: Exactly. And then, of course, when they die, if they are in long-term care, then the insurance doesn't have to keep on paying and paying and paying for their long-term care.

Fitts: I don't know if you saw the latest articles on the healthcare insurance companies, but their profits are doing gloriously because everybody has to keep paying their premiums, but nobody can go to the hospital, and there are no elective surgeries allowed. The insurance company is 'smelling like a rose' here.

Let's discuss America's frontline doctors. We have had a series of doctors who have come out and said, "Look, I am doing this in my clinical practice. Hydroxychloroquine, if given early, absolutely works. I've had hundreds of patients, and I've treated hundreds of patients and have had hundreds of successes, and there have been no problems.”

We recently had a panel of nine doctors, including Simone Gold who led the conference in Washington, Dr. Stella Immanuel, who is originally from Cameroon and she is very knowledgeable about how hydroxychloroquine and other drugs like it are used for malaria and other illnesses throughout Africa and the third world. Then we had Dr. Erickson who is, I believe, one of the great, brave doctors at the beginning. He has a series of clinics in Bakersfield and he came out and shared information.

If you listen to a panel that nine doctors just did, which has been published in a video, they said that there is no reason for any lockdown whatsoever. We have a cure, it's highly effective, it can be given early, and there is no reason for any lockdown; there is no reason for masks; there is no reason to shut down the economy. This is ridiculous.

If you listen, these are people with deep experience and clinical experience. They are working with patients every day. It's quite amazing.

Rappoport: Yes, and let me add to that. I was recently reading an article in Spectator USA that mentioned the so-called 'flu pandemics' of 1957 and 1968 and quoted the official statistics worldwide on deaths that dwarfed the official statistics now on COVID-19. They mentioned that there were no lockdowns, people lived, went to work, and got through it.

It is obvious from looking at that that there were probably public health officials who were screaming at the time for more quarantines, warning that the virus was going to spread unchecked all over the world, and that was going to be the end of the human race, etc. And it never happened; it just didn't happen.

People went about their lives as best they could. I was certainly alive then. I was in college in 1957, and I remember the warnings, "Get the flu shot," or whatever they had then. I paid no attention to it. The whole thing seemed ridiculous to me.

I noticed a number of students who pretended they had the flu because this was a common practice in those days at the college where I went. When exams would come up, they would do what we called ‘take a dive’. They would go to the infirmary complaining of symptoms, and the doctor would tell them to rest and not go to class, or he would actually put them in a bed or something like that. The exam would pass, and they would be able to study and make it up later and somehow eke out a passing grade. The whole thing was just ridiculous.

The same thing the doctors that you mentioned are saying about ‘no lockdowns’ and ‘no need for any of this distancing or masks or whatever’, that is the case. If that had been the strategy, which really means no strategy, we would be living through ‘a bad flu season’ and that would be it.

Fitts: I remember seeing the statistics when the Governor of Texas put Texas back into a lockdown. The statistics were that the last two years of flu season had seen essentially three times more death than what was reported for COVID-19.

Rappoport: Exactly. JB Handley and his Lockdown Lunacy has been pointing this out. Other people have been pointing it out. It’s common knowledge at this point, for anybody who has been paying attention.

I’m going to mention another name, Celia Farber, who has been a reporter fighting the AIDS wars since the late 1980’s. I was not aware of her so much then, but in the 1990’s, I was. She wrote regular articles for Spin Magazine, and she wrote for Harper’s a very long article. I’m going to say that it was in 2006 when she wrote about the counter opinions of researchers who said that HIV was not the cause of AIDS, and they finally published the article. There was a multitude of back and forth, but they came through.

I think it was the last mainstream article of any real substance that countered the basic virus story ever published anywhere in the world.

She was threatened and attacked, and her life was in danger. She went briefly to the FBI and the NYPD for help. She went through a horrendous ordeal as a result of her stance on the whole thing. There was ‘big’ money involved by that point – big research money in the billions. People don’t know this, but if you add up all the research money on AIDS that has been from the US government, it now comes to about $570 billion.

Fitts: It's a 'huge laundry'!

Rappoport: So despite everything, she has hung in there. Now she is publishing major pieces about COVID-19. You can find her articles at www.UncoverDC.com, and her blog is The Truth Barrier. Sometimes I have trouble getting in there, but if you go to her Wikipedia page and scroll down to the bottom to 'External Links' and click on her blog, I have found that I can always get in that way.

She is fantastic-Celia Farber-there is nobody like her.

Her father, who recently passed away, was Barry Farber. He was a renowned late-night talk show host in New York for many, many years.

