The Solari Report

April 8, 2021

1st Quarter 2021 Wrap Up:
News Trends & Stories Part I
with
Dr. Joseph Farrell

Catherine Austin Fitts: Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to The Solari Report. It's that time of the year, the end of the first quarter, March 31, 2021. That marks the end of the quarter, and you all remember what happened in the first quarter of 2020.

We have now hit the one-year anniversary of the extremely public part of the Going Direct Reset. That is what I would call it. We are joined here by Dr. Joseph Farrell, who I miss terribly. I would love to go to see him and doing this in person. So, I'm just going to pretend that we are in the same place, Joseph.

Dr. Joseph Farrell: Thank you for having me back.

Fitts: I'm opening up a portal between here and there, and we are in the same place.

It has been quite a year since this all started, but it has also been quite a quarter since the first of January. It's amusing because whenever it gets over-the-top, I say, "I think I'll go to Giza Death Star and see what Joseph says about this." It's very funny.

We tend to pick up on the same truly weird stories.

Farrell: And they are getting weirder.

Fitts: I had an expression for many years, which was, "It just keeps getting weirder."

My feeling is that you people can get as weird as you want, but I'm not; I'm not going with you. If you are going to get that weird, I will clean my closets. I'm embracing small bourgeoisie thinking here.

We will start with Part I, and I want to remind everybody that we have a web presentation. The News Trends & Stories team has worked incredibly hard this quarter. It's like riding a wild bronco. If you go to the web presentation, you will find in the News Trends & Stories section the top trends and then the top stories of Part I and Part II.

For Part I, which we are talking about, you will see a table that you can manipulate. It has all of the top headlines, and they are listed by category, like ‘Economy and Financial Markets’ and ‘Geopolitics’ that we are discussing now. They are also designated by a number tag to the story that they support.

These are the headlines that we have culled out of the News Trends & Stories section for the quarter that we think are the most important.

Joseph, I keep saying, “Let’s keep it down to 200,” and then I can’t. It’s amazing.

Let’s start with Economy & Financial Markets.

Economy & Financial Markets

In January, we published a big section called The Going Direct Reset prepared by John Titus. It was breathtaking because it showed they approved the plan in August 2019, proceeded in September with the ‘shenanigans’ in the repo market, and the whole plan has rolled out since. If anything, the healthcare ‘crisis’ is really just part of the central bankers’ plan.

So, I think of this whole process – since August 2019, and then back to October 2018 when they approved FASAB 56, which is really the condition precedent to making the whole thing go – as really the Going Direct Reset, which is, in fact, the central bankers taking over the Treasury function.

This balance of power between the central bankers and the electorate is over, and these central bankers are moving in and taking over the Treasury function in the Western democracies directly from the electorate and the legislature. So, they have levered up the governments, the governments are now in a debt trap, and they are dependent on the central bankers because of the way the mechanism works. You really don’t need the central bankers; the Treasury can do the currency.

This is a change in control. This is a reengineering of the fundamental system, and they are trying to collapse sovereignty from national sovereignty to state sovereignty to individual sovereignty. They are looking to create a payment system through the healthcare crisis that will allow them to literally go direct, and they can shut off your money or my money just like that.

Story #1: The Going Direct Reset: Is a Monetary Event Going to Complete the Financial Coup d'état?

I'll 'bounce the ball' to you. What do you think?

Farrell: I don't think so. I think that they are getting way too much pushback; they are getting too much pushback from Russia and China. We both know that Russia has tried to build out its own internal financial clearing system – with the help of the Japanese if you look at those events from about five years ago.

They are getting major pushback. We have troubles now with Russia deploying massive amounts of troops to Crimea. So, in other words, for them to roll out their global system, they have to have Russia and China on board, and they don't. This is the big problem.

Then, internally, in the West, the way that I am looking at it is more from a cultural and political point of view. They have too much opposition in the West from Europe at the ground level.

In this country, what is very, very intriguing is you are getting states passing nullification bill after nullification bill. This is an indicator to me, plus the fact that you couple the Texas state bullion depository, and Utah has started something similar. You have that bill in South Carolina that I mentioned in the last quarterly Wrap Up where they've recognized as legal tender any bullion coin, and it's not even specified in the legislation that it has to be denominated in dollars. So, I think that you are getting major pushback here in this country, and are seeing more and more governors coupling their financial pushback to this so-called 'health crisis'.

If they really want to lock things down, they will have to come up with a better narrative than COVID. The COVID narrative is beginning to fall apart. More and more scientists are questioning the vaccines and their safety. Several people are not taking them – healthcare workers in particular. So, I think they have to have another event to roll out. Unfortunately, I think that one of the things that might be on their agenda that we can talk about in Geopolitics is war.

Fitts: I sent you that quote from Saker. In his latest coverage of Ukraine, he said that we could be looking at a war in 30 days.

Saker just published the interview of Lavrov.

Farrell: I did read that. When we get to Geopolitics, I want to talk about that. People have to understand how significant it is for the Russians to recall their ambassador to this country. Quite frankly, I don't blame them.

Fitts: They are saying that it is only for consultations. You notice the journalist says, "Yes, but when is he going back?" They could be consulting for a long time.

I do think that if you look at what they are trying to do in the United States and the Western democracies, they are trying to collapse the governance structure at the national level into central bank control.

Farrell: I do, too.

Fitts: What is interesting is I keep telling the people who are involved in pushing back that it's the national government who is the 'football'. So, the national government is not doing this to you; they are trying to take over the national government, and you have to take it back. Stop attacking the national government. Instead, start attacking the central bankers; start attacking the bankers.

If we attack the governments alone, then we simply make life easier for the central bankers. It just weakens the government that they want to take over.

Farrell: This is an important point because I think that what is beginning to collapse the COVID narrative is precisely this push for vaccine passports.

Fitts: I don't know if you've looked behind it, but it's really a payment network.

Farrell: It is. That is exactly it. Kudos to Governor DeSantis for his executive order that just said no. This is spreading. Similar actions have been made in Oklahoma and Texas. Some of the Northern Plains states are considering similar measures. So this is not going to go anywhere. I think it's serving a notice that the narrative has collapsed. This is why I think they have to have another event – another type of event.

They are trying to roll out this narrative of third and fourth strains and so on, but in a way, that has hurt their COVID narrative. It has pointed out the inefficacy of these so-called 'vaccines' that they are trying to push on everybody because they are not adaptable to these new strains.

Fitts: We are recording this at Easter; tomorrow is Easter Sunday. Yesterday was Good Friday. So this is a very special time. Where I am, it is the time that all the baby lambs are born, and they are all hopping around. Christ is very present. It's a beautiful time; it's spring, and it's the Resurrection.

Farrell: Western Easter-let's remember that the other half is about a month later. But this is very interesting, too, because their timing could not be worse in a certain sense. I really think that they have exhausted their healthcare narrative. It's beginning to wear too thin, quite frankly.

I think they need another event. It's looking like they have the war card as an option.

Fitts: I do want to talk about an event now- I'm building up to that.

Last year when they shut down Easter, it was very demonic the way that it was done. Most people were willing to give the government the benefit of the doubt and thought, "Oh, this really is a health issue."

This year, there isn't anybody who wants to celebrate the time of year that knows the reasons for not celebrating Easter are bogus; they know.

One of the most important stories of the quarter – and I know we're not in Geopolitics yet – was Merkel having to walk back the Easter shutdown. If you look at her face, what happened to her? I would love to know what happened that caused her to roll that back. When she did it, I said, “Can they get away with this?”

Farrell: I think it was very significant, and I am going to be talking about Germany in the Geopolitics section because, in a certain sense, they are ‘holding the cards’ right now. I, like you, was astonished she rolled that back. Something happened that we are not being told. I suspect that ‘the something’ that may have happened came from Moscow.

Fitts: Nord Stream 2 (pipeline from Russia to Germany) is the ‘big football’ there right now, and we’ve only a couple of more kilometers to go.

Farrell: Right, I think Merkel’s days are numbered. I’ve been saying this for a long time, but her government is incredibly weak. She is ‘hanging on for dear life’. I think part of the reason she’s hanging on is that in the background, the high and mighty in Berlin are re-thinking many things. We will discuss that in Geopolitics, but I agree; something made her do a 180. It was breathtaking.

Fitts: It was breathtaking, and it was a strike for our team.

How do we get people to understand a relatively simple framework that what is happening is being driven by the central bankers, and this scenario that we are in financial trouble is incorrect? We are not in financial trouble. We have a global buying spree, the likes of which we’ve never seen before. For the people who can print money, this is an attack on the people who can’t print money and who have to earn money. They are making a fortune.

If you look at the first quarter performance, U.S. banks are up 25% and European banks are up 10%. There is no financial crisis.

Farrell: It’s a crisis of production; it’s not a financial crisis.

It is so important for people to latch onto your distinction between finance capitalism and equity capitalism. This is crucial, especially right now. The bankers are making large amounts of money, but they are not producing anything other than chaos.

Fitts: They are producing the theft of trillions of dollars of equity.

Farrell: As far as I'm concerned, the way to get people to understand this is if they are willing to lie about COVID, they are willing to lie about Treasury markets, commodities markets, and equities markets. We just saw another 'flash crash' in the Treasury bonds. Did you see that? I thought, "There you go, folks!"

Fitts: The long-term bull in bonds is over. Now the credit questions are going to grow and grow.

Farrell: People have to start connecting the COVID narrative to the financial system that they are trying to put in place.

Fitts: The S&P skyrocketed through 4,000, which is a very big line. It's funny. I recently did the Equity Overview, and one of the things that I said is that the Planet Equity bull is on.

Every technical indicator is bull, bull, bull, because you have two economies; one is Main Street, and one is publicly traded stocks. They have shut down Main Street, which means that these people can grab that market share, and they can pick up all their assets for cheap.

I saw a headline on Bloomberg saying they are planning to foreclose on all the mortgages that haven't been paid. They are ready to do the 'tsunami' of mortgages.

I keep bringing this up to you. Remember that TV program where they would give these housewives shopping carts, and they would go into the supermarket. The one who could get the most items in her basket would win, but however much they got in their basket in the five or ten minutes they had, they could keep.

So, these women would act just like the private equity firms are acting now.

Farrell: They are trying to buy up hard assets. This is the other thing that people have to understand; they have so much bad paper on their books that they need hard assets. You have a story later on about the real estate they are trying to buy, which we will talk about. It's all part of the game.

Fitts: For many years, I've been 'banging the drum', "Farmland, farmland, farmland." So, when the story came out in Forbes that Bill Gates is the number one owner of farmland in the United States, I wasn't surprised.

Farrell: Yes, and he wants us all to eat synthetic meat, too.

Fitts: Story #2: The Going Direct Reset: Does Central Bank Digital Currency (CBDC) Require the Installation of a Smart Grid from Satellites to 5G to Brain-Machine Interface?

What do you think?

Farrell: I think it does because their game is clear; they want to control people. They want to control people right down to their behavior and what they think. So, this is all part of the social engineering plan to get us on a Chinese social credit system, and they are tying in cryptos to this. Like we have tried to warn so many times, this is nothing but a corporate coupon; this is not currency.

I can't talk about Canada or Australia or Western Europe, but looking to the United States, this ultimately is the explanation of why you see so many states now passing nullification laws, and why Texas decided to open up a bullion depository, and so on. It's looks like you are getting all of the moves in place, not only on the part of the central bankers to set up this global digital currency clearing system, but you are also seeing pushback. People are taking the necessary prerequisite steps to set up regional currencies.

Fitts: It's very interesting. If you look at the back end of some of these passport systems, any governor knows that they are tendering for individual control of their citizens in a way that, whether it's the cash flows or the votes, they can totally cut out the state government. The state government has no sovereignty and may not have any financial resources. They can just cut them right out.

