1. Question:

Greetings Catherine, a local currency system is in the early stages of creation in Ireland. It is based on the successful system, which has been tried and tested in the Netherlands, based on the Florine. At face value, it looks simple, effective, fair and a no brainer. Obviously, success depends on creating a market for it, by enrolling as many traders and consumers, as possible. I am in the south west and there are many aware folk, who are well networked. So, I suspect, an appetite is there. Is there anything about it you don't like? <https://fairmoney.ie/> I look forward to hearing your comments. Many thanks. "F"

Geopolitics & Financial Markets

3. Question:

Why do you think both Ukraine and Russia place so much value in Bakhmut? We know there are lots of underground tunnels and spaces. We have seen Prigozhin show a big weapons arsenal, but that was all old stuff. Military analysts all say Bakhmut is not so important and yet the fiercest fighting is there. What do you, or Dr Farell, think there is there? It must be something that is important to have but CANNOT be moved.

All the best, "G"

4. Question:

Many prayers for you and the team.

Is Trump just a distraction? While the control grid is being built and or waiting for some or all the below.

40 charges and as John Titus said only one has any teeth, any more info on that one? Why so many other than to keep the distraction going keeping it all in the news? I wonder a good bit about how different our world would be today if Trump was President? Especially when I consider what he did in his 4 years, magic virus, destruction of small business etc. Or is two houses of mr global fighting? Trump house and Biden house. I put this low but still possible.

Why is Mitch McConnell still leader? He was one who went to Ukraine? Why is Biden and all the old in Congress being patched up and kept in place? Seems mr global has a time line and a point to flip the switch. As others have said they will do everything they can to scare the whole population. My take and thinking follows: War.....maybe nuke maybe just shooting, bio weapon blamed on Russia Newsmax had a story on a Chinese Lab discovered in CA a few days ago, EMP or false flag EMP blamed on Russia, a friend said USA is looking to redo the draft to go up to age 30 for when Russia attracts which seems kinda not accurate for several reasons, release of new bio weapon buy who ever blamed on Russia, false flag or real cyber-attack blamed on Russia or by Russia. What percent do you put Fall as your time line? What will all those do who have crossed the border when they are told to go? Maybe Transformers maybe pipeline pumping stations, maybe communications centers. As you said Catherine better enjoy your summer. Pray and prep, eyes open.

5. Question:

Hi Catherine,

You mentioned if we experience a great deflation, something that I have never experienced in my life, we need to ensure we are fine. How exactly do we do that?

CAF Notes & Links:

6. Question:

Dear Catherine,

I was fascinated in the recent money and markets about your teaser regarding the potential for a significant deflation scenario. You're the first person who I've heard speak of this as a strategy which could be implemented to control the population, so while I know you've said you'll speak more on this subject in coming months I am keen to understand more now!

First of all you're right in saying none of us in the west have lived through a deflation and have any idea what this looks like. I understand in theory this means an increase in the value of money relative to assets. However I'm gathering that the scenarios you speak of are not going to be quite as straight forward.

When you consider that we've had almost a hundred years of non-stop inflation in the west, which has caused, for the first time in modern history, a situation where previous generations now hold more wealth than the younger generations, resulting in a real-world drop in living standards for the first time since, I would think, the last depression? This has caused all sorts of terrible consequences for the productivity, prosperity, wealth, opportunities and fundamental economic stability for particularly Gen Y and Z. As a Gen Y myself, the thought of something akin to a 30% drop in the value of assets in the near future is incredibly exciting to me and seems like an opportunity of a lifetime to acquire assets which are currently completely and utterly unaffordable. By assets I really mean owning a home. In Australia at least owning a home is no longer a given when earning an average income as a professional who has worked non-stop for a decade or more. The average home here on an unnecessarily small block of land is around $800k, 10 x the average income of around $80k. Housing, in Australia, is in the biggest bubble in history, and has not seen a major correction in my lifetime. Inflation and misguided policies has seen the price of these assets swell and swell until the average working professional cannot afford to own one without attempting to work 60 hour weeks or subjugating themselves to abject poverty by entering a debt trap. The only people here on average incomes who "own" a home (and by "own" I mean the bank owns their home for the next 30 years) are couples who each work full time and leave the job of child raising to child-care centres and the state, which as we know is NOT in the best interests of our children. But that is literally the price of owning a home in this country.