Fitts: One person I want to mention – and this may surprise you – who has done a remarkable job on some aspects of this is Tucker Carlson.

Rappoport: You bet!

Fitts: Tucker Carlson grilled the Governor of New Jersey, and he wouldn't let him go. He had him on the show, and said, "I want to understand why liquor stores are essential but churches are not."

The Governor kept answering, and Carlson wouldn't accept the answer and continued. He had the Governor squirming into the corner. When it was over, you realized that the Governor was completely full of 'you-know-what'. It was just a scam.

He's done the same thing on, "Your business is not essential, but it's okay to protest systemic racism." It's a magic virus, and it won't attack you if you are protesting.

The hypocrisy is amazing, and there have been several other people who have been effective. I think that some of the most effective coverage has been from the people outing the hypocrisy of the leadership. So, the Mayor of Chicago had her hair done when nobody else could. Neil Ferguson was caught with his married lover coming over while he supposedly has COVID-19.

Rappoport: Fauci was sitting at a baseball game without a mask on; sitting next to two people.

Fitts: So, the hypocrisy nailers have done a very good job of showing that all of these people are not worried about a virus.

Rappoport: They're not worried about a paycheck either.

Fitts: Think about it: One of my favorite stories was the hairdresser in Dallas. She is a taxpayer, and along with other hairdressers who are taxpayers, they are paying the salary of all these people who are shutting them down. When the judge put her in prison; God bless her boyfriend or colleague. He was smart enough to go on crowdfund and ask for money. He did a crowdfund for $500,000 and raised it in less than 24 hours. We donated.

The Governor and Lieutenant Governor realized that $500,000 is a serious litigation budget in a situation and a municipal court, and they were going to get pulverized. So, the Lieutenant Governor stepped in and fixed it.

Rappoport: There is another person in California. I don't know anything about him, and I'm not putting him up as the paragon of virtue. His name is John MacArthur, and he is the pastor for Grace Community Church in Sun Valley, which is outside of L.A. It's a huge church.

He said, "We are open for business." Six thousand people showed up for services. There were no masks and no social distancing. He is very pugnacious about the whole thing in his sermon. L.A. County is suing him, and he is continuing anyway.

Fitts: Good for him.

Rappoport: I know nothing about him at all, but that is what he is doing. Other church leaders are criticizing him. He is getting 'hammered' from all directions, but you can see the photos – John MacArthur, Pastor, and huge crowds of enthusiastic people with no masks sitting 'cheek to jowl'. There were 6,000 of them at the service.

Fitts: The churches have been remarkably cowardly. One of the exceptions was that two groups of Catholic Bishops wrote very strong letters. One of them was very early on, and it was very powerful. I thought, “Wow! Who would have expected the Catholic Bishops to out this as outrageous?”

It’s astonishing. I just looked at a statistic that small business in the United States is responsible for 44% of, essentially, the economy. So, you are talking about sitting by as churches and doing nothing while the income and employment of most of your parishioners is destroyed.

Rappoport: Exactly. And where is your devotion to God?

Fitts: Right. That is not faith; where is their faith in God?

Rappoport: I don’t know. This is what I was always taught: People who go to church and the leaders have a primary allegiance to God. Otherwise, why are they doing what they’re doing? Because they want a 501(c)(3)? I don’t think so. That doesn’t seem to be the core motivation.

What about, of course, separation of church and state? Was that just some sort of an afterthought? No.

Early on, I suggested on radio interviews and wrote about this: If you are a pastor and a coward, admit it. Stand up in front of the congregation and say, “I can’t do this. I’m sorry. I can’t buck the system. I’m going to step down, and one of you in my flock will have to come up here who has the guts to do the right spiritual thing and take over this congregation.”

It’s simple.

Fitts: I’ve been shocked; I was shocked at the extent to which the churches took a pass.

Later on, when we talk in Part II, as you know, I think that this is simply a reset of the global economy. I want to talk about all the people who have done an incredible job of illuminating the global reset and helping to connect the dots to the pandemic and what is going on in the pandemic. That is the whole aspect.

Before we close, one other person who I want to mention was a member of the Italian parliament who has been absolutely fearless in calling out Gates. Her name is Sara Cunial, but they are also doing more to try to stop the lockdown.

We also had a great German whistleblower who blew the whistle. The German government had called together a task force of scientists, and basically, they concluded that most of what was going on was not a good idea and unnecessary. So, their recommendations were 'kiboshed'. Then he leaked them to the press.

There continue to be people worldwide, and there have been huge stand-up sheriffs in the United States, pushing back.