It's almost like the LBO (Leveraged Buyout) people from Wall Street are coming and tendering for your people one by one. It's really remarkable.

Farrell: The model looks like Helmut Kohl (German statesman).

Fitts: Yes, you're right! He tendered for East German citizens; he bought them one by one overnight.

Farrell: It was a par value swap of the East German D-mark.

Fitts: No, he gave them a discounted price.

Farrell: Really? On top of that?

Fitts: Yes, that is my recollection. He gave them a really attractive deal.

Farrell: I thought it was a one-for-one swap.

Fitts: Yes, but in terms of value, they got a real pickup. There was no question that everybody immediately went. It looked like the West Germans were going to have to take a real economic hit to do it, but he avoided ten years of political discussions. He just tendered through the currency.

Farrell: That is the model they have decided to go with here. I don't think that will work. The more people realize that this COVID virus is being connected to financial clearing and to a social credit system, the more that it is going to fail. The way that I read the science, maybe I am being too optimistic: The way that I read the science in this country is that there are some people in state governments who know what the game is, and they are ready to play.

Fitts: Yes, absolutely. I think that the most intelligent opposition is at the state legislature and state governor level. At the state level, you have some exceptionally talented legislators, and they are experienced at the 'nuts and bolts' of government in a way the average person has not developed that expertise.

Farrell: I see the same thing going on, not only within the EU, but in Germany, the states have a similar sort of sovereignty, and you see some pushback happening there.

I don't think this game they are playing will go nearly as smoothly as 'Mr. Globaloney' wants it to go. Then, of course, you have Russia and China in the mix, and they are just not going to play.

Fitts: Let me go back to this event for a moment: A very important thing happened two or three weeks ago. They announced that the April 15th date for U.S. individual taxes was delayed until May 17th.

I go back to this framework: Here are the central bankers controlling monetary policy, and here is the Treasury with the elected representatives controlling fiscal policy. The central bankers are moving in to take over both functions. Where the 'rubber meets the road' is: How are they going to get the citizens to keep paying taxes when it's taxation with no representation?

One way is to pretend that there is still congressional authority and legislative authority, and you do it with election fraud; you put the former head of the ECB in as the President. "How did he get here?"

You do all those tricks, but where 'the rubber meets the road' is taxation. In fact, we are working on a piece for the 1st Quarter Wrap Up called Going Direct is a Two-Way Street: Holding the Central Bankers Accountable, and it's about taxation and the tax issues.

That makes April 15th with the tax issues a very 'dicey' event because, in fact, you have a significant number of people in the United States who know that there was election fraud or believe that there was election fraud.

When 75 million people believe that there was election fraud, there is a taxation problem.

Farrell: Let me bring it close to home: My taxes this year plus 'O'bummerCare' wiped out over half of my savings.

Fitts: Wow!

Farrell: Do you think that I have any sort of feelings for the 'Bidenenko'?

regime? No, none.

My tax person told me that she had the same thing happen to a couple of her other clients. They owed an enormous amount of money.

Fitts: Now we are coming into tax time, and I want to mention one other thing: Thirteen states have sued the Federal government because, in the stimulus bill, they are saying that the states are not allowed to lower taxes. They are offering stimulus money, but if you take it, then you can't lower taxes. It is basically putting them in a prison.

Farrell: This is all a response, in my opinion, to the states that are acting increasingly independently. It's a sign of the absolute weakness of the Federal government, which is going to have some geopolitical repercussions that we are already seeing. It will get very bumpy geopolitically because of all this.

Fitts: Today is April 3rd. The date they pushed this back (filing deadline) to is May 17th. Saker is saying that there could be a war in the next 30 days. That would put us to May 3rd.

You look at the May 17th date, and think, "What event is planned?"

Farrell: They need something, and this is why I think the war option is in the cards. They need an event to push the police state agenda over the top. That would give them the excuse to do that. But, again, the problem they have – and this is the counter-balancing weight on the scales – is if they 'throw those dice', they know that they have to win.

Fitts: I don't think they can win.

Farrell: I don't either. Germany is a key player in what is going to happen, and we will get to that. But I think they have boxed themselves in, and this makes them particularly dangerous. They are running out of options, and they are running out of options quite fast.

Fitts: Let me go back to the question on the smart grid. If you look from the time the COVID-19 pandemic was announced, the push to roll out the smart grid accelerated dramatically. For many people, these different pushes look separate. The satellites look separate from the injection of brain-machine interface or nano-particles into our bodies. It's hard to fathom that it's one smart grid – the 5G.

We saw tremendous acceleration of infrastructure investment to roll out the smart grid, and what is interesting is last year I was very adamant that Bill Gates was trying to load an operating system into your body. I took plenty of flak for that. Now I keep encouraging people to read David O'Hagan's article. He wrote Battle for Humanity, and then he wrote COVID-19 Injection. He went into Moderna's website and marketing material and pulled out all of their quotes. They call it an operating system!

Farrell: Yes, they call it an operating system.

Fitts: They call it a 'plug and play' app. It's unbelievable.

My perception is from looking at the polls and feedback from the United States, the number of people in the United States who have now understood that their vision of technology is that this is insane. They've gotten 'over that hump' in the last year. Do you think that makes any sense?

Farrell: If by 'getting over the hump' you mean that there are more and more people alive to the dangers of this system that is trying to be put into place, I think so, but I don't see the narrative being able to hold together. It's already collapsing. This is the problem that they have. In spite of their efforts, the local media where I'm at is still pushing this COVID narrative like 'crazy'. There is no countervailing science that is ever talked about.

I think they have overplayed their hand, and people are slowly waking up. This is why I think they need another event. What that event may be I don't know. I think they are in a desperate position.

Fitts: I don't see how you can do another 9/11 and get away with it.

Farrell: You can't because that narrative started to fall apart the day it happened. They can't play that event again.

In other words, they are running out of cards. This is what amazes me: They are playing all of their cards. They are playing all of their trumps, and it's not pushing what they want to get accomplished fast enough for them.

Fitts: I want to bring up the question of New York's involvement in this. If you look at the COVID-19 numbers when the pandemic started, it was basically a nursing home in Seattle and many deaths in New York. It clearly 'smacked' of being engineered.

Now that much of the information has come out, it was clearly engineered. I would describe it as a genocide.

It will be very interesting to see if the families of the people killed are able to litigate. The Department of Justice has an investigation going. Normally in a situation like this, the Department of Justice's job is to shut down civil litigation with a criminal investigation. So, I'm assuming that is what is happening.

If you look at the enormous 'brouhaha' recently for both Democrats and Republicans to get Andrew Cuomo to resign, it appears to me he agreed to be the person to engineer the deaths that they needed to get the fear going and to get whatever going. One of the reasons New York was chosen was that 9/11 occurred in New York, and the University of Alaska's study on 9/11 on building 7 came out on March 25th, 2020.

The movie of the week this week is Seven, which is the documentary about the University of Alaska's study that proves that it was a demolition. They just happened to destroy all of the government documents on trillions of dollars of financial securities fraud.

Farrell: 'Fancy that'!

Fitts: What a coincidence. But there is something going on about Cuomo. If I were Andrew Cuomo and I had engineered the deaths that made it possible for the Democrats to win the Presidency, I would expect to be rewarded. Instead of being rewarded, you have the President standing up and saying that he should resign as Governor of New York. He is being 'thrown to the wolves'. The question is: Why?

It looks like his deposition could destroy the Going Direct Reset. There is something about what is going on with Cuomo in New York that is threatening the whole ‘ball game’.

Farrell: I agree. This whole ‘sexcapade’ thing that they are trying to tie him with has felt like a distraction from the get-go. I think that it’s really about all those deaths in New York. There is something he knows that they are afraid of, and they want to get rid of him.

Fitts: One of the things is that it’s inconceivable that he can’t, in depositions, lead back to Harris and the tech billionaires. Imagine what Cuomo in a deposition – with a little truth serum – could tell.

One other thing is I’ve been trying to study the push on the financial side to promote climate change. I want to tell you that my research isn’t done, but everything that I see says that they are trying to force everything onto the smart grid so that they can roll out the crypto. They need to cut off any retail use of oil and gas because that will permit political independence.

Part of rolling out the crypto is getting everybody on the smart grid. It’s fine to use the oil and gas for wholesale, and they have big wholesale plans for oil and gas. So, oil and gas are not going away any time soon, but they need retail on the smart grid so that they can get the crypto control system in place.

The big joke behind this, as they are talking about using less energy, is that crypto is the ultimate energy hog of the world.

Farrell: Yes, I know, they are ‘preaching to the choir’ there.

Fitts: If you look at the logic when you go around this thing, it’s the most byzantine, complicated ‘pretzel talk’ you’ve ever heard.

Farrell: It’s like one of those Rube Goldberg (American cartoonist who depicted complicated gadgets) crazy inventions.

Fitts: It's the cults. Every day I thank CJ Hopkins for inventing the term 'The Covidian Cult' because we are dealing with cults.

Story #3: What Does Engineering Deflation Mean for Interest Rates & Planet Equity with Central Bank-Driven Monetary, Fiscal, and Health Care Policies?

Farrell: You start, then I'll give you my 'crazy' answer.

Fitts: I go back to this framework of the central bankers and the monetary policy and the fiscal policy. If you see what is going on, you just can't get over the fact that they are borrowing at 0% and the average American is borrowing at 16-17%. It's unbelievable.

The engineering of this financial arbitrage between those who can print and those who have to earn is unbelievable. It's almost amusing..

I don't know if you saw it. There was this wave of censoring Kennedy, and I got taken along for some of it. Daniel Liszt (host/producer at Dark Journalist) really focused on the fact that #Catherine Austin Fitts had been censored in a whole variety of places, including TikTok. He kept saying, "Why would Fitts be censored on TikTok?"

When it happened, I was talking about the common law of offset and simply offsetting the money the banks owe you from the missing money against what you owe them. My theory is that if that had spread virally to all of the young people who were choking on student loan debt, I told him, "Daniel, it makes perfect sense to me."

He asked, "Why would you be censored on TikTok?"

Farrell: This is all part of the big picture with the states beginning to push back like they are. I really think they are fearful that the states are going to start picking up on that idea.

Fitts: It's like what I see when I watch both Fauci and things like what happened in the Suez Canal.

We are going to extreme lengths to engineer inflation or deflation. Fauci is like a machine, and his job is to engineer more assets to take over. So, it's more destruction of Main Street or to engineer deflation to offset the monetary. John Titus thinks that it is to engineer inflation for a variety of reasons.

You see all these absurd policies roll out or these covert operations, and think, "What is this about?"

Suddenly, nobody can go through the Suez Canal and the oil price just happens to skyrocket. Really?

We are watching this incredible financial arbitrage of the central bankers and the private equity and hedge fund firms that are in the syndicate, and they are getting huge amounts of free money.

We will talk about it more in Story #4 because it gets into space, but you are putting this unbelievable financial headwind into the insiders while you are absolutely destroying the outsiders. So this global shopping spree is unbelievable, and yet I keep having people tell me, "The market is going to crash."

I say, "Why would it crash? It's free money."

They love to make it go up and down because volatility means that you can make more money playing the pump and dump game. So, I'm not saying that it's not unbelievably volatile and it won't be unbelievably volatile, but it seems to me that if these people have 'more money than God' and they are on a shopping spree, why should things go down?

Farrell: I think the only thing that scares them at this point is bullion. I think they are scared of that now.

Fitts: Right, although they are certainly accumulating it. It's down now. Precious metals had a horrible year. We will talk about this more because the crypto thing is definitely working.