Historically, in say the 50's, the average home was approx 4 x the average income. This to me is a perfectly reasonable amount. Now it is 10 times. I cannot imagine anyone arguing that a significant deflation is not only desirable but REQUIRED to create a more level playing field, like that enjoyed by the Boomer generation and much of Gen X. It is not possible to simply wait for intergenerational wealth to be passed down for those who are fortunate enough to come from a family which has wealth to pass on. That is NOT a solution.

Now, I understand that the scenario I dream about above which would enable me and millions of others, as a small business owner with over a decade of expertise in my chosen field and a perfectly and suitably profitable business model, to actually buy a home without having to sell my soul on OnlyFans or something ridiculous like the media is always spruiking as the solution to my generations' problems, probably isn't the one you have in mind when speaking of contrived deflation. I'm assuming they wouldn't attempt to try such a scenario until they had everyone completely locked into the control grid so it is impossible for anyone other than the insiders to be cashed up to capitalise on the asset fire-sale. Is this the type of thing you're concerned about? If so, how would this come about, if not, what is?

All I know is if inflation continues as is indefinitely (ignoring any BS figures put about by the governments which are laughable), the transfer of wealth which is already happening to the 1% will continue unabated until there is nothing left for the 99%.

Banking

7. Question:

Recently Dr Mercola's accounts were closed down by Chase. While I have read your articles on finding a local bank they are centered on financial stability. I am concerned about a bank closing down my accounts because they do not agree with my business (I am a physician.) How can I ascertain whether a bank is going to be willing to close my account because someone from the government told them to?

CAF Notes & Links:

8. Question:

Q1: I've heard you and John say that bank deposits (Professor Werner too) are a liability to banks, can you explain why?

Werner is one of the scholarly brave few who teaches that the Borrower is the Creditor; another words, the loan originates through the borrower's signature. I attached "Figure 1" (trade secret.png) from Werner's essay, "Shifting from Central Planning to a Decentralized Economy: Do we Need Central Banks?"

Q2: How can people use the above knowledge to their advantage when getting a loan for a home for example?

Trade Secret: What makes banks unique The case of a £1,000 loan

Step 1 The bank 'purchases' the loan contract from the borrower and records this as an asset.

Balance Sheet of Bank A

| Assets  | Liabilities |
|---------|-------------|
| £ 1,000 |             |

Step 2 The bank now owes the borrower £ 1000, a liability. It records this however as a  fictitious customer deposit: the bank pretends the borrower has deposited the money, and nobody can tell the difference.

| Assets  | Liabilities |
|---------|-------------|
| £ 1,000 | £ 1,000     |

NB: No money is transferred from elsewhere

So the creditor (the bank) does not give up anything when a loan is 'paid out'

9. Question:

Hey Catherine,

I was recently listening to an interview with you on CHD, I think it was Financial Rebellion and you were being interviewed by Polly Tommey. There was no video feed on the interview.

Polly mentioned a couple of times that she was having issue with her credit union, and she had heard report of other subscribers who were as well.

I just wanted to comment that to me, the inconvenience has been quit significant. I went with a Colorado credit union, and I selected the one that had the best tech presence, knowing that I would mostly be banking online. It turns out they out-sourced their tech platform, so they don't have control of many things.

- most of their representatives don't even know what ACH is, which I rely upon for paying vendors and payroll for my business
- due to an unclear interface on their ACH recurring, I've missed payroll and rent payments
- debit card arbitrarily declined for online purchases, having to fall back to a card from another bank
- arbitrarily declining large transactions, such as a transfer to my mother for a downpayment on her house, or payroll
- password reset on their website has been broken for over a year, despite telling them several times

Whereas Chase is using machine learning to detect fraud, my credit union is using "Number is big". We're just in a totally different league in terms of technology.

Yes, they're nice to talk to, polite and friendly. And their VP of Business Services has offered to take any of my requests directly. But they drop the ball regularly, with me looking bad and not meeting my commitments.

So my point is this is real, and I think an honest statement to the listener would acknowledge this. A business owner should expect to spend more time and encounter more snags with the services of a smaller bank. Is it worth it? Are the services available acceptable? That depends on the business that a person is trying to run. But for sure they should do their research and make sure all the necessary services they need are supported before switching over. And maybe test the waters with a small deposit before canceling your old account.

12. Question:

Dear Catherine, Caroline, and Team,

Thank you for your greatly-appreciated support and guidance.

I have read "Caveat Emptor: Why Investors Need To Do Due Diligence On U.S. Treasury And Related Securities" and it makes me nervous. I have sole responsibility for keeping my family's life savings safe: A large part of this money is in short term 4 week T Bills. Do you think reinvesting short term T bills until October 1, 2023 when the new fiscal year begins is safe? What about after that?

