B. Where to Stash Your Cash and Coin

2. Question: 0:56

You and Carolyn very kindly answered my previous question about where to begin teaching my children about investing, including my six homeschooled kids and my three young college graduates (yes, nine kids). I have listened for a long time and understand the principle, "know what you own and why you own it," the principle of diversifying your investments, and that each family is different in what makes sense to invest in. I am also familiar with a core position in precious metals (not considered investment, per se) and keeping things in real assets. We also assume that before investing, each kid has a reasonable savings account to buffer unexpected expenses (ideally 2-3 months of living expenses).

However, since they are just starting out saving for retirement, I'm wondering if there are timeless general principles that apply to investment, such as a general guideline of X percentage in X kind of asset — as a long-term goal, not necessarily possible immediately with small monthly amounts to invest. What has historically been wise?

Again, thank you so much for sharing your expertise.

3. Question: 7:00

Does the inclusion of 80% of the oil producers into BRICS change anything in your outlook as to the continued strength of the dollar?

D. Banking

4. Question: 8:00

I know how you are a fan of the big banks, but small banks will follow if we ignore this question (link: [Changes to Personal Transaction and Savings Products] <https://www.nab.com.au/content/dam/nabrwd/documents/guides/banking/personal-transaction-and-savings-products-terms-and-conditions-changes.pdf>): What would happen if a landlord over heard an argument between a couple and determined, on his own accord, that the woman was in a domestic violence situation, and so when the couple was at work the next day took it upon himself to change the locks to the house? How is a bank blocking access to customer accounts for the same 'supposed' reason any different? In the case of the landlord, he would end up being called the abuser in the eyes of the law.

Who of our Solari subscribers and friends of subscribers is switching party affiliation to vote in the primaries – either against Trump or for RFK? Is anyone talking about this?

Was Burning Man a false flag? An aborted false flag? If so, why was it aborted? Why did the press make such a big deal of a nothing burger (compared to other things going on)? Was it supposed to be something bigger? Or was that the plan, make a big deal of the nothing burgers (see California's Hurricane Hillary) so the press can then ignore the bigger issues?

Why are gated communities with four (perhaps five) three-story apartment buildings being built in towns of Pop 100 people? (sorry, didn't get you a photo): <https://northernterritory.com/tenant-creek-and-barkly-region/destinations/tenant-creek> or gated communities with four-story apartment buildings in Alice Springs, NT – a small city where land is abundant? (Does this have something to do with Pine Gap? Or is there something else going on).

Are the random fires that keep alighting in the middle of Australia (link: <https://myfirewatch.landgate.wa.gov.au/map.html>) from 1. angry aboriginals? 2. electricity in the ground (see electric universe theory based on velecovsky) 3. people who want more fear and re-traumatization? 4. People who are angry that traditional aboriginal burns did not happen earlier, so are getting it done so as to prevent larger fires later on? 5. Because we are in a P9 period, and forest fires are just part of the astrology! [Period 9 In Feng Shui] <https://dougleschan.com/period9/period-9-in-feng-shui/> (interesting the next period, period 1 in 2044 which is a water period, aligns pretty well with aboriginal predictions of a flood).

Why was there a small team (20-40?) of highly organized Canadian soldiers flown into Alice, driven 5 hours to spend the night at the general resort in Uluru where highway patrol troopers were nosing around on the private property the day they left (they could have camped more privately) and pulled up the next morning leaving not a trace, after taking quite a bit of time to set up the night before? Why is the US military all moving to Darwin, Aus? Why is no one talking about this?

How is the Airbnb ban going to affect NYC real estate pricing? Will immigrants end up moving into these places instead? (Asheville, NC has had the policy for years that Airbnbs can only be hosted (no renting out the whole home), and the city residents are happy with the arrangement.) Hosted airbnbs, in my opinion, create world peace while unhosted ones create inner peace. in the post-covid world (almost?) Is this push for home-sharing in alignment with the plan to get us all separated and not sharing a meal (or kitchen) together?