One of the most fascinating discussions of the quarter – and we ran the clip on Money & Markets earlier – is another one of these public panels with Agustín Carstens (Bank of International Settlements General Manager), Jerome Powell (Federal Reserve Chairman), and a couple of journalists. One asked whether or not what they wanted to do with central bank digital currency was legal. You should have seen Carstens. He put his hand over his mouth because he was trying not to laugh. Powell said, “We would never do this without authorizing legislation.”

In other words, what he said was, “We would want to go in and get authorizing legislation.”

Titus thinks that they want to get authorizing legislation, not only for the central bank digital currencies, but to ‘cover their butt’ on the illegal things that they have been doing.

In the second quarter, can you imagine the New York Fed, the Boston Fed, or the governors going in and asking for authorizing legislation for a central bank digital currency? Do you know what a ‘cluster of you-know-what’ that is going to be?

If you had it all written, and had war, you could knock it through.

Farrell: Maybe, but there is a problem that they face with the war card, and it’s called electromagnetic pulse. That doesn’t help cryptocurrencies at all.

Fitts: That is an excellent point.

Farrell: They have to play this very, very carefully. The other problem is it looks to me like they are playing all of their high cards, and they are running out of high cards to play. If you look at the response of Mr. Xi, and particularly Mr. Putin, they are just ‘sitting’ there and watching all of this and saying, “Go ahead. Do your best.”

They are getting very, very desperate, and that is just on the geopolitical scale.

Fitts: My feedback from people who read the websites in China say that China is not encouraging the vaccination at all, nor is India.

Farrell: They are in a ‘real pickle’, and are putting together this Rube Goldberg machine. They are trying to follow the blueprint, but they are in such a hurry that it’s looks like they are making some major long-term mistakes.

I may be too optimistic in my reading. I don’t know.

Fitts: Here is what strikes me as optimistic, or here is how I would argue that you are optimistic: The feedback that I continue to get from many, many people is that the mind control is beyond successful.

Farrell: It’s ‘off the charts’ over here (U.S.). There is a certain hysteria to it that is beginning to wear thin. That to me is why I am suggesting that there is some optimism here.

They keep pushing this COVID narrative, but it’s increasingly falling on deaf ears, particularly in certain states.

Fitts: Here is the thing: It falls on deaf ears wherever people have to earn their own money and are responsible for concrete functions. If you are a farmer or a trucker or a plumber or an electrician, or if you deal with the real world, the concrete world, you don’t have time for ‘pretzel talk’.

If you look at how much money they are making, and if you go to a very wealthy neighborhood where everybody is pushing paper, their stock portfolios are way up, and they are happy and thinking that things are great. It’s rather frightening.

Story #4: Going Direct Disaster Capitalism: Is There a Drive for Real Estate on Earth and in Space?

This gets back to my global shopping spree. We have to talk about SPAC. Have you and I talked about SPACs?

Farrell: We have not-that is Special Purpose Acquisition Companies (SPAC). I liked that question. I had to Google it when I got your outline, but once I saw what you were talking about, I would have to say yes, it is looking that way to me.

Fitts: Last year in 2020, imagine that you know everything that is going on in the economy throughout the year of 2020. There were approximately 480 IPOs (initial public offering) in the U.S. market. Are you ready for this? More than half of them were SPACs.

Farrell: I can believe it.

Fitts: As of a month ago, the amount of trading volume in SPACs was $700 billion – almost a trillion. One of the things that I love about the Going Direct presentation that Titus did was that he proved t the Fed was injecting, not only into reserves, but directly into the economy. I haven't figured out what the pathway is to get the money in SPACs, but I think there are two or three steps, and it all flows.

I don't know how much cash went into that $700 billion, but let's say that it was $250 billion. You can't just go out to investors and say, "Give me $250 billion sight unseen, and I'm going to go play with it. I'll tell you what I get later." You can't just raise $250 billion that way.

This is just like 1998 when the money started disappearing from the Federal government. That money could be coming out of DOD. It doesn't have to be coming from the Fed. It would have to come through the New York Fed because you have to steal it through the depository, but it's free money wherever that money is coming from.

Farrell: Here is my high-octane speculation: You pointed out that there was a real estate grab, and you also – in your question – pointed out space. I wouldn't be a bit surprised if some of it were coming from DOD. My question would be: How many of these SPACs are space-related?

Fitts: Forbes came out with an article that said six companies are going public through SPACs. So I went in to underwrite all of them, and there was another one. So, there was seven total. They haven't closed their deals yet, but here is how it works; this is so clever. You issue a SPAC, and it's a blind pool. Then you merge it with a space company, and then you change the SPAC's name to the space company's name. Your space company has just gone public without going through the SEC, without having to go to analysts and be tested, and without having to price in the OPM.

The whole transparency and oversight process of doing an IPO is completely avoided. When it's over, you will have seven space companies publicly traded that have completely avoided the whole SEC process.

Farrell: Here is the FASAB 56 part of the question: What have they done by way of creating a registrar of deeds for their space companies? If they are going after assets and so on, they have to have some agency to handle that, and they are keeping it all black.

Fitts: Right. That is all behind FASAB 56 because you have a real ownership. Grossly oversimplified, pretend for a moment that it's Breakaway Civilization, Inc. You have to have accounts.

The OMB of the black budget is Neal Patel (New York Times Bestselling author). So, I want to do a complete opening of the books from the New York Fed's depository and Patel. That list is someplace.

I'm sure there is a copy at Langley.

Farrell: I'm quite sure there is. There is probably one at Lloyd's, there is probably one at the BIS, and there is probably one at the Vatican. On and on we could go.

Fitts: One of my favorite pulp fiction novels is a really dreadful novel. It's a story where Christ comes back in the second coming as a woman, and her first act is to go to the Vatican with the cameras and the press following her like Diana (Princess). She throws open the doors to the Vatican library and takes all of the press into the Vatican library. The scene is really funny.

I don't want to skip over Disaster Capitalism because it's such a heartbreaking picture. These people have been doing disaster capitalism for my entire life. In one sense, this is not new, but I have a theory, and I'll bring it up again. I believe that when you build out the smart grid, you are then able, through the central control of the human body and the human mind, to create an enormous amount of equity value. But the other thing is that you can bring in breakthrough energy in a very safe way – a not out of control way. You can bring it in at the wholesale level so that people don't know and don't see.

Space is a big part of this because one alternative is delivery from space. So, you could bring down the cost of energy tremendously, and the way to make money in that environment is not on the technology or the energy, but on the real estate. I buy the real estate at one price, and I bring the energy down, and the value of the real estate goes up.

I believe that there is a huge move on real estate. I mentioned that article from Bloomberg where they say that the foreclosures are now ready to go. Foreclosures have been held in advance in the United States, and now they are saying they are going to turn it on. I don't know if that is true or not, but certainly for Bloomberg to announce it, it is a possibility.

If they turn that on, what happens politically? They can't turn that on until they have the kind of control that you are talking about post-event.

Farrell: Right, and even then, I think it's 'dodgy'. We will get to it in Geopolitics, but they have hoist themselves by their own petard by trying to nationalize everything. At the same time, they have created an immensely weak Federal government in this country. The problem geopolitically is that they are facing other nation-states – I'm thinking of France in particular right now for reasons that we will get into later – who are not nearly so weak in terms of a governing structure. So, they are 'playing all of these cards', but at the same time that they play them, they are creating more complications for themselves along the way. It's a 'cluster of you-know-what' that they have created for themselves.

Fitts: I'll tell you where I think the big cluster is: If you look at whatever they are trying to do with the human body, they don't begin to have it figured out. This is an enormous experiment; it's an enormous prototype. I've been tracking the adverse events and deaths, and part of it is because people send it to me, and I'm sure they send it to you, too. This is very 'gruesome stuff'.

Farrell: It is. What is very important for people to remember here is that we have absolutely no long-term studies of the effects of these so-called vaccines. What we are seeing now in terms of adverse effects, ‘God only knows’ what will be happening five or ten years down the line.

Fitts: The scientists that I most trust on this tell me that we won’t start to see the real adverse events for six to eighteen months.

If you look at what I’m seeing so far, it’s quite gruesome, and it’s quite horrible. It’s much worse than I expected it to be in the first couple of months. And if it’s this bad in the first couple of months, what is it going to be in six to eighteen months, let alone five to ten years?

Farrell: Exactly. We simply do not know. For those of you who are considering these vaccines, please remember that even though you may not suffer an adverse reaction now, there is no telling what the long-term effects could be. I have exhausted myself trying to put out these stories in my honorable mentions. We are getting adverse reactions in pregnant women; we are getting the antigens from the vaccine showing up in their babies, and we are seeing miscarriages.

Recently, that article you sent me from the Red Cross in Japan – wow! I did my News & Views most recently on that article.

Fitts: I cut and pasted what I received. I went into the Japanese Red Cross Society because somebody had sent me a message saying that if you take the Pfizer injection, you can’t give blood in Japan. So, I went into the Japanese website and got a picture of the Japanese screenshot. I went to translate it, and it’s not only Pfizer; it’s all of them. If you take a COVID-19 injection, you cannot donate blood in Japan indefinitely.

I looked at it and said, “Why would you put it in your vein?”

Farrell: It is important for people to look at that article. I put it on my website with the News & Views because the article is about the length of time after receiving certain vaccines that you have to wait in Japan before you can donate blood.

They have rabies, mumps, Rubella, and all these vaccines listed and the time that you have to wait before you can donate blood – for blood transfusions. But when it comes to the COVID vaccines, it doesn't mention any COVID vaccine specifically; it only mentions COVID vaccines period.

Fitts: Right, that's it.

Farrell: There is no time limit specified on those.

Fitts: The country that has the longest life expectancy is Japan.

Farrell: I can believe it.

The 'handwriting is on the wall' if people would bother to look. They are afraid of some long-term effects that they are not telling, and we see papers come out from biologists and scientists that indicate these mRNA vaccines may be possible of producing prions. Well, that is Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease; that is bovine spongiform encephalopathy (mad cow).

We had a scientist in this country recently die who was working on all these things. So I'm thinking, "Why would you want to jab yourself with this?"

Fitts: I got into the whole vaccination issue because, as an investment advisor, I ran into so many families who had been financially harmed or destroyed by this. When you saw how gruesome it was in terms of what it does to a family and what it does to a person, it's just horrible. If you watch Vaxxed I and Vaxxed II, you really see it.

There is an interview that Polly Tommey did called The McDowell Triplets, and you can do a search for it on the internet and watch it. It is only 18 minutes long.

If you ever get one of these injections after watching that, I can't believe it.

What I could never understand was why this reality didn't move virally. In other words, given all the damage that it was doing to families and their finances-you are talking about an event that bankrupts the family- why would you risk that, and why wouldn't the understanding to risk that not spread virally? That is one of the reasons I go back to mind control. It's amazing to me how many people, including doctors and nurses I've seen, think, "This is wonderful. I'm going to get the vaccine, and then everything will be wonderful."

It's like a magic elixir that you enter.

Farrell: It's not only mind control; it's narrative control. There is no attempt in the major media – at least in this country– to apprise people of the countervailing science. Those doctors and healthcare professionals have been absolutely kept off the air. There is no mention of any of these problems. That, to me, is the biggest story about all of this. People can't make informed decisions because they are not being informed.

Fitts: Here is the thing: Anybody after the financial crisis who still watches corporate media, why would you do that?

Farrell: I'm in that 'boat'. You know me, I don't even watch TV. I haven't had my TV hooked up, but I do listen to the local talk shows, and it's the same narrative.

Fitts: Do you know what the narrative is? The narrative is the current system is failing, and the new system requires this installation.