Thank you for "How to Find and Build a Relationship with a Great Bank." In the presentation Catherine mentions ICS Insured Cash Sweep accounts. I have accounts up to the insurance limit at 3 banks that passed John Titus's red flag tests. One of these banks offers ICS accounts. When considering this and checking the list of available ICS network banks I spotted most of the banks I had rejected when searching for a good bank – many of them not well-capitalized with liabilities greater than assets. Maybe ICS is not such a good idea as your well-capitalized bank can sweep your excess funds into a riskier bank. They said "Yes" when I asked if I could choose the bank they sweep the funds into. However, the options do not look good.

Best Regards, "L"

15. Question:

Thank you for the info on CHD's efforts to shift to safer banking strategies. I'm not sure how I came across in my original e-mail, but I wasn't intending to criticize or call out CHD. I was concerned about the organization's vulnerability and exposure. I finally closed my CHASE credit card 2 years ago! I'm grateful for the education on coming clean and am adjusting my own participation in various ways.

Cheers to you both. Have fun in Savannah! St. John's Cathedral is absolutely gorgeous and worth a visit. "J"

16. Question:

Re: Money and Markets August 3rd: You're doing a great job covering the mRNA injection stuff, but, (small but ;-)), John asks "Would you say that mRNA is poison?", and you answer in the affirmative. Obviously, having watched the whole section, you are referring to "mRNA technology" / "injecting foreign mRNA", but if someone wishes to find things to take out of context to make you look bad in a 5 second soundbite, they would use this, because (endogenous- i.e. internally-produced, naturally occurring) mRNA's are literally an essential fact of functioning cells.

I hope this helps. Love and greetings from Germany. “N”

Mr. Global

17. Question:

Good Afternoon Catherine,

Recently I watched a few of the podcasts on the "Shawn Ryan Show" found on youtube where he is interviewing whistleblowers (Episodes #66 part I thru III) following up a Steven Greer Interview. (Episode #65). Part III, one of the individuals is discussing weaponry to manipulate seismic events, Part I is another individual is discussing encounter with weaponry in Indonesia following an earthquake in this nation in the past 10 to 15 years.

Over the past few years I've watched your many interviews as well. However, I can't recall the interview date and interviewer, but if I'm recalling correctly on one of these you mentioned along your career you noticed large funds where moved out of Indonesia prior to a large earthquake/tsunami and coming to the conclusion that Mr Global has advanced weaponry to manipulate weather & earthquakes and uses these to manipulate financial markets when required.

My question is, do this timelines merge? Building on this, big part of the black budget is used to obscure advanced technology from the public and even elected gov't. I'd imagine these costs are exponential, how long can Mr. Global keep it up?
Thanks

Health, Food & The Great Poisoning

18. Question:

I'm very grateful to be given all the updated information concerning the perils of the covid vaccines. What I really would like to know is "what" someone who has received all the shots and a booster can do to rid their body of this poison. I have particular interest in this since my daughter who is an elementary school educator along with my young granddaughters were "forced" to take these shots if they wanted to continue teaching or attending school. It scares the hell out of me every time I read all the reports about some of those who were injected are dying or are maimed. There's a lot of talk about that but how about what it does but can those injected be saved.

19. Question:

In the last Ask Catherine and team, you talk about hydrogen peroxide nebulizer. You do not use the peroxide directly; the solution is 7 teaspoons of normal saline and 1/4 teaspoon of 3% food grade hydrogen peroxide. The put that solution into the nebulizer and use daily until well.

Tech Corner

21. Question:

Cannot seem to find home internet router that does not have built in wi-fi. Have found a cable router that is only hard wired and not wi-fi (I do not use cable for my internet), but cannot find a non cable router that is only hard wired since I plug my home router into the phone jack. Does Catherine or the team have any suggestions on home routers that do not have built in wi-fi?

CAF Notes & Links:

From Tech Guy: You need to turn off Wifi. Each router works differently, so there are different instructions for each make and model. We suggest you go online to get a copy of the user manual for the make and model of your router and look up how to disconnect Wifi. If you have trouble, you can take a photo of the information on your router and send it in to Ask Catherine and the Solari Team for our new Tech Corner broadcast the last week of the month.

22. Question:

Dear Catherine and Carolyn,

Thanks so much for everything you do and are! Thanks for the free book link.

I wonder if you can help with a problem on accessing your subscriber content? The links for all of the video clips under Solari News do not allow the video to play. I am in South Africa. I have tried for two weeks now and they never play. They appear frozen and not "live". Is anyone else also experiencing this? I did try different browsers and clear all the cookies which works with the main content you post. But not the links to the interviews, it does not work.