What is the purpose of The Voice Referendum in Australia? Is it a scheme to create the next Robert Mugabe? It is a scheme to deny Aboriginals the right to call us 'colonizers' and ask for treaty? (yes, those are completely opposite 'conspiracy theories'). It is a way for Mr. Global to legitimately use the Aboriginal population to make a huge land? It is a way to give Mr. Global (through an Aboriginal voice) a platform to promote (or enforce?) the rest of the 2030 agenda? Is it a way to create strife between the white and black populations, making it easier to foment civil disruption? (I might recommend, (again) Tyson Yunkaporta as an interesting source here. He gets the colonization topic at a deeper level than the 'Aboriginal Tent embassy', he also gets the issue of 'crabs in a barrel' where no one can get out as jealousy gets the successful thrown out – as some of his family members are asking to remove his book (they don't like he is using their name) in bookstores (first hand information). He also gets how we have been set up to be controlled, and how outsourcing violence is part of it.

Thank you for all of your great work!

5. Question: 9:36

Hi,

I need guidance on how to be wise with an inheritance I received. Should I work with a financial planner, buy real estate, etc. Is there any company you trust and would advise working with.

Also, I have my money in credit unions. How do I know if the credit unions I work with are in good standing. I work with Golden One Credit Union, Coast Central Credit Union and Members First Credit Union. They are all in California.

I am so thankful for this site.

Thank You,
“B”

6. Question: 14:38

Hi Catherine:

A while back on Money & Markets you mentioned there are a few places on earth that you consider "safe places" to live. I remember one being the Cook Islands. What were the other places? And can you tell me why you feel these places are safe. Are they not signed on the WHO treaty or the Paris climate accord? Do they lack cell towers?

I saw a video someone posted on Elana Freeland's FB page that talked about how next month everyone who took the jabs will be killed instantly when a certain frequency is emitted from the directed energy weapons in the sky. If that does happen, I can see who the WHO could direct FEMA to drive around the pickup everyone who is still alive under the pretext that there is a pandemic. I am really worried about this and I don't know what to do to protect myself and my loved ones.

8. Comment: 19:28

This is more of a share than a question. The husband of a friend of mine has end stage heart disease. They live in southern Maryland but have to travel 3 hours to Johns Hopkins so he can receive specialized treatment. Because this is costly and time consuming they wanted to buy a condo near the hospital. They do not trust the banks so they keep their money in cash. They offered the realtor a cash deposit on the apartment and it was refused stating they could not know where the cash was coming from and it would be in violation of money laundering laws. I told her I could hear the control grid pinchers closing in.

Thanks for the interview with Jurie Post—Fisherman. It was so inspiring, so full of down to earth wisdom, good humor and faith. God bless him and his community. I don't know if this is where to put reactions, but I am almost finished with Deep State Tactics 101. I can very much relate to the stories about your creative software, written articles and other intellectual property being taken over/used without your knowledge. That happens here on the mission field in a far flung place like Cambodia, too. Will have to share some of my own stories someday about US Aid, Save the Children, and Grant Opportunities from the Malaysian Ministry of Finance. Anyway, thank for documenting everything and sharing so many deep and personal lessons. It's wonderful. "A"

Landlording in California

Regarding the subscriber who wrote in about selling versus renting their home in California:

We have been landlords in CA for over a decade. We have seen a dramatic erosion in landlord / property rights in CA in the last 5 years. Specifically:

- You can no longer evict a tenant without proof of cause if they have been there over 1 year. Selling your home is not cause for eviction. The value of your home is obviously reduced if you have a non-evictable tenant living there.
- If a homeless person squats in your home, you can't get them out, and you can't shut off electricity or gas.

– During COVID we were required by law to issue our tenants a notice that they did not have to pay rent if they were in any way impacted by COVID. So you need to find a tenant who will pay rent even if they don't have to! Meanwhile, we had no grace period on our property tax payments.

– Fair housing has shown up or called every rental we've had open in the last 5 years. They are actively trying to find you in non-compliance. Typically they present as a black transgender with a baby....