Story #5: Here Come Central Bank Digital Currencies.

I know what it's like to litigate up against all of the money in the world, and one of the things that I discovered-because I never planned on having that happen-was once I got in the chair, I discovered the power of the central bankers. It is unbelievable. They can get to anybody anywhere. The iron bank rules with an iron fist, and everybody jumps for them. They can get your best friend or your long-loved family member to turn against you 'on a dime'. It's incredible to watch.

Farrell: And oh joy, Prince Lorenzo de Medici wants to reopen the Medici Bank (financial institution in Italy). Talk about timing! And he's going to serve cryptos!

Fitts: What could possibly go wrong?

Farrell: When I saw that story, I thought, “Bring back the Bourges (located in central France).”

Fitts: The central banks are not calling what they are offering ‘crypto’; it’s central bank digital currencies.

It’s interesting because it’s not a currency; it’s a company credit. But one of the things that I can’t understand – speaking of narratives controlling you, and you could explain this to me – is what is it about the word ‘crypt’ that people don’t get?

Farrell: I don’t know. I’ve gone around and around on this. I think it’s the lure or attraction of making easy money through sheer speculation.

Fitts: It’s wonderful when it works.

When somebody asked Daniel Webster why he made a dictionary, he said, “Because they are going to change the Constitution by changing the meaning of the words.”

In the first quarter, we saw a change in the definition of vaccination in the Merriam-Webster dictionary to suddenly include mRNA vaccines. I want to take credit for that because I came out and said, “This is not a vaccination.” That was the article, The Injection Fraud. It caught on, and now they have to change the definition in the dictionary to try to make it a vaccination.

Farrell: You don’t want me to get started on all of these gnostic techniques about changing the meanings of words. We will be here all day. But, yes, that is exactly what is going on.

Fitts: This is a real problem. They invented reality, and then when people point out that it’s not real, they start going into the dictionary and changing the meaning of the words, and this is all about creating fake realities. It’s unbelievable.

China is in the lead on rolling out their central bank digital currency. They are way ahead of the Fed, and they are moving very quickly. It looks like their insistence on abrogating the deal and ‘rolling up’ Hong Kong, whether it’s part of the central bank digital currency or their existing currency, building that global liquidity requires an integration of the financial system in Hong Kong.

Farrell: Yes, this is the bankers’ mafia war. It’s not a question of, “Do the central bankers want to do this?” They do. It’s really a question of whose central bankers will end up in control of the system.

Fitts: Think of it this way: The central banks are tendering one by one for all eight billion people. The question is: How many people hook up to the Amazon and Microsoft clouds at DOD and the intelligence agencies, and how many hook up at the Huawei cloud? That was the big fight between Huawei and the 5G because, if China succeeds in tendering for our citizens, then the Fed loses control.

Farrell: This is a zero-sum game. It’s important to remember that the system they are trying to put into place means that they cannot leave any locality unturned; they cannot let any locality or region slip through. This is the problem.

Fitts: It’s the problem with centralization. You can’t afford an exception.

Farrell: Yes, and this is the problem. We are seeing exceptions starting to pop up all over the world.

Fitts: I remember there used to be mothers who would say, “Why are black budget helicopters coming down on my head? I’m just trying to stop drug dealing in my neighborhood. I’m just one person. I’m not important. I’m just a mother.”

What they couldn’t fathom was that ‘Tony Soprano’ in their neighborhood was financing ‘James Bond’. If you cut off James Bond’s cash flow, the black helicopters come down on your head. The reality was that they couldn’t afford for one county to get out of the system because then every county could get out of the system; it's central control.

We saw a big debate last year with the House of Representatives – the Democrats – trying to approve SDRs (Special Drawing Rights) for the IMF (International Monetary Fund). We know that one of the pushes for global IDs and vaccine passports are coming through the IMF. Of course, the new head of the IMF is all excited about Bill Gates' ID systems.

Yellen (Janet) is now in the Treasury, and Yellen is now supporting an increase in the SDRs. We are seeing a push.

I was afraid that they were going to go for the full authorization, which is $3.2 billion. But now we see a push in the Congress to get $650 million SDRs for the IMF, and that is basically a credit system they can use to buy countries and force countries – whether it's the vaccine passports or the ID system – using the digital control systems. That is money they use to buy those people in.

Keep an eye on the SDR system.

There was one other thing that I want to mention, and this is part disaster capitalism, but it's part central bank digital currency. One of the most amazing characters and most stupefying people of the quarter, was the CEO of Pfizer. He is travelling around the world and is engaged in a racketeering game that is far bigger than just injecting people with the smart grid.

We've seen him and Pfizer demanding, in exchange for injections, tremendous amounts of government collateral, including government accounts, outside of the country because you don't have the same provisions to protect against immunity in these other countries. So, Pfizer is looking to grab billions of dollars of assets to protect itself, but if you look at the behavior of some of the players – Netanyahu because Israel is a big Pfizer game – there is a major kickback system and racketeering game going on that is a whole other layer to this injection fraud.

I haven't been able to figure it out, but they are basically going into a country, and are offering to the political leadership to engage in disaster capitalism theft and kickbacks as part of the vaccination scheme, but it is also a pork barrel scheme. That is what it looks like to me.

Farrell: We know that there have to be kickbacks involved simply because they have rolled out these so-called ‘vaccines’ under a proviso that holds the pharmacy companies free from any lawsuit. That tells you right there that this is a financial game, and they are playing with people’s lives.

I saw a cartoon that brought this home rather dramatically. It’s a couple of rats. Did you see this?

Fitts: I love this. You sent it to me, and we published this one. Tell us what it is.

Farrell: These rats are leaning on this fence. One rate is asking the other rat, “Are you going to get the vaccine?”

The other rat responds, “Well, not until the human trials are concluded,” or something to that effect.

You know right there that there have to be kickbacks involved just by the sheer amount of central government pressure around the world for people to take these vaccines. That tells you that right up front. And fortunately, there are some countries that are not playing along with it.

Fitts: The country that is leading in terms of the percentage of people injected is Israel. If there was ever proof positive that the people who run Israel couldn’t ‘give a damn’ about the Jewish people, this is it. It’s quite frightening to watch.

The cries and the screams from Israel are heartbreaking. It really does feel like genocide, especially in the nursing homes. You almost feel like you’re watching Auschwitz II.

Pfizer is being used in Israel. It’s happening just as Netanyahu is still in his trial for corruption.

You wonder how much of this is, “If he makes his quota, they will let him off.”

Or, he is just getting massive kickbacks. Friends of mine in and around Israel keep saying that Netanyahu is the kickback king. They think that he is getting huge kickbacks. I have no idea.

The odd thing was that the CEO of Pfizer was scheduled to go to Israel, and there is a very funny video that Titus had made about the fact that he hadn't taken his own vaccine. He doesn't want the injection. He was trying to go to Israel, and he had to cancel the trip because he wasn't injected.

You almost feel like whoever it is who is prosecuting Netanyahu arranged that headline.

So there is some kind of kickback scheme, and I just want to keep watching the SDRs and watching the kickback scheme because I think it's going to come into relief.

While we are on this topic, and this really goes to Geopolitics but I want to bring this up. Celia Farber wrote a magnificent piece celebrating the life of the President of Tanzania. This was the person who arranged the PCR tests for pawpaw fruit and goats and Coca-Cola. When he publicized the results, he fired the head of the Tanzanian lab and threw the WHO out of the country.

Of course, he just died. I believe it clearly looks like poisoning; it looks like an assassination.

There is no doubt that there have been many leaders standing up, and they have taken enormous political opposition on the next election or have been killed. I don't think that this is the first death.

Farrell: I agree.

Fitts: I watched a video of a German man with his son who had moved to Tanzania. He was being interviewed after the death. He said, "I moved to Tanzania because I want to be free. Where do I go now? I wanted my son to be free. I wanted him to be able to go to school without wearing a face diaper."

It was very sad, and it was a reminder to all of us. We all keep looking for a good jurisdiction, but we are in a situation where for one to be free, we all need to be free. It's global.

Farrell: Right, we are in a war. The part of the front that we are fighting on is wherever we are right now. Moving isn't going to solve anything because Mr. Global is global.

Fitts: The first five stories are Economy & Financial Markets. Before we move to Geopolitics, we keep going back and forth between Economy and Geopolitics because they are so intertwined. It's what Chris Powell said, "There are no markets anymore; there are just interventions."

Farrell: That's right.

Fitts: Before we leave, I want to step back and look at the energy game. The energy game is very intertwined with the space game. We saw the little game going on in the Suez Canal. We see the fight over the Burma pipeline. Burma is being torn apart like two pit bulls fighting over a piece of meat. Then we see the fight over Nord 2. So, there is an energy game going on all over the planet, and Russia is right in the heart of it because the U.S. and Russia are now the two biggest producers. Of course, Saudi Arabia is in there as well.

Do you have any thoughts about the energy game and what happened in the Suez Canal?

Farrell: As far as the Suez Canal is concerned, that was clearly an op. Most people don't know this, but canals and harbors for those big ships have a harbor pilot go on board the ship to steer it through the canal or into the harbor and to its berth. So, you cannot tell me that a professional harbor pilot at the Suez Canal is going to beach a big cargo ship diagonally to shut off the entire canal. Come on!

Fitts: What they were saying was that the winds were at 31mph.

Farrell: When that happened, I thought, "What is on board that ship? Why do they want to block the canal?"

The first thing that I thought was energy. Just shut it down. Now I see this article about Israel wanting to substitute its rail line for the Suez Canal. Really? Surprise, surprise.

That was clearly an op, and fortunately, they got the ship unstuck. At this point, there is no news. Elena Freeland has that saying, “There is no such thing as natural weather anymore,” and you’ve come up with, “There is no such thing as markets, but interventions,” and, “There is no such thing as news; it’s all ops.”

Fitts: In Economy & Financial Markets, what I see for the quarter is the Going Direct Reset has made the establishment a fortune for now. If you look at the people who you would think wouldn’t support the establishment, many of them are making so much money in Bitcoin that they are happy, too.

It’s financial methadone. That is the watch word of the quarter.

Farrell: But if you are into any sort of cryptocurrency and they play the war card, I would get out as soon as possible – before the EMP wipes you out.

Fitts: What I keep telling people is, “Get your principle out, and get a reasonable yield, and play from your winnings. Keep skimming it.”

If you look at the speed at which they are bringing out central bank digital currencies, I think they are going to pump crypto much more. So, I think the pump is far from over. But if you look at how it could go wrong or how it could go bad or how volatile it could be, you’re right; you could be in a position where you just can’t get it.

Farrell: You have to have some hard assets.

Fitts: Here is the other thing: I gave a big speech about this in the first quarter, and I replayed it for the Equity Overview: We get the world we finance.

Right now, they are collapsing the small farmers and the independent farmers. If you don’t finance your small farmers now, they won’t be there.

They want you to eat Bill Gates’ synthetic foods and his insects. So if you are busy financing only Bitcoin, where are you going to get your food?

There is this theory because of the way the world has worked for the last 50 years that you can finance the national security state, and then if you make enough money financing the national security state, you can take your big profits and buy a civilization. But we are in a roll-up, and a civilization may not be there to buy. So if you don't finance it, it's not going to happen.

Farrell: There is another thing that people heavily invested in cryptos need to remember. I go back to something that I've pointed out in previous quarterly Wrap Ups. Why are the railroads in Germany, the United Kingdom, Italy, Australia, and the United States restoring steam engines?

Union Pacific has rebuilt two steam locomotives, and they are operating. You can go on YouTube and look at videos of these. I'm a big railroad fan. My dad was a railroad engineer at one point in his career. I have puzzled over this. Why is Union Pacific going to the expense to create a locomotive manufacturing plant in Cheyenne, Wyoming to restore steam engines? It 'ain't' for Railroad Heritage Days. It's because those things will continue to operate in an electromagnetic pulse environment.