Rappoport: Let's not forget the million people out in the streets of Berlin very recently.

Fitts: Fabulous.

Rappoport: I've been getting reports from the scene from people who were there. Some of the polices were on their side. This was a rally about the lockdowns and the fake stories that were promoted in order to rationalize lockdowns and the whole business. These people knew – all of them knew – what was going on. They know what is happening, that this whole thing is an attack and a war against them. It's fantastic.

Fitts: It is fantastic. That is why I wanted to have this conversation with you. When you start to look at the extraordinary breadth and width of the pushback and the intelligence and the courage, it is very inspiring.

Rappoport: It really is fantastic.

Fitts: Before we close, tell us a little about your work. What are you doing right now, and where do you see yourself going with your coverage of this over the next month?

Rappoport: At the moment, I'm going back to the beginning. There has been so much interest and so many new readers coming on board. As usual, I'm publishing articles every day at my site and blog. So I've decided, "Okay, a lot of these people don't know what I've already written. I've written almost 200 articles now on COVID-19. That's what my tech producer tells me. I can't even understand what that means, but it's true".

So, I'm going back to the beginning. What is this business? Is the virus real? Did they discover the virus? What is the test? What is it supposed to do? Has the test itself ever been tested and validated? No.

I'm explaining how you create a false pandemic and what the steps are that you go through in order to do that if you are Bill Gates or somebody like him.

So that is what I'm doing at the moment. I definitely have more articles in the 'can' than I can possibly publish on a given day. So, I just keep on turning them out.

Fitts: I was recently sitting on the terrace of this beautiful hotel overlooking Lake Constance with several of my friends from Germany. We were talking about the best sources for the pandemic. I said, "If you haven't read the Ellis Medavoy interviews and haven't read Jon Rappoport's interviews, you cannot understand the global pandemic without reading them.

I don't know if you've done this recently, but if you go back and read what Ellis Medavoy was saying about AIDS, it's like you're reading about COVID-19. It's so prescient it's scary. It's as if he wrote the playbook, and they are using the playbook.

One turned to the other and said, "That's it! We have to buy The Matrix Revealed. We have to 'bite the bullet' and buy it and download it and read all of those interviews.

I'm going to say it to everybody listening to or reading this: If you don't have a copy of Jon's collection of The Matrix Revealed, his interviews as a collection are the best interviews you will ever read about how reality is engineered from fake science to fake news to whatever.

In that collection is the Ellis Medavoy interviews. Can you take a moment and explain who Ellis Medavoy was and why those interviews are so prescient for understanding what is going on now?

Rappoport: When I started writing about AIDS in 1986-ish, I met a man. He told me that he was connected or knew an insider. He somewhat described him as, “This is a guy who has run some major, major propaganda operations, and he is retired, and he has a conscience now, whereas he had none before. Maybe he will talk off the record.”

He was describing Ellis Medavoy; that was his pseudonym. So, a process ensued where I did everything possible to make sure that this was the man who he said he was, and that he had run major propaganda operations for major players that I inferred – some of whom were on the Council of Foreign Relations.

Fitts: It appears to me that he was working for the Executive Committee at the Council of Foreign Relations. That is who I think he was.

Rappoport: Right. He finally agreed to talk off the record. But once we got started, he became extremely enthusiastic about the whole thing because he was unburdening information that he had kept to himself for a very long time, including: How do you do this? How was this conceived at the root?

Fitts: It’s a craft.

Rappoport: It’s not only the superficial aspects, but psychologically, mentally, and spiritually how do you control other people in order to make them believe something that is totally false, and what are the principles, etc.? That is what the interviews began with, and then he went everywhere with it.

Fitts: It’s fabulous. You did those interviews a while back, but they are as useful and important to understanding the world we are in now as just about anything I’ve ever read. So go to Jon’s website, www.NoMoreFakeNews.com and buy and download The Matrix Revealed collection and consume those interviews. You will have an exceptional understanding of reality.

Jon, before we close, is there anybody else that you want to mention? Next time we will go into the global reset: we will examine mind control, which I think is the big obstacle before us.

Rappoport: There are so many people, but I think I will leave it at this for now; I wouldn't know where to go. I have other people on the list, and so do you, but I think that we have done an outstanding job of showing some real heroes.

Fitts: Unbelievable. There are many of them, and Jon Rappoport, you are one of them. Thank you for everything you are doing, and please keep it up; we need you.

Rappoport: You, too, Catherine.

Fitts: Have a great day.

Rappoport: Thank you so much.

Fitts: Goodbye, Jon.

Rappoport: Goodbye.