This is why many of us private, small landlords are trying to get out of the CA market, even though the numbers are fantastic!

11. Question: 22:34

1.) Has any one heard from Ed Dowd? He lives on Maui.

2.) The subject is digital control. The country of Chile, where Whitney Webb lives, now has what appears to be a WEF president. Chile's major routes are toll routes since Pinochet. Very recently two very concerning things have occurred. First, one of the route operators announced that a TAG tracking system will soon be mandatory. BTW, route operators are foreign enterprises which got their contracts from Pinochet. Paying the tolls in cash will no longer be possible. This is on one of the most used east/west routes. Next, it was announced that a mandatory license plate tracking device will soon be required on all autos. This is not law yet, but... It would not be possible to register an auto without the tracking device. I mention these things for two reasons. First, Chile has been sort of a test animal for the globalists. Last year a law to give equal rights to "transhumans" was voted down. A very strange law to propose IMHO. Very recently Rio Tinto announced a partnership with Codelco, which is the state owned copper miner. Also worrisome, when one recalls that Rio Tinto was founded with drug money from the Opium Wars. Ahem.

Second, in that you and John and others are following these things, I thought the information might add to and give warning for other countries. Not exactly questions.

Please do not use my name and please include Ed Dowd in your prayers. Thank you for all you do.

12. Question: 24:18

Hi Catherine,

My child is attending preschool and we're being asked to complete an Emergency [form], whereby authorizing a medical examination and/or treatment should an emergency arise. The form continues to state that a conscientious effort will be made to contact the parents prior to the any medical action.

I can understand why the school would request this authorization, however I'm curious what your reaction would be to grating such authority.

I appreciate your thoughts. "B"

Dear Catherine,

Obviously you know who Nassim Harramein is (documentary "Thrive"). I would like to hear your opinion of his initiative & company (spacefed.com) to create anti-gravity spacecraft?

End of September he has an event discussing his latest paper – "The Origins of Mass & The Nature of Gravity". He will show in layman's terms the link between quantum physics & theory of relativity (something Einstein did not accomplish). If unchallenged, and the scientific establishments were fair, he should easily win a Noble Prize I believe. Hope you or someone from your team will be there. Cheers!

17. Question: 29:45

You did an excellent job of explaining how to find a good bank. Would you consider doing something like that for insurance companies?

I have state farm for home and car insurance b/c I knew the broker well in my small town. We have since moved and i would like to find a different company. A patient of mine who is an insurance adjuster told me that state farm was one that was demonstrating criminal behavior and he had to sue all the time to get them to pay out what they owed.

I have no idea how to find a company, what questions to ask or what to look for. It would help a lot.

Thanks so much.

Hi Catherine and the Solari team

Thank you for all the work that you do in educating people like me.

I recently watched an interview of Dr. Shiva, the inventor of e-mail.

He was interviewed by Mike Adams on his show on Brighteon this week.

A lot of the things that he's saying make sense.

However, I am concerned about what Dr Shiva said about RFK Jr and I would like to ask your take on this.

Hello Catherine,

Please share this information with your subscribers this website adds some spacial spice to the internet.

SPACIAL REALITY

Human vs Humanity

Human - Of human is of pertaining to, characteristics of, or having the nature of people: human frailty. Consisting of people; the human race.

Humanity - All human beings collectively; the human race; humankind. The quality or condition of being human; human nature. The quality of being humane; kindness; benevolence. These definitions were printed in the Random House Dictionary.

Hello Worldwide Public Citizens:

Let's converse about humans/humanity, everywhere on the globe we the people can't get along, won't get along, and lie constantly about coming together. We humans commit mass murder everyday, we cause trauma among our youth by denying them the truth about this misery plagued civilization. Crime, murder, rape and destitution are the center points of our daily struggles to survive, we go to church some of us everyday yet we enter the world societies with thievery, backstabbing, lies and pitiful alibis.