Fitts: The number one question you have to ask for your strategic plan and investment plan is: Resiliency, resiliency, resiliency. How are you going to create and build resiliency? That is the question.

Farrell: For them to be doing this indicates that they have known something for a long time, and it's coming 'down the pike'.

Fitts: Wouldn't you be scared to death if you were looking at the weaponry that is going into place?

Farrell: Absolutely I would. And you need to make sure that your freight can go through. That is the bottom line here.

Fitts: I think I told you this. I was in this incredible ice storm in West Texas. I was coming from California and through New Mexico. I drove past seven trucks jackknifed on the ice; seven big crashes. That Union Pacific train was just moving along, chugging down. I said, “Now I know why Buffett is buying railroads.”

Farrell: In line with that, there is a video on YouTube of the Challenger. The Challenger is an articulated steam locomotive. You can go online and watch a video from the mid 1990’s of a Challenger steam engine chugging up the Cajon Pass in California pulling 143 freight cars all by itself. In the other direction came another freight train with six diesel engines about as long pulling that long freight train. I thought, “Which one of these is going to survive an electromagnetic pulse?” There you go.

Fitts: They like resiliency. When I was an investment advisor, I always loved the railroads because it’s so faithful. If you look at the world we are going into, that is how you are going to move things around.

If you looked at the economics, I always thought that the reason they moved out of railroads and into roads was that it was so much easier to do the organized crime. The railroads were too obvious.

Are you ready for Geopolitics?

Farrell: I’m ready.

Fitts: Is this Geopolitics or ‘Geo-Insanity’?

Farrell: It’s ‘Geo-Insanity’.

Fitts: It’s almost as though you have far too many political leaders who are trying to get attention, and it’s bad behavior and weirdness. That is part of going to a multi-polar world. There is no cop, so everybody decides to be bad, and everybody decides to be a bully, and everybody decides to see what they can get away with.

Geopolitics:

Story #6: How Will Central Bankers Manage Taxation without Representation?

We already dove into this a bit.

Farrell: With much difficulty, I would imagine.

Fitts: Part of the sleight of hand here is that they have to get complete control to deal with this. The way to deal with this is through force. You either pay your taxes or we turn off your money and we turn off your chip.

Given the injection fraud prototype, they have a ways to go. If Powell was saying that they are going to get authorizing legislation to get it in the U.S., I don't see how they get there. I think that it takes two to three years.

Farrell: It takes at least that. My problem is what I said before: I don't see how they can get there with the state pushback that they are already getting. Texas, South Carolina, Tennessee, South Dakota, Montana, Utah, and Oklahoma are already pushing back against all of these Federal mandates coming out of 'Bidenenko'. I don't see that diminishing, quite frankly. If anything, I only see it increasing.

In other words, it's action/reaction. The more they push, the more pushback they will get, and they are already getting it on the geopolitical scale that we haven't even gotten into. I'm only talking about domestically here in the U.S. I don't know what it's like in Europe, but I can't imagine that they are going to be successful in managing this whole process without any pushback.

Merkel already did a '180 out of the clear blue sky'. I think it was because she was getting some major pressure from somewhere, and I suspect that it was from Moscow and internally from within her own country.

Germany is an export-driven economy, and they cannot afford any more of this COVID lockdown nonsense. They just can't. All you need to do is put a helmet on a German to get them riled up, and they are riled already.

Fitts: We have a rising Asia, and no one trusts China; we have a failing U.S., and no one trusts the U.S.; we have a huge superpower war between two superpowers that nobody trusts. Europe is in the middle, and the power in Europe is Germany.

Where Germany goes and how Germany deals with this is beyond important because an enlightened Germany could save the world. And they still have enough of that cultural tradition.

The other thing is that you have a whole generation of baby boomers who are so beat up and blamed and apologizing for allowing the Nazis. So if you consider somebody our age in Germany, they've been beaten up their entire lives on, "How could the German people let the Nazis rise?"

So now they are saying, "We're not going to let fascism rise."

There is a reason you have a million people protesting in Berlin.

Farrell: Just look at France.

Fitts: I love the French!

Farrell: Being part French, me too. The news blackout over here on what is going on in France is astonishing.

Fitts: You have amazing protests. We showed it in Money & Markets recently. Titus had a roll-up of all the different videos of protests around the world, and it's quite remarkable. Now if we could just get them to move their bank accounts.

Farrell: The French farmers are so upset that they are taking dump trucks of manure and dumping them on the steps of government buildings in Paris.

Fitts: In Subscriber Input I have this article: 'The Italian Health Minister was coming out of a brothel at 3am. Have you heard this story?'

Farrell: No.

Fitts: He was coming out of a brothel at 3am. Of course, it was in violation of any curfew. A group of young men took a bucket of feces combined with glue, and poured it on him.

It's not in any paper. This has all come from word of mouth. They did the feces and glue to somebody else as well. I've have it in Subscriber Input. It's hysterical. The police can't find them because they are very fast.

Farrell: It's astonishing because we are seeing pushback in Europe. Of course, there is no talk on the major media over here about any of this.

Fitts: No, but I don't call them 'media' anymore. I just call them 'shriek-o-meter'. I used to call them 'corporate media', and now I call them 'shriek-o-meter' because it's a joke.

Farrell: I call them the 'propatainment media' because that's all it is; it's entertainment and propaganda. There is no actual reportage of anything, and they can't afford to let people over here see the reaction of all this in Europe.

Fitts: I'll tell you what one of the mysteries is. If you look at the AstraZeneca vaccination, several weeks ago there were several deaths. There was a music teacher in Italy die from blood clots and some other deaths. Suddenly, country after country canceled the use of the AstraZeneca vaccination. It went up to 19 countries.

Then I went to bed one night with 19 countries having banned the AstraZeneca. I woke up in the morning, and there was an article from The Financial Times saying that the EU did an ABC and rolled it all back – just like that.

Given the number of deaths and adverse events, I thought, "Who did what to do that?" That's real power.

Farrell: That is real power. Unfortunately, it's through the European Union, and it's going to get national pushback. I really don't see that it will be very successful. Right now, that means that Paris and Berlin are in a 'bit of a pickle' given everything else that is going on.

Fitts: The big push here is to get the vaccine passport by June. What they say is, "Oh, well this will not just be a mandated vaccination."

The problem they have mandating vaccinations is that it's an experimental authorization. It hasn't been approved by the normal process. The human experimental trials are not over, so how can you mandate?

There is noise from Italy that they are starting to mandate for healthcare workers. I don't know how they get over the experimental problem. The U.S. military can't mandate them so far because it's experimental.

They are pushing a passport that will require either a PCR (polymerase chain reaction) test or a vaccination that brings us to the question: What in the world are they trying to put up your nose?

Farrell: I don't trust those tests 'as far as I can throw them'. There was an article from Johns Hopkins where they've invented this little nano delivery system. It's a small thing that unfolds and drops the medicine once it is in your body. This is real. This is what I am trying to get across to people. This is very real, and they could have anything on that swab they shove up your nose into your brain. No way!

Fitts: There is a saliva test that you can take, but they are trying to force the nasal test. There is no need to put a swab up your nose.

Farrell: The problem there, too, is that PCR – as far as I'm aware – is irrelevant because it's not that accurate.

What are we testing for?

Fitts: I don't know.

Farrell: I'm still unclear as to the vector of this so-called virus. I don't think that it has been properly isolated. I'm still one of those who is questioning that whole narrative.

Fitts: Whatever was making people sick, there was a phenomenon. It could have been the annual flu. If you look at the statistics, it was no different than a bad yearly flu, but there was a bad annual flu. I know I got it, and I know that other people have gotten it. But it could have been some kind of chemical pathogen. It could have been many different things. I'm not saying it has to be a virus.

If you look at the number of people who got sick – the real number, not the fake numbers – it appears like the injections are killing and making more people sick than whatever that flu was.

Farrell: And we have to remember something else: We really don't know all there is to know about the complexity of the human organism, or any organism for that matter. We are latched onto this idea that germs or viruses cause diseases. In conjunction with other factors like electromagnetic environment, nutrition, and so on, we are a complex, open system. People have to start realizing that applies to medicine as well as to physics.

We are too complex to say that this is the cause.

Fitts: If you get back to taxation, every person – no matter where they are in the G7 nations – is paying taxes, and that tax money is being used to destroy them, whether it's being used to poison them with the spraying overhead or the 'funny business' in the food and the synthetic food. If you look at what is going on with fetal tissue, that is a whole other issue.

Wired Magazine in the U.K. just came out with an article saying, "We can use human stem cells to grow meat in laboratories." It's part of the, "Let's be weirder than anybody else and get attention."

They are talking about these things, and I think that at some point, or at least what I'm hoping, is that if I can't use a school because they are making a child wear a 'face diaper', and then they are indoctrinating them with an absurd curriculum that doesn't help them be productive or effective in their life, I can't keep paying taxes to fund a system that destroys my children. To the extent that they are spending it in ways that are criminal, they are outside the law, not my taxes. I have an obligation to get them back inside the law to ensure that my tax money doesn't get spent in criminal ways.

I keep going back to the taxation system because we don't need central banks.

Farrell: We really don't.

Fitts: Going Direct means that you don't need central banks; that's the real meaning. So, they provide no purpose other than keeping everything secret for the hidden system of finance. I go back to your presentation long ago.

Have you given any thought on how they are going to run that hidden system with the central bank digital currencies?

Farrell: Have I given any thought to how the central bankers are going to run a digital system? Yes, I have.

Fitts: That is part of the problem because they've been taking the position that they can't stop organized crime. It's somehow impossible to stop it, even though everything 'bashes' and goes to the New York Fed, but somehow it's out of control.

This system has so much tight, immediate, direct control that they can turn everybody on and off; they can see everything. How are they going to take the position that they can't stop? How are they going to take the position that those black teenagers laundering all that money are somehow out of their control?

Farrell: I have given much thought to that very question, and I am still going with my read of a couple of years ago – maybe three years ago – on these Quarterly Wrap Ups that in my estimation, this hidden system of finance is an analog system, and it will remain such.

In other words, the way that they are clearing their transactions, they need two tracks. The public track is going to be digital, and their track will be analog with the actual physical exchange of securities or other media of transactions. This is why I think those bearer bonds are so important.

Fitts: I agree.

Farrell: What those represent is a clearing mechanism.

Fitts: But we are talking about the same thing happening in finance and energy and space. So, the retail energy picture is totally different than the wholesale energy picture, which is secret. So, you are talking about in all of these different industries and areas a parallel existence at the wholesale level.

Farrell: Yes, and the reason I think it has to be analog and that wholesale system has to be hidden and secret is that analog systems have clearing. In other words, I give you a piece of paper that says, "I will pay you $1 billion over 30 years at  $x$  percent interest." I think that is because, at that level, you are looking at long-term, real-time, real market statistical finance and processes. At the public level, we are in algorithmic trading where trades are executed in nanoseconds, and you can pump and dump all the time.

Fitts: We are creating paper bubbles.

Farrell: I think that rather than a hidden system of finance, I now tend to think of it as a secret analog system of clearing.

Fitts: Right, and you are going to have to run it through the underground bases or the suborbital platform. You can't depend on the suborbital platform because of the electricity and EMP; it's not stable enough. So, the underground bases will be critical to this.

Farrell: Absolutely. It's also a system that is tailor-made if you are engaged in criminal activity. We both know that they have been engaged in that for quite a long time. Just look at the human trafficking.

You have to have an analog system.