I have two other questions. The first concerns the link up of 5G to aerial fiber networks. Could you please ask your team of experts to help with understanding more about this? Our entire province, if not country, is receiving completely free AERIAL fiber installation which is being rolled out at great speed and with force by private wifi company/companies. Who is paying for this very expensive roll out, in rural regions, is unknown. Many people don't understand the implications, namely: Control grid. On a hunch, knowing that nothing freely given and pushed hard by a tech corporation, is likely to be free of agenda, I researched international and local fiber tech sites. I found it commonly said on many sites that fiber networks are going to be linked up with 5G. I won't go into the details here, but a light search will produce info. It's completely open, this plan. In South Africa, permission has been given not only for 5G but also 6G. Roll out is happening fast. I am guessing this is the same in many countries. It is clear that 5G will assist in the next major health scare. Could you please ask your experts to look into the link up of 5G with fiber, the implications, especially regarding aerial fibre installed over and near houses, fire risks and the link up with the next big health scare? I've asked this very generally, but would appreciate as detailed discussion as possible. Many thanks. If this question is not interesting or suitable for your format, that's fine if you drop it, but perhaps you might then connect me with someone who might be able to answer?

The second question, will come next time.

Thank you both so much for your generosity, courage, leadership, resilience, great intelligence, style, strength, support and the vast experience that you share with so many. Words cannot convey...

Kind wishes, "K"

CAF Notes & Links:

Tech Guy's answer and suggestions:

When this was first received, I had the subscriber's name and I looked up the IP address in the Activity log. It was indeed in South Africa and as you suspected, the routing was abysmal. After 30 + hops to Iceland and Tempe, it timed out. Seems the subscriber could use the fiber for sure, hopefully into a hub that has some good routing.

Best regards,

Tech Guy

From Tech Guy 2:

I believe for the Solari in the News not playing question, may I suggest they do a:

- <https://www.speedtest.net/> Speed Test
- <https://www.whatismyip.com/> What is my IP and then put the IP address in
- <https://tools.keycdn.com/traceroute> Traceroute that counts the number of internet hops to world destinations. If the list is over 20 hops. They have ISP routing problems.. Whether or not it's intentional or not is anyone's guess.

Fiber > 5G > 4G > copper > etc depends on the connectivity in your area. Aerial fiber is collocating fiber on above ground power / telephone lines. Because, fiber is immune to EMF interference, if they can get fiber to their house, I would tell them it's the only way to go and avoid lower slower WiFi solutions.

Tinker like Tesla

Hello everyone,

I'm an ardent student of Jon Rappoport's teachings on imagination, that's how I've found Solari.

Years ago I jumped into Jon's teachings and "made them my own."

In the article below I argue how Tesla and Einstein were heavily using their imaginations to have their breakthroughs.

I've now done many sessions in the spirit of Jack True (other Rappoport students will know him) and I am looking for an engineer/inventor/scientist/product developer to see if, applying these sessions, speeds up their work and sparks new ideas and breakthroughs.

Please reach out if that is you or you know someone, thanks!

Here is the article, which is a book excerpt on this "Jack True technique".

The Future is Planned

In this video “The Future is Planned: Jay Dyer Exposes the Globalist Plan for Humanity” Jay refers to an article, “Revolution, flashmobs, and brain chips. A grim vision of the future”.

The article was written 17 years ago and it was quite prescient.

‘This is the world in 30 years’ time envisaged by a Ministry of Defence team responsible for painting a picture of the “future strategic context” likely to face Britain’s armed forces. It includes an “analysis of the key risks and shocks”. Rear Admiral Chris Parry, head of the MoD’s Development, Concepts & Doctrine Centre which drew up the report, describes the assessments as “probability-based, rather than predictive”.’

Can the sheriff in fact interfere with the DoD? The Covid injections are not on the market, not on the shelf. They are not being sold. They are not being prescribed. They are property of the federal government until they are injected, then they are nobody's business. That's from Sasha Latypova. She also says that RNA technology does not work, that there is no functional aspect, no therapeutic dose. Small doses do nothing and larger ones are fatal. Also from Katherine Watt we see that no specific ingredients were mentioned in the contracts between Pfizer and DoD, and that Good Manufacturing Procedures were not required for Emergency Response Measures. So I don't mean to contradict the eminent doctors, but we really cannot say anything about the actions of the injected substances in the body, when we do not know what is in the vials. We observe a lot of very bad consequences.

Otherwise, great, write those letters! And stop all the vaccines!