We think because we are Asians, Caucasians, Middle Eastern, or even Africans that these are excuses for acting as a fool who denies divine intervention. We have been on planet earth for millions of years as different civilizations, from the Atlantean to the Egyptians and now a modern civilization ruled by Caucasians, public citizens have come a long way and constantly back slide into chaos. We have quite a bit of knowledge from our higher institutions having invented liberty, justice, freedom, peace, yet we waddle knee deep in bloody wars throughout the world.

Leaders of civilizations parade themselves as Gods, Goddess, Caesars of Rome, the Pharaohs of Egypt also Emperors of Asia, were known to exclaim themselves as deities building monuments to their great achievements, writing scripture that a genuflecting population to read comparing themselves to the ultimate power of the unseen creator. This humanity lives in an illusionary thought pattern of blissful allegiance to one's self.

Humanity slouches in slumber a sleep at the wheel, speeding down the canyon of indecision, toward a wall of confusion, praying that their destiny changes not understanding that the human population are the only ones that can change this destiny!!

The Texas Education Agency does not track data for students below the 7th grade, so the number of withdrawals was likely much more. THSC estimated that 8-10% of Texas students are now being homeschooled."

CAB Notes & Links:

CHARLIE STEPHENS'S RESPONSE TO MY INQUIRY ABOUT THIS:

I took a look at these two sites, which is really only the CO2 coalition - the second one is just parroting the first.

There's really no helpful information here - just the same old talking points that the fossil fuel industry has been peddling for 40 years. This reeks of astroturf. As I mentioned in one of my replies to the input from the two interview segments, no one has any idea what CO2 levels were in the atmosphere 140 million years ago. All of that is inferred. Not only that, but what were conditions like on Earth over all of that period - habitable for mammals, which didn't exist yet? The plant food argument has been called into questions by more thorough studies (attached is a summary from one of those, in a word format, in case you want to cut and paste. The fossil fuels industry disagrees with these people. They knew 50 years ago that the burning of their known reserves (coal, oil, gas) would significantly increase CO2 in the atmosphere, and that the climate would be altered by that. In the late 1980s, Exxon's models predicted that CO2 would hit 400 ppm in 2015. I believe we hit that number in 2017. So were their models reasonably accurate? Seems like it to me.

I really tire of arguing about CO2. A number of my replies to the comments on the interviews talk about that. CO2 isn't the worst greenhouse gas, important as it is. We've dumped millions of pounds of refrigerants into the atmosphere, each molecule of which a 20-year Global Warming Potential from 4,000 to 10,000 times greater than a molecule of CO2. These people are, in effect, saying that CO2 has no impact on global average temperatures. The fact that the amount of CO2 in the atmosphere, over the last 700,000 years MEASURED (from air bubbles in the Greenland ice mantle) has averaged 280 ppm, or 0.028 percent, and according to well-settled science (not scientism) that makes global average temperatures 60 degrees F warmer than they would be without that 0.028 percent CO2 in the atmosphere. Over 700,000 years, atmospheric CO2 concentrations measured 240-320 ppm (0.024 to 0.032 percent). What scientists are concerned about is that those levels have risen to 415 ppm in less than 100 years. The rate of change of CO2 levels is unprecedented. I really don't care what CO2 levels were like 100 million years ago, and quite frankly, no one knows for sure. Science has come up with some pretty clever ways to infer things, but nothing except CO2 levels and other atmospheric gases (in those same air bubbles) have actually been measured. No one really knows what the temperatures were more than 100 years ago, or the actual CO2 levels going back more than about 700,000 years. It's all done with models, and inferring temperatures and CO2 of measurements of other things that may or may not be correlated as scientists think.

I'm also tired of talking about "the science." The science is what it is, and isn't political, it isn't good or bad. It just is. But there is the use of science for beneficial outcomes and there's the use of science for bad (or predatory) outcomes. The same science that answers the question about why a certain disease WILL kill us can be used to answer the question about HOW to kill us. Just look at the science behind what they call "vaccines." The same science that explains the climate impact of methane in the atmosphere can be used to justify killing off our food supply. In my experience, psychopaths, sociopaths, and criminals have always made the most effective use of science and technology.