Fitts: This is so absurd. We are saying: The higher you go in society, the ultimate entry into the top is that you can go analog.

Farrell: Yes, it's weird because these people are not stupid. They know about the dangers of EMP and so on. So, they are not going to tie their assets up in that, why should we?

If I had enough money to play the stock market, I want those physical stock certificates in my hand; I don't want them in a brokerage house. I'm that sort of person. They can do anything at that point.

We are back to my e-book thing; have the physical hard copy.

Fitts: Absolutely.

For the Wrap Up, after we publish News Trends & Stories we are hoping to come out with an in-depth discussion of some of the tax issues. I'm a great believer that we are going to have to find a way to assert lawful management of the tax flows. The question is: How do we do that?

Story #7: Are G7 Central Banks Asserting Control of Treasuries and Election Processes Before Moving to Authorize Legislation for CBDCs?

We discussed this in Economy & Financial Markets, but I think that whether it's the installation of the smart grid or rolling out CBDCs, they have many 'balls they are juggling'.

I said this in the interview I did for Planet Lockdown: They need to 'throw the trap' before everybody sees how the trap comes together – what they are doing in military and what they are doing in other areas. The people who are implementing this is us; we are implementing this system. So, we are the people developing the crypto market, the people doing the military side, the big pharma doing the injections, and the people doing the abortions that get the fetal tissue for the pharma.

If you go on and on and on with all these different 'pipes', everybody is doing their thing, and they don't see the complete thing; they don't see the trap coming.

Farrell: It's crucial that people start doing that; it's absolutely crucial.

Your website members and my website members see the picture. The question is: How do we get others to see it? The only thing that I can think of is to keep pushing it into the public discussion. That is the only way to do it.

‘God forbid’, I think that one of the turning points will be when we start having some of these adverse reactions to these vaccines.

Fitts: It’s incredible – these multiple reporting places. If you go to the Family Financial Disclosure Form-we published it in French and German as well-we have a list of all the different reporting databases. If you see what has been reported, historically only 1-10% get reported, so it is a very small percentage. But if you only see what has been reported, it is so gruesome.

Farrell: It is gruesome, but what I’m talking about is not the reactions that we see now; I am talking about the reactions that we will start seeing two to three years down the line. I think that the narrative is already falling apart. What people haven’t seen in terms of the general public is how it’s connected to a financial agenda.

I do think that, particularly in this country with the ‘Bidenenko’ regime, we see such a rush and such a mishandling of everything that people are starting to question and connect dots.

So, I think the process is underway. We just need to keep ‘drilling’ it home.

Let’s look at the taxation issue: They are going to try to move people into a digital payment system for taxes. At that juncture, people have two choices: They can either say, “No, I am paying you with good, old-fashioned, hard cash,” or, “I’m writing out a check from my bank,” and we will have to insist that that be understood and accepted. If they succeed in removing that system into a completely digital system, they have you.

Fitts: It’s very interesting. I think one thing that has clued many Americans as to how bad it is, is they finally announced the $1,400 stimulus check. If you look at what the private equity people and the hedge funds are getting and how much money everybody is making, the $1,400 was a ‘slap in the face’.

I was planning on sending the check back when it came. So, I got a message that the money was directly deposited into my account without my permission.

I emailed my banker and said, “How do I send it back? I don’t want it?”

I have to figure out how to send it back because I have no idea what stipulations behind the scenes they are putting on this thing.

My banker had to go to the IRS website and figure out how to send it back. They put it right into my account. It was scary; I didn't give them permission to do that.

Story #8: Is the U.S. Military National Security Global Umbrella Being Privatized?

I think that one of the biggest stories of the quarter was when a group of congressmen said that the nuclear code and the nuclear football (atomic football-Presidential Emergency Satchel) should be turned over by the President to a committee. This is like FASAB 56, and I bet you that the committee that controls FASAB 56 would control the nuclear football.

Here is the interesting thing: The congressmen leading this effort were from Los Angeles, California. I believe this looked like turning the nuclear football over to the central bankers.

Farrell: Yes. I think that is a high possibility, and I think that we are looking at the geopolitical ramifications of that talk right now.

Fitts: Remember, if you go back to the Cuban Missile Crisis, the military could not start a war because Kennedy controlled the nuclear codes, and they couldn't get it going, but they tried.

There is a great Kevin Costner movie called Thirteen Days on the entire thing. You see how hard they tried and the pressure they brought to bear; they tried to start a nuclear war, and they failed.

Farrell: This is why I think this talk is very, very dangerous. I think that we are seeing the geopolitical fallout from that proposed plan right now in that a Russian ambassador does not get recalled for consultations unless Putin wants to look him in the eye and say, "Who is running things over there?"

Fitts: That is a very big question because, if you look at what has happened, I don't know if you tried to watch the inauguration. I tried to watch the beginning of it, and everybody on that podium looked 'scared to death'. They were 'scared to death', and they were all wearing 'face diapers'. They looked like scared little poodles; there was no one there who was in charge.

Farrell: If I were Mr. Putin, this would be the question I would ask, "Who is really in charge over there?"

If this committee thing goes through, who has control of that 'football'?

If you are Mr. Putin, and are looking at the West and all of this central bank clampdown, I am in agreement with you that they are trying to make a play to get control of the nuclear football and put it in private hands. Putin's response to that has to be that he is going to go to Merkel, and he will say, "Look, they are out of control over there."

Fitts: Which is true. If you look at what is going on in Syria, we have wars breaking out between different factions supported by different people in the United States. Talk about 'a cluster of you-know-what'! It's unbelievable!

Farrell: Yes, and that puts other powers, like Russia, in the position of not knowing who to negotiate with or what can be done. I said earlier that this puts Germany into a very, very interesting position because economically, Germany needs that trade with China, with Asia, with Russia. They cannot rely on us.

Fitts: In 2020, China became the number one trading partner with Europe. So, the number one EU trading partner is China. China is now the number one trading partner with almost 70 countries, and the U.S. is number one with less than 40.

Farrell: Geopolitically, this means: Forget about the European Union. Right now, it's Paris and Berlin that people have to be thinking in terms of where Europe is going. France is a nuclear power. Interestingly enough, as all of this is happening, recently I saw an article where France is holding its largest military maneuvers since prior to World War I. That means they have 'read the tea leaves' in Paris.

The United Kingdom's Prime Minister, Boris Johnson, has announced that they will be beefing up their nuclear deterrent from 180 warheads to about 260. That may not seem like much when you compare it to Russia or the United States, but that is enough to blow up either of those two countries.

In other words, it's looking like the leadership in Europe is now 'seeing the handwriting on the wall' for the United States as a reliable ally.

Fitts: One of the most remarkable videos of the first quarter was the summit in Alaska between the new Secretary of the State and China. It was another one of these deeply humiliating moments for me as an American – and as a patriotic American – to see my country like this. I've watched them be reduced to criminality for a long time, but I'm not used to them being reduced to a joke; being reduced to infants. It was the complete baby-fication of the American political class.

I thought, "What in the world are they doing? Why would they allow themselves to be put in a position where they would be dressed down by the Chinese in front of video cameras?"

So, you were watching gross diplomatic incompetence, and you can't understand why anyone would do this.

Farrell: I'm at a loss other than that these people are in a hurry, and they are making obvious basic mistakes. This nuclear football thing 'scares the daylights out of me' because when you have infants in charge of central banks and infants in charge of the state department, that's not a good scenario.

Fitts: Here is the thing: If you look at Jay Powell, he is the Governor of the Federal Reserve. Jay Powell is not an infant. If you look at how he has handled himself, he is handling himself like an adult. But he is clearly scared of somebody and something. Those people are encouraging infant behavior on a large scale.

In my experience, if you look at the kind of people who would normally control the FASAB-56 committee, they weren't infants; they were major adults. You might disagree with them, but they were major adults.

If you look at the governance structure on who killed Kennedy, you may not like them, and you may disagree with them, but they were major adults. They were mature adults who took responsibility, and they mastered the nuts and bolts of governance.

Now we have people who lose their heads over kickbacks.

Farrell: The problem with infants doing this is, if you put them in control of the nuclear football and they are already living in their own make-believe world, that is a very, very dangerous thing.

Fitts: That is the thing; they are living in their own make-believe world.

Farrell: This is what scares me about this current situation. The way that I'm reading Germany, in particular, is that the Germans are now going to have to play a very, very careful diplomatic game. They cannot afford to alienate China and Russia, and they are not going to. So we had better brace ourselves.

At the same time, they are not going to allow themselves to be put in the position where either Russia or China or the United States will be able to dominate them. This is the other hidden thing that I think is behind all the protests in Europe. If you are European, you are just sick and tired of being caught in the middle.

The only way for Europe to assert itself – and I go back to these French military exercises and Mr. Johnson wanting to beef up Great Britain's nuclear deterrent – is that they see the handwriting on the wall, so they are going to have to beef up their defense spending on a national basis; forget about the EU.

Fitts: Right, but if you are Britain, you're a nuclear power. If you are France, you are a nuclear power. I bet the Germans figured out how to be a nuclear power.

Farrell: I've said for over two decades that the Germans are a turn-key nuclear power if they haven't a few bombs 'salted away' already. They were responsible for the South African bombs.

It's insanity to expect them to be anything else.

Fitts: Right, but if you are those three nuclear powers, why would you do nothing while the U.S. starts a missile war with Russia? Why would you do that? You wouldn't. So how do you get the U.S. to grow up?

Farrell: Very easily. If the U.S. starts something with Russia, you just say, "We're out."

As far as I know, their treaty obligations do not require them to enter into any sort of war that we would start – which is why I think they are trying hard to get something started through Ukraine as a proxy. The Ukrainian President just signed a national security resolution declaring their goal to retake Crimea. Well, good luck with that!

Fitts: After 9/11, they got NATO to exercise Article 5, and they got Europe on board through that NATO provision. Could they do that again if they take the position that Russia attacked first?

Farrell: This what I'm getting at: If the war card is an option, they are in a position where they are going to have to create a false flag.

Fitts: Russia is too smart to go to war, but they are not going to give up Crimea. They will not let anyone take back Crimea.

Farrell: No, they won't. If anything like that were even close to happening, Turkey would not go along with it.

Fitts: If you are America, how do you do a false flag that gets Russia to start a war over Crimea?

Farrell: With much difficulty. I think they are trying to push Ukraine as a proxy to do this. But the problem there is the United States is not in any position to do anything militarily for one principle reason: Merkel has allowed the German military to go to nothing during her tenure. So you can't rely on Germany. France is also not going to come in on anything like that.

Fitts: So, Victoria Newland is back as Assistant Secretary of State, correct?

Farrell: Yes.

Fitts: Is she the ‘busy little bee’ who has engineered some of this?

Farrell: I don’t know, but this is the problem with having infants living in their own make-believe world. Some people think they are doing all of this because they know about all the hidden U.S. secret weapons. Well, my word! You don’t think that China and Russia have a few things that they are not talking about?

Fitts: On my birthday in December, I came back and had a couple of hours before dinner. I had been reading a book called The Edge of the World by Michael Pye. I thought, “I’ll just finish the last couple of chapters.”

This is a book about the cultures around the North Sea and how they developed the Hanseatic League, the Fresians, and I am very interested in that history and the economic models they used during the Middle Ages. It’s all very interesting.

I got to the last two chapters. The next to last chapter is called Plague Laws.

Farrell: I just read that chapter.

Fitts: Oh, good! I couldn’t believe it!

Farrell: Nor could I. Talk about the playbook – there it is!

Fitts: I had just finished State of Our Currencies, and we had mailed it out in October. I got out the chronology in State of Our Currencies and realized, “Oh, here is the playbook. You have a plague, you centralize control, and you move the reserve currency. 100 years later, you do it again.”