So my fondest wish is that we quit arguing about climate change and CO2 (while the global crime syndicate locks us down and takes away our transaction freedom) and just do away with the predatory rackets (industrial agriculture, most of the chemical industry, the pharmaceutical industry, and the violence rackets). If we did that, the climate issue would solve itself as a collateral benefit. Charlie between David Icke, Alex Collier, Ramtha, Debbie Solaris and even the 2023 fireworks/drone display (watch and listen from 2:22 — "we are eternal" — the image looks like a lizard in armour), you have to wonder if psychopathy is not a human trait, that all psychopaths are in fact lizard people (Draconian) offspring, and that they're working together to eradicate humankind and claim the Earth as their own with the aid of millions of professionals eager to betray their fellow humans for some extra cash.

According to Alex Collier, Draconians are a species with millions of years of existence who don't possess emotions as humans do, and believe this galaxy belongs to them. We are the trespassers.

Chem-trails could be terra-forming for a lizard environment.

And getting insects into the diet would also make sense.

Recent video/digital displays at satanic concerts also resemble lizard people.

just a possibility to consider.

Create a National Water Strategy (more thievery)

The President's National Infrastructure Advisory Council (NIAC) made a broad call Monday for the creation of a National Water Strategy to ensure the nation can deliver sustainable critical infrastructure systems that are responsive to cyber threats.

In a draft document approved on Aug. 28, the NIAC is calling for the creation of a Department of Water or an equivalent cabinet-level agency to design and implement a strategy that addresses the looming water crisis and cybersecurity threats to the critical infrastructure sector.

Music in Nazi Germany – The maestro and the cellist of Auschwitz

Why was classical music so important to Hitler and Goebbels? The stories of Jewish cellist Anita Lasker-Wallfisch, who survived Auschwitz, and of star conductor Wilhelm Furtwängler, who worked with the Nazis, provide insight.

The film centers around two people who represent musical culture during the Third Reich – albeit in very different ways. Wilhelm Furtwängler was a star conductor; Anita Lasker-Wallfisch, the cellist of the infamous Women’s Orchestra of Auschwitz. Both shared a love for the classical German music.

The world-famous conductor made a pact with Hitler and his henchmen. The young woman, brought to Auschwitz for being Jewish, was spared death for her musical talent. While Furtwängler decided to stay in Germany and make a deal with the devil, Lasker-Wallfisch struggled to survive the brutality of the death camp, with a cello as her only defense. Why did gifted artists like Furtwängler make a pact with evil? Why was classical music played in extermination camps? And how did this change the way victims saw music?

German music was used to justify the powerful position the Third Reich claimed in the world, and to distract listeners from Nazi crimes. In addition to Beethoven, Bach and Brucker, Richard Wagner was highly valued, because he was Hitler’s personal favorite. Hitler understood the power of music, and his chief propagandist Joseph Goebbels was in charge of music in the Nazi-controlled state.

This music documentary by Christian Berger features interviews with musicians like Daniel Barenboim and Christian Thielemann; the children of Wilhelm Furtwängler; and of course 97-year-old survivor Anita Lasker-Wallfisch. Her memories are chilling. Archive film footage, restored and colorized, brings the story to life, and bears witness to an agonizing chapter in history.

BankWars

This is a 3-part documentary on the Weimar hyperinflation, focusing on the role central banks played in implementing plans for war and economic destruction. It starts off with a clarification of definitions and commonly held incorrect definitions and an explanation of the difference between money and currency, and the definitions of gold standard, inflation and deflation.

It is well worth looking at what happened in Germany 100 years ago to see the same plan unfolding in America (and the rest of the world) today.

The 100 Year Plan Continues...