Farrell: And what else did they do? They locked everybody down into their jobs or wherever it was.

Fitts: It's control of labor and control of travel. It's the same playbook. I couldn't believe it! My mouth was 'on the floor'.

I think there is definitely a relationship here, but I haven't had the time to do a deep dive and do the research. Somebody should do their PhD on this topic because it gives you the control that you need to make that kind of shift.

Farrell: Let's flip the whole discussion here so, hopefully, people can understand the significance of this nuclear football committee talk. What would France or Great Britain or China or the United States or India think if Russia suddenly announced, "We are taking our nuclear football away from the President of the Russian Federation, and we are turning it over to a committee, and we are not telling you who is on the committee." What would be the talk in those capitals around the world?

"Uh-oh. We don't know who is in control over there and what they might do with it."

Fitts: When you watch the coverage of the Presidency in the United States, the message is constantly flashed out. This can't be an accident.

We know that the President doesn't run the country, but to the extent that the Presidency has some power and role, that is gone.

Farrell: That is gone. We are dealing with a man who half the time doesn't even know what he is signing, and they have caught him on audio saying, "What is it I'm signing?"

"Oh, don't worry about it. Just go ahead and sign."

He is a front for some sort of hidden committee, and as far as I am concerned, it is going all the way back to 'Mr. Globaloney'.

In other words, we are in a dangerous, dangerous spot.

Fitts: Let me ask a question because there was a great article by Saker that said that the Chinese and Iran have just signed a huge bilateral agreement that creates the framework for their long-term relationship. Back to energy, this is about Iran's major oil and energy provision to China.

They all sign it. If you watch the video, everybody is wearing 'face diapers'. You realize that whoever is doing this, they have people in Iran and China wearing 'face diapers'. Why are they wearing 'face diapers'? There is no scientific reason for wearing 'face diapers'.

The G7 can't make them wear 'face diapers', so that is not it. Where is this coming from?

Farrell: I think that ultimately, 'Mr. Globaloney' is behind it, but the problem that 'Mr. Globaloney' has is he is not in total control of China or Russia. In other words, they are willing to play the game for public consumption. But rest assured, they do not want 'Mr. Globaloney' in charge of it. I don't see that happening.

Fitts: Right, but it speaks to the power of Mr. Global that they will play the game; it is very uncomfortable, and it is very unhealthy.

Farrell: Of course, it is. They are playing the game, but I really don't see that it is going to play out much longer. I do not see that happen.

Fitts: Did you see Ursula von der Leyen (President of the European Commission) stand up and say that we are going to have ten years of pandemics?

Farrell: Oh, it could be; they found a winning formula. Like they always do, they stick with it until people 'run out of steam'. But as I've said before, the problem is I think that narrative is collapsing faster than they are able to keep it stitched together. I think they need some sort of other event.

Maybe they will have a war and they have already negotiated with the Russians and Chinese, "We will just keep it here, and we will keep it confined to this area." I don't know.

Fitts: One of the things that worries me as I watch Russia and China is that every time I turn around, I see a headline or a story about how they are ‘taking care of business’. They are building out the Silk Road; they are building this and building that. They are very focused on things that create fundamental productivity because they can’t play the paper game the way we can.

If you look at the strength of their economic and political muscle, it just keeps getting stronger, whereas if you watch America, if you look at the poisoning and what is happening with the injections, we are really talking about destroying this society.

So, we are being destroyed at the same time they are being raised up.

Farrell: I think that is part of ‘Mr. Globaloney’s’ plan. My problem with ‘Mr. Globaloney’ here is that ‘Mr. Globaloney’ is victim of his own propaganda. He doesn’t realize that he is playing with nation states that play the Realpolitik game.

Sooner or later, the Shanghai Accord will crack because in the long term, Russia and China are two very different cultures, and they have two very different interests in play over the long-term. They will both play with each other as long as it is in their interest to do so, but it’s not in either’s interest to do so continuously.

I don’t see ‘Mr. Globaloney’ having calculated correctly here. If they think that they can control China, guess again.

Fitts: I think they think that they can. The question is: Why?

This comes down to space and who controls in space. If you look at the investment that China is making in space, it’s huge. They are going very fast. It’s will be very interesting to see.

The Japanese have incredible engineering capacity, and whatever the Japanese are doing in space, they are being quieter about it.

Farrell: Oh, much quieter.

Fitts: If you get Russia, Japan, and China collaborating or aligning in space, then the G7 is in for a real ‘food fight’. I would say that the Anglo-American Alliance is in for a real ‘food fight’. The question is: Is somebody on Earth going to control in space, or is there another?

I go back to Antarctica: Who is the other?

We talked about the nuclear football, but we are still on Story #8, ‘Is the U.S. Military National Security Global Umbrella Being Privatized?’

At the same time that we had to do-over the nuclear football, it was announced that Israel was going into the CENTCOM command structure.

I find this absolutely frightening, and part of it is because I think the reason for the injection fraud being the strongest in Israel is that they are trying to be the cyber-security leader and run much of the U.S. systems through Tel Aviv. So they are trying to control through the information systems, and they need to make sure that they have chipped their population. They need to be able to be a leader in chipping their population.

But to let Israel into the CENTCOM command structure?

I think that CENTCOM is one of seven commands, and CENTCOM is the Middle East. If anybody has shown themselves to be absolutely untrustworthy when it comes to military command, the Stuxnet story proves the Israelis are ‘cowboys’. That is what I think.

So, you are letting a cowboy into the U.S. command structure?

Farrell: I’ll go one further: When we are talking about nuclear football committee, I think that Israel is on it.

Fitts: Absolutely. That’s why I said it’s the congressman from L.A. I always tell everybody that there is no Israel; Israel is being run from Martha’s Vineyard and Beverly Hills.

I grew up in Philadelphia. Netanyahu graduated from Cheltenham High in 1967. I knew many types at Cheltenham High in 1967, and I would have told you that if you give anybody in the Cheltenham High class of 1967 a nuclear arsenal, you will have a mess.

Farrell: Here is the problem for ‘Mr. Globaloney’ and the war card: If they are going to play that card, they will be the ones targeted. It’s not going to be Peoria, Illinois; it will be Martha’s Vineyard, Beverly Hills, Pocantico, and all of their little hideouts. It’s a mess. If that is the game, I’m not entirely convinced that the war card is as much in play as others are. But if that is in play, then the Russians and Chinese are going to play the game.

Fitts: Here’s why I think it is in play: I think that it is in play because of accidents. I think that it’s in play because we’ve watched in the West – certainly in the United States – a tremendous deterioration in the quality of the people in any line management capacity.

Organized crime has moved out the competent and brought in the ‘willing to play ball’ crowd. When you have this many people willing to play ball with this much sloppiness, look at what happens. Look how Cuomo was outed by his staff. That’s sloppy. It might be a plan, but it looks sloppy to me.

You have an enormous amount of sloppiness in and around many dangerous weapons and processes. I think you could just have an accident.

Farrell: That is possible. I go back to that very strange statement that General Milley made last year at one of President Trump’s press conferences where he and the Defense Secretary started the press conference. It was all about COVID, but it was on April Fool’s Day, and suddenly, we were being addressed by General Milley who was talking about a massive deployment of Navy and troop assets to the Caribbean. Then he made the statement that he repeated twice, “You’re not getting in. You’re not getting in.”

So, I wonder if someone was trying to smuggle a firecracker into this country for some sort of false flag. Yes, this was sloppy planning. I’m not optimistic about ‘Mr. Globaloney’.

Fitts: There is one other thing that concerns me: Put this all under ‘unintended consequences’. I’m a believer that high-tech mind control is a much more significant player in what is going on than most people know. I think that this technology has gotten completely out of control, and it has been very successful for the establishment.

You know something? There is a tipping point when you have enough shriek-o-meter lies and enough high-tech mind control that literally, a society can lose its mind, particularly if it’s poisoned. So between the poisoning, the demonic occult behavior, and the mind control, when you have that deterioration in the intelligence of a society around dangerous weapons, what can go wrong? Plenty.

Farrell: I agree with you there. I think you have reached that inflection point. I think that ‘Mr. Globaloney’ has become a victim of his own technologies and propaganda. So, they actually believe what they are spouting, “We can handle Russia.” Oh really? It seems that I remember somebody named A. Hitler who had a little problem there.

Fitts: I guess from watching what Hitler and his team did was they used entrainment; they had entrainment technology.

We are racing ahead on questions, because I think we have already answered this next question:

Story #9: Has the Multipolar Moment Arrived? The Drumbeats of War Grow as China and India Break Away.

We haven’t talked that much about India, but India has 1.4 billion people. Plenty of effort has been made to digitize them and get them on biometric systems and get the cash controls in. The Indian farmers have resisted central digital control. India doesn’t seem to be ‘playing ball’ on the injections the same way. I don’t think that India and China want their people controlled by the Fed.

Farrell: I don’t either.

Fitts: They have a huge pharmaceutical industry, and they can make their own injections.

Farrell: You have something else going on in China, and that is people think of China as this monolithic culture and country, but it's not. You've made that point several times; it's not. There are some huge demographic problems and fissures inside of China. Frankly, I will sound 'nuts' here. I don't think that the communist party is as secure in its position in China as they would like everybody to believe.

Fitts: Here is their problem, and if you go to the Financial Markets section on the website, I think the number one highest increase in commodity prices was lean hogs, which is not an accident. Whereas Trump is touting that the stock market is up, what Chinese politicians need to tout is that the price of pork is down.

If you look at the food wars that have been going on between China and the U.S. over the last two years, it's frightening. There is a real food war happening between the U.S. and China.

A couple of years ago, we did a Wrap Up called Global Harvest. I looked at which countries are food surplus versus which countries are food negative. If you are China and are coming into a world of robotics, AI, and software, but you have to keep 1.3 billion people fed, and are not at a food surplus, that is very hard. You're not energy surplus and you're not food surplus; that is a 'dance' that is hard to do.

Farrell: That is a very difficult dance, which is why they need Russia. Russia has their food, and Russia has the energy.

My view of India in all of this is that India is – like so many nations – participating in military exercises with us as they did recently. They are playing the Japanese game. They are going to go along with us as long as they can, but the reality on the ground is that they are much more dependent on Russia and France for their military equipment. They just did another big defense deal with France.

I think that India's days as being the quiet, silent, hidden partner in America's geopolitical schemes in Asia are long over.

Fitts: With the adults proceeding, is the world now getting ready to turn against the Israelis?

Let's face it: Much of the infantile behavior in the United States has come through that group.

Farrell: I would rephrase it to say that if you are going to see those countries reassessing their position vis-à-vis Israel, they will go after the head rather than the tail.

Fitts: The head is not in Israel.

Farrell: The head is not in Israel, and they are going to reassess their position vis-à-vis the United States. I'm with the Saker here. They are going to reassess their opinion of the United States, and the United States is not agreement capable.

I'm going to site something here that is very interesting, which I know you are going to love. The third season of Yellowstone has this very smart lawyer for the Indian tribe come in, and she is a 'pistol'. She is sitting with the tribal chieftain in the car, and they are driving somewhere. She is commenting, "The United States has not kept any agreements it's ever made, beginning with the treaty with France."

My 'jaw was on the floor' because she is referring to the most favored nation status commerce treaty that was made with France in 1793 and probably ignored.

Fitts: It's the scorpion and the frog.

Farrell: It is the scorpion and the frog. So, I thought that if you are any other major power in the world, I don't care who it is – Italy, France, China, India, or take your pick – and you are looking at the United States right now, would you want to negotiate in good faith with this government that changes its mind? You can't.