[The 100 Year Plan Continues... - Wayne Jett - (BWL POD #0158)]

*https://youtu.be/7HOzrqup_PY

This interview with Wayne Jett makes 3 important points:

1) Mass Poisoning

At time 17:43:

Jett talks about the book ‘Anticipations’ by HG Wells, written in 1901:

“About a third of the way into the book all of a sudden the subject becomes very very different and that different subject is that he simply takes a direct straightforward hold on carrying the torch for the ruling elite and what they’re going to have to do to get back to power that they’re entitled to have because the middle class has become a direct and growing threat to their continued rule over the world, that in fact unless the ruling elite take takes hold and begins to really progress in a plan to destroy the middle class completely they would lose power forever and never be able to get it back. So in a very direct English language from that point on the book continues to say this is what we’ve got to do in order to destroy the middle class. We’re going to have to destroy the entire society of America and Europe as well so that the middle class can be extinguished; otherwise it can’t be done. So we have to tear apart society completely and destroy it in order for us to get back our ruling position.

And in order to summarize that quite a bit um he provides some things that they need to do, for example as a control all publishers, for example on the central banks that provide all the money or the currency control. All of that, but when we get down to it the plan was to be in a position by the year 2000.

I need to learn how to poison all of the people of the Abyss that it’s not a matter of simply putting them in their place. Many many many millions of people the world over need to be dead, need to be poisoned. And it seems to me with that kind of language and purpose and objective it seems to be fairly straightforward that when they said by the year 2000, in other words 100 years out from now, we hope to be able to know how to poison the people. It’s not a matter of knowing what is poison or finding a poison and you’re thinking about it it seems to be somewhat logical that the challenge was not so much to find the poison as it was to find a way to get people to take it. And I think we can sort of leave that out there at this point as a reference to a kind of recent experience we’ve had uh in America and the world

HG Wells

<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Anticipations>

2) The Dust Bowl

Then at time 53.30 Jett goes on to suggest that the Dust Bowl was an early weather modification operation, backed by land and financial considerations.

“The one thing I haven’t in my own mind come up with a clear enough explanation about is how did they do the dust storms. Those were events that seemed to me to be technology based, a kind of a production that has not been duplicated since. And I don’t know how we came up with dust storms that would put dust over statewide areas six inches deep when we’ve never had those since, but nevertheless those were the kind of things that the people were put through in the United States by their own government with a president that was supposedly loved and cherished and put back in office for four terms. It was a great great deception to the American people.

The Dust Bowl being potentially man-made or technology based, that’s very interesting.

Well they just mentioned in that regard that Dust Bowl situation took place well after the events of the 1890s and the technological revelations of the great Nikola Tesla. I think there was a great deal more technology it certainly reported now that the significance of the technology revealed in the 1890s by Tesla was so significant we haven’t seen that progress revealed yet.”

3) On Russia and the Russian Revolution

TIME 58.17:

“In 1913 when the U.S was saying yes to Rockefeller and the Rothschild Bank and so forth, the Czar of Russia was saying no. That resulted not only in World War One being commenced and fought largely on Russian territory and of millions dying but also the overthrow of the tsar and the assassination of him and his family.

The imposition of the dictatorship on Russia that came to be known as communism as if the Russians were communist people. No they’re Christian people, you might say the polar opposite of communists, the ones that the Communists stamp out, freedom and life and free will and Christianity and Christian love and so forth.

But everybody is desperate enemies of each other and to this day the people who have gone into Russia from Western Europe to look at the Christian circumstances there not only is there a higher percentage of Russians who are Christian than in America but a scholar from Western Europe, a woman who went into Russia in recent years to look at the Christian practices there, she says they’re actually quite a serious practitioners of Christianity. It's very appropriate in Russia to speak of Christian views and issues of information and faith in social company and in social circumstances while it seems to be impolite in America to do so. I'm not making too much of that. There are serious Christians everywhere, I'm sure in America, but nevertheless we need to recognize where our friends are in the world and stop believing the propaganda that is run by the press, the fake news and so forth of Western media and the ones in agreement.

Putin is reported to have said the Stalin ruined a thousand years of Russian heritage. It was not a Russian Revolution; it was a Bolshevik Revolution. Period. The Bolsheviks were paid mercenaries financed by the Western banks, including those of Wall Street. Part of the 1901 plan, and it's like you can't have a World War without a World Bank, a central bank. You know World War One started within months of the formation of the Federal Reserve.