Fitts: First of all, you don't know who is pretending to be the President. So the Presidency is fluid. You can't just call up the Fed and negotiate directly. So you're right.

I believe the financial coup has been successful, and now it is consolidating. What that means is the Treasury is under control of invisible parties that you can't see.

Farrell: Look at Russia and 'Bidenenko': They know everything about his dealings with China and Ukraine, and they probably know much more than we know.

If you are Russia, do you want to negotiate with someone like this whose involvement in Ukraine is up to the 'earlobes' with criminality?

Fitts: Do you know what I would do? I would take all the diplomats that I want to get rid of and can't fire, and I would assign them to negotiate with the Americans, but never give them permission to ink any kind of deal. That is what I would do. We call it 'detailing it to Alaska'. I would put the Alaska detail on it, and ship them to the Americans.

Farrell: In other words, I totally agree with you. Any diplomatic moves that those countries make with the United States are not serious because we can't be serious. We have a 'bunch of infants' running the country.

Fitts: If you look at the cabinet positions – the top 20 positions in the Biden Administration – I guess that more than ten have Israeli passports. They are dual citizens.

This is a dual passport group of people. They're not really Americans; their loyalties are global.

Farrell: It's Trotsky's Lenin's rootless cosmopolitans.

Fitts: If you want to go back in history and look at when this happened before, reading Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn's book (The Red Wheel and The Gulag Archipelago) on the Bolshevik revolution is the perfect insight.

It's perplexing because you and I have talked through your great book on McCarthy, and we talked through the Forrester assassination. We've talked about all these assassinations and changes of control throughout history. Again and again, we see this WASP-y Rockefeller syndicate and this organized Jewish crime thread, and they are always cooperating and collaborating and competing together. They keep turning up like a bad penny again and again and again, and here we are again.

They were the ones who caused the Bolshevik revolution.

Farrell: That's right.

Fitts: I just don't see Putin dumping a missile on the City of London.

Farrell: I don't see him doing that, but like I've said before, covert operations are a game that two people can play. Here we have 'Bidenenko' threatening Russia with cyber warfare and sending messages.

Fitts: It's almost suicidal; it's reached a suicidal level.

The drumbeats of war are clearly happening. It's peculiar because if you go back to the financial markets and look at the equity markets, what I said in the Equity Overview is that this is Planet Equity, and they will continue to try to mark up the equity instead of marking down the debt. The thing that could interrupt and get one of those 50% swings is war.

Story #10: Is Mr. Global Implementing Technocracy through Weaponized Capital Controls: ESG, SDGs, & Climate Change?

Ever since the COVID pandemic started, ESG (Environmental Social Governance) and SDG (Sustainable Development Goals) and climate change have suddenly shown up as a major game in the investment world. It's another way of destroying companies with technocracy and rules.

They are trying to get everything so rule-based that you literally can run every company in the world with AI and software. It's part of digitization. But it is interesting when you drill down and look at this, you find that you are trying to weaponized these things to control where people's capital goes.

One possibility is open up your brokerage account, and your brokerage account is rated for how you are doing on ESG, SDG, climate change, and all of these things. If you buy a company that is not doing what they are telling it to do, then your rating gets dropped, and it's like your credit score. I think that is where they are headed on this kind of weaponization.

What is amazing is that it is all trying to use standards and certificates in these different games to force your capital into where they want it to go.

Farrell: They have a big problem looming. I'm going to say one word, and I think that you are going to know exactly where I'm going: GameStop.

Fitts: Although the Dark Pools started the GameStop thing (its stock fray).

Farrell: The Dark Pools started it, but other people finished it. I thought, "Oh, that's an interesting little sign. That means that the deplorables are watching." The deplorables are thinking, "What sort of monkey wrench can we throw into the works?"

Fitts: This is where I think the young people can really play.

Farrell: Oh yeah, and that is who did it. It was a group of young people.

Fitts: It's like the people who threw the bucket of feces mixed with glue over the head.

I think that once you get the young people to understand that this whole thing is a rigged game and it's bogus, and they understand the wealth potential if you get rid of fascism, they will take off. Fascism is incredibly bad for the economy, as are totalitarianism and central control. Once they get it in their heads that they can create more wealth, in the long run, there is nothing to be afraid of other than these people having control.

If everybody starts to vote with their money-if on January 6th, nobody had gone to Washington, and they had stayed home and moved their credit cards and bank accounts, it would have been a revolution.

Farrell: It would have. That needs to be done.

As far as I'm concerned, GameStop was the first of many more things to come. For years, Bill Binney has been out there telling young people to learn how to code and learn how to crypt and decrypt, and just create a nightmare for Mr. Central Control.

I think that is going to happen. They have not gotten the systems in place yet to clamp down on it.

It's the old Soviet adage: The Russians learned how to game the system under communism, and game it they did.

Fitts: Thank God!

Those are the stories on Geopolitics. Let's look at Geopolitics over the first quarter. There is a wonderful journalist in Switzerland who leaned over and said to me at Christmastime, "You know, friends are turning up everywhere."

I see political happenings worldwide, talented, competent, capable, professional, experienced people who are young, old, black, and white from every corner of the planet who are basically coming together and saying, "This is nuts!"

They are asserting adult supervision in their spirit, and they are doing and are willing to say, "Whatever this is, I don't want to be a part of it."

It's almost like the grounded people have a choice of going with the flow or staying grounded, and they would rather remain grounded.

Farrell: I agree. It is one of those factors that 'Mr. Globaloney' has not calculated as far as I can tell. I think that they are so overconfident now that they ignore these things. Ultimately, they are ignoring them to their peril. What they are about is not workable; it's anti-human, and it's not workable.

Fitts: One of the things that I notice when I step back and look at the whole transfer of the multi-polar world is that we see from the G7 nations (and I don't see it from Russia or China, although it could be there, I don't see it) the blossoming of the demonic and the occult. We saw it peek its head up out of Pizzagate, but it's just now all over the place. It's out of control in-your-face. It still leaves me speechless.

Farrell: Me, too. The flip side of that, and I can't speak for your website members, but I can tell you that my website members are seeing it or feeling it. I'm not saying that they know what to do, but they are aware of it. The awareness itself is new. It's on a scale that I have not seen before.

I've been doing this website for over a decade now, and I can tell you that within the last year or so, it has not only peaked in terms of more and more people sensing that there is something radically wrong with these people running the world, but they are doing it in a way that I have not seen it ever before. That, again, tells me that 'Mr. Globaloney' is moving too fast, and he doesn't have everything nailed down. People are aware of it, people are sensing the demonic in it, and the only thing is that they don't quite know what to do or where to go and how to deal with all of this. But they are at least aware. That is 90% of the battle.

Fitts: I think that there are a couple of challenges for the audience, and one is that many people have never studied or been trained in spiritual warfare.

If you came up in the new age and said, "There is no such thing as evil; it's all just us not dealing with our own trouble, etc.," then you don't have a concept of interdimensional intelligence that can move an evil or deal with an intelligent force which looks at you as a separate and expendable species.

So, whether it's interdimensional intelligence or simply somebody has decided to depopulate you, they've never dealt with that kind of evil face-to-face. Part of growing up is coming to grips with the fact that it's real, and we have to be able to deal with it. It calls for a whole different level of tactics than most Westerners have been trained under.

Farrell: Most people are into what I call the 'grand abstractions'. "Love humanity.” No, it’s, “Love your neighbor.” It’s, “Buy a sandwich for the homeless person who you run into in your daily life.” It’s not doing the grand abstractions.

The other thing is, “Love your enemy.” How do you do that? I tell people to pray the Imprecatory Psalms. That means that you’ve got to know evil well enough to know, not only who your friends are, but who your enemies are. Pray accordingly if you are the praying sort.

Fitts: And you have to keep them out; stop inviting them in, and stop helping them.

Farrell: Yes. It’s that simple. You’ve said all along, “Get out of the big banks. Go to a local bank.” I couldn’t agree more. Start taking practical steps.

Fitts: But there is something about the mind control that keeps persuading people that they are safe doing business with the evildoers. It scares me because self-preservation is quite a natural instinct.

Farrell: It’s a natural instinct that has been shut off over the last 150 years or so with the emergence of mass media and so on. What I think people have to realize is that once they start recognizing who their enemies are, it’s very easy. I can think of ‘Bidenenko’ as an enemy and Nancy Pelosi as an enemy. I don’t think of these people as my friend. I pray accordingly for them. I pray, “If they can’t repent, smack them down.”

If it does nothing else, it lets you know that you do have friends and you do have enemies. So many people think that everybody is their friend, and that is not the case.

Fitts: I received some serious criticism for making Yellowstone the Movie of the Year last year. I think that it’s a valid criticism. Some people do not want to watch violence; it’s a very violent show. They don’t want violence in their life, and they want to keep violence out. In the future, I am going to warn people, “This is rather violent, so be careful if you don’t want to watch violence.”

I realized that they grew up and live in a different country than I grew up and live in. I grew up in a country that was very violent. I've dealt with a lot of tremendous violence in my life, and yet there are many people in the G7 nations who haven't.

Farrell: Yellowstone is interesting as a metaphor for our culture because the second season, as you pointed out in one of the last two Quarterly Wrap Ups, they are fighting these people called the Beck brothers, and these people are 'real turds in the punch bowl'.

Fitts: Our fear right now is that the Beck brothers are getting control of the nuclear football.

Farrell: The heroes in the story go out and kill them-literally. There is a scene where one of the protagonists has a Beck brother, who he has been caught on the toilet and shot a few times, and this Beck brother says, "We didn't think that you would fight back. No one has ever fought back before."

Well, that is a good metaphor for what we are faced with now.

Fitts: From the Kennedy assassination on, they kept getting away with murder and getting away with murder and getting away with murder.

There is a codependency here. I talk about it with the Red Button problem. There is a codependency that we are responsible for.

Farrell: This country has been in one long arc of history, as far as I'm concerned, that goes from the Kennedy assassination, and those people who pulled that off are still in charge. That is why everything is such a mess; we are dealing with killers.

Fitts: I would say that the people who did the Kennedy assassination are no longer in charge. They've somewhat died off. But when they took the position, "We've given up on the country; we are moving all the money out starting in the fall," in 1995, they decided to let the country 'go to hell in a handbasket'. They allowed people to come in and take over who they usually would never allow to come in and take over.

It's gotten much messier. Up until 1995, they took responsibility to make sure that a certain kind of mess didn't go on. Then they said, "Let's show them what life is like without our leadership. Here we go."

Farrell: That's what I mean by the same people being in charge. The Shrug family is 'up to its earlobes' with connections to JFK. I have about as much use for them as you do.

We've allowed this to go on far too long, and we will be facing some hard choices. This is why I keep telling people to 'own the culture'. That means they will have to be individually and family responsible over a long, long term to make sure that whatever emerges on the other side is at least human or humane.

Fitts: The Library of Congress won't preserve Aristotle, but we can.

Farrell: Yes, The Library of Congress will not preserve Aristotle, but we can.

Fitts: Joseph, this has been an absolutely fascinating conversation. Coming soon is Part II: News Trends & Stories. We will start with my favorite conversation with Joseph P. Farrell, Culture, and we will go through Science & Technology, Space, Food & Health, and we have plenty to talk about, including why they want us to ID ourselves walking around a city with drops of blood. Are you ready for that one?

Farrell: Yes, and are you ready for a little more poetry reading?

Fitts: Yes, oh yes. Absolutely.

Farrell: Good.

Fitts: Ladies and gentlemen, thank you for joining us on The Solari Report. We look forward to talking with you soon on News Trends & Stories Part II.

Farrell: Thank you, Catherine. T, and thank you for having me back.
